HAITI WORRY INCREASES

Marine Forces Mobilizing

Hoover Forwards Message to Congress as Troops Prepare to Sail

Hoover Issues Statement Setting Forth Concern Over Situation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Additional marines are being assembled to dispatch to Haiti because of the seriousness with which the administration views the disturbed conditions there.

President Hoover is so concerned over the reports which have reached the establishment of martial law that today he sent a special message to Congress, believed to be an explanation of his reasons for such a serious step. The Senate had adjourned, however, before the contents of the message were made known and withheld action on it.

Secretary Stimson and the War Department tonight carefully refrained from divulging any information as to the plans.

Major General Smedley D. Butler, marine commandant at Norfolk, Va., that the United States flagship Wright had been ordered to sail immediately, however with a detachment of marines for "duty beyond the seas" dashed no suspense.

MARINES DENIED LEAVE

At Quantico, the marine base near Washington, leave was denied to officers and preparations were made for the early departure of a force of 1000 men, probably will be composed of officers and men.

Marines are ready at Parris Island, S. C., and Norfolk. They will report in the 30 machines already on the island, who are in barracks at Port-au-Prince and Cape Haitien. A 600-man navy mine force is stationed there.

Orders have been outlined regulations for the island, the United States now having assumed all responsibility connected with the task of helping to bring up a government in this little republic.

HAITIAN STATEMENT

The situation in Haiti was described today by Secretary Stimson in a statement in connection with the danger of outbreaks by natives against the American occupation.

The Secretary's statement reviews events leading up to the proclamation making effective martial law.

Minister of the agricultural department at Haiti, went on to say on October 31." the Secretary said, "The Haitian government allotted to this school 25,000 gourdes, but this year it received $500 of the appropriation in order to make it possible for students for practical work on the school ground. The Haitian students refused subsequently to attend to the medical and WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) — Recognition was given the South in the Cabinet today when President Hoover nominated Col. Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma to be Secretary of War, succeeding the late James W. Good of Iowa. Mr. Hurley, who is 46 years of age, will be the youngest member of the Cabinet, in fact, the youngest man appointed to such high office in a number of years.

As assistant Secretary of War he took the active direction of the War Department when Mr. Good died. He is outstanding among the men who were described by the President as having made sacrifices to serve the government.

FOX HANGS UP CROWN

Screen Affairs Taken Over

Bank Concern and Western Electric Company to Aid in Guiding Units

Expansion Program Upset by Stock Crash and Injury in Auto Wreck

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) William Fox has voluntarily relinquished control of his vast motion-picture producing companies and theater chains. He announced tonight the appointment of a board of trustees for the management of his interests, which throws the power which he personally has wielded so long in the entertainment field into the hands of the Western Electric Company and Wall-street bankers.

Obligations totaling $91,000,000, which Mr. Fox arranged on a temporary basis with expectations of replacing them on a permanently financed position, are the reasons for the abdication of the man who has been a dominant figure in the entertainment field since talking motion pictures came into vogue. The obligations were incurred in further expanding the company, which, unaided, he had built from a single theater into an organization which has an indicated earning capacity this year of $33,000,000 and assets valued as high as $500,000,000.

LONELY ROLE FAILS

It was his habit to work alone that put him in the position which has caused him to relinquish his powers. Last summer, when he sustained serious injuries in an automobile accident on Long Island, he was working on the plans for the permanent financing of the obligations which now have to be met.

The accident kept him from this work for two months and when he returned to it the stock market declines in October and November occurred and rendered futile the plan he had of a stock offering in an amalgamation of all his properties as a means of permanently financing the temporary obligations. Stock declines also brought the demands for reductions in the loans which are included in the $91,000,000 obligations which must be met. Another recent development involving the Fox Film Corporation and Fox Theater Corporation, the two largest Fox companies, was a suit brought by the Federal government under the Clayton Act to force the companies to divest themselves of the control of Loew's which was acquired last February.

TRUSTEES NAMED

The board of trustees which he has appointed himself to control his personal interests consist of: John Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products, Inc., the subsidiary of Western Electric Company from which the Fox Film Corporation and the Movietone Corporation hold a license to manufacture talking pictures and which in turn is a subsidiary of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company; H. L. Stuart of Halsey Stuart & Co., Wall-street banking house, which in the past has done most of the financing for the Fox interests, and Mr. Fox himself.

Winfield Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, issued the following statement tonight:

"The board of directors of Fox Film Corporation has declared today the usual quarterly dividend payable to stockholders of record as of the 31st inst. In connection with this action the directors authorized the following statement:

"During the past year Fox Theaters Corporation purchased substantial holdings of stock in Loew's, Inc., Fox Film Corporation has similarly purchased stock of the Gaumont Theaters in England. Both purchases were and are regarded

FEARS FOR BULLARD'S LIFE FELT

Veteran Warrior Said to be in Serious Condition as Result of Heart Attack

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (AP)—Maj.-Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, retired, commander of the Third American Army Corps during the World War, is seriously ill tonight at his apartment at the Hotel Adams as the result of a heart attack.

In a statement tonight his daughter Rose said that although his condition is serious, it has improved steadily, and that he appears to be in no immediate danger.

The veteran warrior himself made light of his illness. Although unable to leave his bed, and ordered by doctors to remain absolutely quiet, he insisted on receiving visitors and answering queries as to his condition.

"I have had a little trouble with my heart," he said smilingly, adding that the weather probably will keep him in bed for a few days.

Gen. Bullard is 68 years of age, a veteran of the Indian wars and the Spanish-American War. He went to France in 1917 as brigadier-general with the First Division, and led the American forces in their first engagement in the World War. As commander of the Third Army Corps at the second battle of the Marne he wrote the famous message: "We are going to counter-attack."

It is rumored that the Fox corporation is interested in the new venture, affording as it does, an opening in the Canadian field, at present dominated by the Famous Players chain. N. L. Nathanson, formerly managing director of Famous Players is active bhind the organization.

Storm-Periled Fishing Ship's Crew Rescued

ST. JOHNS (N. F.) Dec. 6. (AP)—Another of the ten little fishing schooners which blew far to sea in the storms which swept the North Atlantic Ocean since last Friday night was accounted for today with the rescue of the captain and crew of the Northern Light by the liner Baltic. Only two members of the ill-fated fleet still are missing, the schooners Neptune and the Lloyd Jack.

Five seamen were taken off the Northern Light today by the Baltic and the schooner was abandoned. It was a daring rescue, made in heavy and dangerous seas, and it resulted in the death of one of the Northern Light's crew, Rex Parson.

CHICAGO, Dec. 6. (AP)—Four men were killed today when an automobile skidded through the safety gates at Morton Grove, a suburb, and crashed into a passenger train.

Those killed were: Nicholas Krack, 42 years of age, owner and driver of the car, a Chicago real-estate dealer; Nicholas Schmitz, 23, Nicholas Hansen, Chicago florist, and his son, Mike, a printer.

BOSTON SNUBS GOV. RITCHIE

Use of Hall for Speech Against "Baby Volstead Act" Refused Maryland Executive

BOSTON, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—Tremont Temple, it was learned today, was refused as the hall in which Gov. Ritchie of Maryland was to speak on the liquor question next Tuesday. In addition the trustees of the Boston Elevated Railroad have withheld permission to advertise this meeting under the auspices of the Liberal Civic League on posters on the front of cars. Although Gov. Allen and Mayor Nichols have arranged to meet Gov. Ritchie when he calls on them Tuesday morning, both have declined luncheon and evening invitations.

F. F. Plympton, superintendent of Tremont Temple, in a letter addressed to William H. Mitchell, chairman of the Liberal Civic League, said:

"Upon further consideration of your application to use Tremont Temple for a public meeting in the interests of repealing the so-called 'baby Volstead Act,' I am quite convinced that the clientele of Tremont Temple would wholly disapprove of my permitting the use of our hall for such a purpose.

"In my opinion a proper procedure to change the Constitution is all right, but to make it much easier for the bootlegger and the criminal element to violate the law of the land by removing any machinery for enforcement of the law is quite another matter."

Manager Edward Dana of the elevated said that it is frequently the custom of the system to allow placing on the cars of cards announcing meetings which may attract a number of the riders. The matter was referred to the trustees and they, feeling that the meeting is "to be on a controversial subject," declined to authorize them.

According to Conrad Crooker, general counsel for the Liberal Civic League, arrangements have been made for Gov. Ritchie to speak in Symphony Hall.

FATE BALKS AIR SEARCH FOR FLYERS

Dorbandt and Crosson Crash at Start of Hunt for Eielson and Comrade

NOME (Alaska) Dec. 6. (AP)—Pilot Frank Dorbandt's plane crashed and the plane piloted by Joe Crosson was damaged slightly, when the aviators attempted to take off from Teller, Alaska, today, for North Cape, Siberia, to search for Carl Ben Eielson and his mechanic, Earl Borland, missing since November 9, last, when they attempted to fly to North Cape, where the fur-trading ship Nanuk is locked in the ice.

The flyers came to grief when they tried to take off from the rough snow-drifted field at Teller with heavy loads of gasoline. There was no wind to aid them to rise into the air. Crosson's plane is being repaired and again will attempt a flight as soon as possible from the snow-covered ice field at Grantley Harbor, which now is being prepared.

Fraud Charges Total Millions

(Copyright, 1929, by New York Times)

LONDON, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—New charges of fraud amounting to $6,750,000 were brought today against Clarence C. Hatry, young financier of the British Photomaton and other companies, collapse of which led to his arrest three months ago.

This brings the total of the asserted frauds to $9,796,705, all of which Hatry is accused of having obtained through false pretenses.

Will Rogers Remarks:

BEVERLY HILLS, Dec. 6. [To the Editor of The Times:] Our foreign friends always accuse us of being a loud boisterous nation. Well, if you don't think America can stand still and keep its mouth shut you just watch it as I have today, when Hagen and Diegel are putting.

The morning paper states "another mail pilot found crushed on a hillside." Well, he might have been just another pilot to that newspaper, but he was more than that to me. This same boy, Nelson, and right out of that same graveyard of aviators, Bellefonte, Pa., tried to get me through those mountains to New York one stormy night. He set us down in a bare spot no larger than a film actress's living-room in my first forced landing, and without a scratch. So you will pardon me if I look on him as a little more than "just another pilot." He was my first hero.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

BYRD SOLVES ANTARCTIC'S AGE-GUARDED SECRETS

Airplane and Camera Reveal Polar Topography Long Sealed to Eyes of Observers

BY RUSSELL OWEN

(Copyright, 1929, by the Los Angeles Times, the New York Times Company and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.)

LITTLE AMERICA (Antarctica) Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—One of Antarctica's greatest mysteries has been solved.

Commander Byrd flew back to camp last night, having discovered a vast new mountain range running north and south, east of King Edward Land. It was mapped with the aerial camera for at least 150 miles.

It is this land which holds in the great ice sheet at the eastern edge of Ross Sea, ice which explorers have attempted to penetrate since it was first found by Ross in 1840.

It extends far to the north and apparently turns eastward within the range of visibility from the plane, so that it is probable that this great unknown coast has actually been delineated to its northern boundary. That can be determined after the pictures are developed.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

The importance of the flight, geographically, can hardly be overemphasized as this mountain range with a high plateau behind it seems to compare with the similar range on the western side of Ross Sea, and it may be the eastern side of the Great Barrier in which the Rockefeller Mountains and King Edward Land are part of an archipelago.

"It is much more than I ever hoped to find," said Commander Byrd, who was delighted today with the success of the flight.

"I supposed there was land there if we could only reach it, but this magnificent range was unexpected."

It lies well within Marie Byrd Land on the other side of the meridian dividing the Ross dependency from the land discovered last year and runs out of sight toward the south. Where they go and what lies between their southern end and the country to the west is still to be learned. But in themselves they provide much material for speculation and have added many miles of coast line to the great unknown sector of the continent between here and Graham Land.

POLES SECRET FORCED

The existing charts show that from King Edward Land, hitherto the limit of discovery to the eastward, the ice in Ross Sea runs in a great curve to the north and west. Ross, the daring pioneer who first forced his way through the pack into the sea which bears his name and who found the great ice barrier, bumped into that barricade and turned back. Scott and Shackleton tried to make their way along the coast in ships and were baffled by the ice lands and drift ice, which closed in about them and forced them to turn back.

Whalers have hovered along the edge of that great ice shelf for years and wondered what held it there. Byrd himself tried to get up there in the City of New York three times last year and was turned back by fog and storm and new forming ice. He tried to fly there and was headed off by clouds and snow.

ANTARCTIC MYSTERY

That part of the Antarctic has been one of its most tantalizing mysteries. Even its northern boundary was only known approximately. It has fascinated many men and lured Byrd irresistibly. Unconquerable by ship, it has yielded to the airplane.

The flight itself was as unexpected as its results. The delicately balanced weather, which precedes the summer here, comes when the warm winds come in from the north and has been clinging to Little America for days. As in the north polar regions the best time for flying here is early in the summer and this, it must be remembered, is summer in the Antarctic.

Day before yesterday the weather was fair and Commander Byrd learned from "Cyclone" Haines that the slow southerly drift of air up to 10,000 feet promised ideal flying conditions. So that night he determined to take off the next day on the first of the season's eastern exploration flights. On arising the next morning he found the sky clear and a light wind from the southwest. It was almost hot in the bright sunshine. He gave the word to have the plane made ready and in an hour and a half had hopped off at 10:40 a.m.

He took as his pilot this time Capt. Alton W. Parker of the Marine Corps Reserves, a wiry southerner, quick as a cat, who has flown all sorts of planes from pursuit planes to lumbering navy boats. Parker was so delighted at the op-

VARE LOSES IN SENATE

Seat Denied to Pennsylvanian

Vote of 58 to 22 Ends Two-Year Conflict Over Election Costs

Wilson Also Refused Place; Interest Centers on Appointment

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Senate membership was denied to William S. Vare today and, while the Pennsylvanian limped from the chamber, the Senate also refused the seat to his Democratic opponent in the 1926 election, William B. Wilson.

With the chair that has been unoccupied for two years formally vacated by two decisive votes, all eyes turned toward Gov. Fisher of Pennsylvania, who now is empowered to fill it.

Even before Vare was excluded by a 58-to-22 vote because of expenditures of $785,000 and charges of fraud in his Senatorial primary race, warning was given in the Senate that Joseph R. Grundy, prominently mentioned as a possible successor, would not be acceptable. Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, gave that notice, and the Senate waited apprehensively tonight for Gov. Fisher's decision.

The resolution of Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, denying Vare membership was supported by twenty-five Republicans, thirty-two Democrats and the one Farmer-Labor member. Twenty-two Republicans opposed it.

WILSON REJECTED

Turning immediately to the contest of Wilson for the seat, the Senate adopted by 66 to 15 the resolution of Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, holding Wilson was not elected. The Democratic contestant, a former Secretary of Labor, was looking down from the gallery. For three years and at much personal expense he had attempted to win the seat.

After the roll call was completed and as the clerk was compiling the result, Vare arose from the seat on the front row of the Republican side next to the center aisle and walked slowly from the chamber with the aid of a cane. He had suffered serious illness in the past year and a physician accompanied him. He had entered the chamber just before the vote.

A grim smile covering his florid face, Vare stopped on his way from the Capitol to dictate the following statement to his secretary, William Douglas:

VARE STATEMENT

"I feel that a great injustice has been done my State and myself. It is to be regretted that the highest body in the land should trample on the Constitution and treat so lightly the rights of a State."

Thereupon he left the Capitol, joined by his wife and two daughters, who had looked on from the gallery.

It remained for Senator Schall, Republican, Minnesota, a blind man who also is forced to use a cane, to offer the lone word of comfort from the Senate. A colleague of Vare for many years in the House, Schall sought out the excluded man in the seclusion of the lounge room as the Pennsylvanian was leaving. He put his arm about Vare and spoke.

TWENTY-SIX DEAD IN STORM

English and European Shipping Suffer Damage; Serious Floods Follow Torrential Rain

LONDON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Severe gales developed in the English Channel tonight and again menaced shipping around the British Isles and off the coast of Spain. Violent winds already have taken a toll of nineteen lives at sea and seven on land with many vessels missing.

The Clyde Line steamship Arkiow west corner of Spain. No mention is made of their condition or whether help is required.

Spanish sources also reported an Italian steamer on fire and asking aid off Mogador, Morocco. It was said that the vessel was in a precarious position because no other ships had been reported in the vicinity.

The most serious disaster of the storms thus far was the foundering of the steamship Frances Duncan of Land's End with a loss of sixteen of her crew of twenty-one. The other five clung to wreckage until picked up by the steamship Alios portunity of getting well over to the eastward that he put on his red and black checked lumberman's pants. One could not miss him in the landscape with those red legs.

"Parker did his job perfectly," said Commander Byrd, after the flight. "I knew what sort of pilot he was for he was at Spitzbergen with us on the North Pole expedition. He got very low gasoline consumption on the flight and handled the plane as only a natural flyer can".

The others in the plane besides the commander were Harold June, who alternates flying, working the radio and taking pictures and watching the gas consumption, and Capt. McKinley, the aerial surveyor of the expedition.

The plane cut across Cape Colbeck and then across Biscoe Bay, flying at least ten miles out to sea where engine trouble would have brought them down in the water. The sea was open to the west, blue and calm under the summer sun, the drift ice having been blown north.

The Alexandra Mountains were passed and after penetrating a short distance inland the commander turn north, flying between the 150th and 151st meridians of longitude.

He was then over shelf ice extending out from the shore line, which is marked by a barrier wall similar to the usual barrier cliffs. Between it and the broken pack ice was a plain of shelf ice about fifteen miles wide, dotted with ice islands, their tops broken and crevassed.

AIR WAS ROUGH

The air was bumpy and the plane was bouncing around in the currents caused by the warmth of the sun. Once the plane dropped 50 feet and the altitude control on the gasoline feed was so finely adjusted that the motors began to spit. A touch of Parker's hand and they hummed smoothly again, but it shows how rough it was and it continued rough most of the flight.

The mountains began to loom up at Scott's Nunatak, for the visibility was perfect. It was possible to see 100 miles.

The snow-covered land rose from the Barrier edge toward the mountains sloping upward in rolling and smooth undulations. The mountains were in long groups, rising from small peaks at each end to towering summits in the center. Some of them were 10,000 feet high, judging by the way they rose above the level of the plane, which then was flying nearly a mile high.

There were breaks between the groups so that they appeared like long serrated ridges. Between them were great slopes of ice and snow, leading up to a plateau behind and to the east, so that they had that characteristic of all the coastal mountains around the Barrier, of seeming to hold in the almost limitless snow-covered plateau. There was no doubt that they formed the western coast of Marie Byrd Land.

ISLANDS SIGHTED

When it seemed advisable to turn toward home the plane was at least 350 miles northeast of Little America. Far ahead could be seen the northern end of the range and at some distance out from what appeared to be a solitary peak or island. Another island also lay on the horizon to the northward. The horizon was then more than ninety miles away. The plane was flying at 5000 feet and June is sure that he saw at about sixty miles from where the plane turned east the blue line of the sea running to the eastward and turning somewhat south before disappearing again in the east. There seemed no doubt that this vast cape is what holds in that astonishing accumulation of ice around which ships have had to find their way to the west when sailing out of Ross Sea from the Bay of Whales. It is anchored by the line of ice islands off the coast, grounded ice masses which hem in the shelf ice.

From hurried calculations this morning it was estimated that the range had been mapped for 150 miles north of the 76th degree of latitude. They run in a general north and south line in about 147 west longitude

WONDERFUL GLACIER

In the midst of the mountain chain was a remarkable glacier.

"It was the most beautiful glacier I have ever seen," said Commander Byrd. "It was eight or ten miles wide and perfectly smooth as it ran up to the plateau above. At the bottom of the glacier and exactly in the center was a square stone mass rising like a monolith out of the snowy slope. It was wonderfully beautiful with the sun shining on it and that great stone tower lifting above it."

The plane flew southward to a point where the land running east from King Edward Land runs into Marie Byrd Land and found there a sort of valley leading between the new range and the eastern end of the Alexandra Mountains. On the western side of this depression was a large open space of water, far in from the sea. Cracks ran out from the sides as if there were a strong current underneath. On the south side of the pool the ground rose sharply upward to an elevation of about 4000 feet. There were several of these pools in the valley, some of them in the lowest part of the depression, showing that there was an inlet flowing in there from the sea under the ice.

It has started much speculation in camp as to whether this is the beginning of the theoretical connection between the Ross and the Weddell seas. Only further exploration to the eastward will clear up this point and it is possible that the water merely indicates a deep bay in which the Rockefeller Mountains and the outcropping rocks of the Alexandra Mountains are the island tops of an archipelago.

HURLEY NAMED TO CABINET POST

what he was unable to do before his inauguration, when Horace Mann and others pleaded in vain for an eleventh-hour shift that would put a southerner in the Cabinet, and signalize the Hoover achievement of breaking the "solid South." At that time the names of Stuart Crozier of North Carolina and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert of Kentucky, vice-chairman of the Republican National Committee, were conspicuous among those suggested for Cabinet places.

Mr. Hoover was not unsympathetic to the pleas, but explained later that he had found difficulty in discovering among southern Republicans men who had had enough experience in public life to qualify for Cabinet places. When he appointed Mr. Hurley to the assistant Secretaryship of War and Ernest Lee Jahncke of new Orleans to the assistant Secretaryship of the Navy it was understood that he felt he was getting men of Cabinet measure whom experience would qualify. Mr. Hurley, a noted lawyer, was a World War officer with a distinguished record and a man of attainments in the business world. Mr. Jahncke is a man of world-wide naval and shipping experience.

Hurley is the son of Pierce and Mary Kelly Hurley. Deprived of his parents in infancy, he was reared by a family in what was then the Choctaw Nation, Indian Territory.

Mr. Hurley will be known as the "flying Secretary," for ever since he has been in office it has been his custom to travel by air whenever conditions permitted. He is a thorough believer in the future of aviation. As assistant Secretary, he has been in charge of industrial mobilization plans.

Col. Hurley was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for rendering "services of material worth to the American Expeditionary Forces" while serving as a lieutenant-colonel of the Judge Advocate General's department during the World War.

Hurley also has a silver star citation for gallantry in action near Louppy, France, on November 11, 1918, "in voluntarily making a reconnaissance under heavy enemy fire."

The new Secretary received an A. B. degree in 1905 from what was then Indian University, Bacone, Indian Territory. In 1908 he received the degree of bachelor of laws from the National University of Law in Washington. He was admitted to the bar in 1908 and began practice at Tulsa and in 1912 was admitted to the Supreme Court. He was national attorney for the Choctaw Nation from 1912 to 1917. He has been president of the First Trust and Savings Bank, Tulsa, since 1927; and is a director of the First National Bank there.

Col. Hurley began his military service in 1902 as a captain of cavalry of the Indian Territorial volunteer militia. He served in the Oklahoma National Guard from 1914 to 1917 with the rank of captain. During the World War he took part in the Aisne-Marne, Meuse-Argonne and St. Mihiel offensives and defensive operations of the A.E.F.

STORM FATAL TO TWENTY-SIX

Marie. An Irish fishing boat with three men disappeared in the storm.

Torrential rains which accompanied the gale increased the already extensive damage from floods in Wales, Portugal and Spain. Land communications in England were severely disrupted and extensive property damage done. Shipping in the English Channel is nearly at a standstill and air service also is crippled.

Reports coming from many points on the south coast as far as Holyhead say that the weather is at its wildest with huge seas dashing on the shores.

A woman was killed and another injured when a wall was blown over at Eastbourne. The heavy rain flooded streets in that city and in Dover and Folkestone. A summer-like thunderstorm broke over London just before midnight with a torrent of rain.

TAX COMMITTEE TO MEET

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6. (AP)—The joint legislative committee on taxation appointed at the last session of the Legislature will meet in Sacramento, the 13th inst., and in Fresno, the 14th inst. Speaker Edgar C. Levey, chairman, announced here today.

VARE DENIED SENATE SEAT

Vote of 58 to 22 Closes Two-Year-Old Controversy Growing Out of Election Expenditures

nounced to the crowded chamber that the Norris resolution was to be voted upon, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, asked if an amendment was in order declaring Vare elected.

Mr. Curtis ruled such an amendment in order but no one made it.

With the roll call under way, Senator Schall sought to offer it but he was ruled out of order and shouted "It ought to have been done."

Down the roll the Senate clerk went and as "ayes rang out one after another, Vare sank back into his chair downcast.

TWO-YEAR FIGHT

A few minutes later the white-haired William Wilson, a member of President Wilson's Cabinet, was edging his stooped shoulders against the crowd as he worked his way from the gallery, a vote of 66 to 15 just recorded against his right to the seat so long contested.

For more than three years and at a cost of almost $200,000, the Senate had investigated this Pennsylvania primary and election.

James A. Reed, former Democratic Senator from Missouri, headed the Senate committee which conducted the inquiry into this and other Senatorial campaigns in 1926. The committee recommended against seating either Vare or Frank L. Smith, Republican Senatorial nominee that year in Illinois.

However, both Vare and Smith were elected and they presented themselves to the Senate for membership two years ago this week. For one brief day they sat in the Senate. Then formal action was taken denying each the oath of office pending a settlement of their disputes by the Senate.

Smith was rejected. He resigned and ran again but was defeated for the nomination by Otis Glenn, now serving from Illinois. Vare fought on.

He became ill. Meanwhile his chief foe, Senator Reed, had retired. Recently Vare recovered sufficiently to come before the Senate and defend himself.

In the debate today Senator Shortridge of California, chairman of the Elections Committee, supported Vare, arguing from a constitutional standpoint.

SHORTRIDGE DEFENDS

"When the door is closed to a Senator-elect who comes here with credentials in proper form we trample upon the Constitution of the United States. We ignore its mandate and to that extent we take from the States the constitutionally reserved right to choose their Senators."

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who was associated with the Pepper organization in that contest but who stubbornly has contended for Mr. Vare in his differences with the Senate, issued the following statement after today's vote.

"The action taken was unfair to Pennsylvania and unfair to Mr. Vare. The Senate's action seems to me to be in flagrant disregard of the Constitution and of the rights of the States. I believe that in years to come it will be regretted in the same way that people today regret the high-handed action of the Senate and House in reconstruction days after the Civil War."

The roll call to bar Vare follows:

VOTE ON ROLL CALL

Republicans — Allen, Blaine, Borah, Brookhart, Capper, Couzens, Cutting, Dale, Frazier, Glenn, Hebert, Johnson, Jones, La Follette, McCulloch, McMaster, Metcalf, Moses, Norris, Nye, Patterson, Sackett, Shipstead, Thomas of Idaho, and Vandenberg—24.
Democrats — Ashurst, Barkley, Black, Bratton, Brock, Broussard, Caraway, Connally, Copeland, Dill, Fletcher, George, Glass, Harris, Hawes, Hayden, Hefflin, Morrison, Kendrick, Overman, Pittman, Ransdell, Robinson of Arkansas, Sheppard, Simmons, Swanson, Thomas of Oklahoma, Trammell, Tydings, Wagner, Walsh of Massachusetts, Walsh of Montana, and Wheeler—32.
Farmer-Labor—Shipstead—1.
Total for exclusion—58.
Against exclusion:
Republicans—Bingham, Gillett, Goldsborough, Gould, Grundy, Hale, Hastings, Hatfield, Kean, Keyes, Moses, Oddie, Phipps, Pine, Reed, Schall, Shortridge, Smoot, Townsend, Waterman and Watson—22.
Democrats—None.
Total against exclusion—22.
Of those not voting on the Norris exclusion resolution it was announced that three Democrats were "paired" against it—Steck of Iowa, and Smith, and Blease of South Carolina, and one Republican, Fess of Ohio. The following four were paired for the resolution:
Norbeck, Republican, South Dakota, Harrison and Stephens, Mississippi, and Kendrick, Wyoming, Democrats.
Five others of the Senate's present membership of ninety-three were not recorded on the Norris resolution roll call—Deneen, Illinois, Robinson, Indiana; Herbert, Rhode Island and Goff, West Virginia, Republicans, and King, Utah, Democrat. It was announced Senators King, Robinson and Goff, would have supported the exclusion motion.

as important and valuable in connection with the development of the business of the corporations.

NO CHANGES PLANNED

"It was contemplated that the purchase of the Loew stock would be but a step in the purchase of the assets of that company. Temporary financial arrangements were made for these purchases and it was expected to make permanent financial arrangements promptly. To facilitate the permanent financing at the earliest possible date, the working out of a practical plan for the acquisition of the assets of Loew's, Inc., William Fox, who owns the control of the voting stock of Fox Film and the Fox Theaters corporations, has requested H. L. Stuart of Halsey Stuart & Co., John E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products, Inc., a subsidiary of the Western Electric Company, and William Fox, to act as trustees and they have accepted.

The trustees have retained to assist them, Charles Evans Hughes and his firm, Hughes, Schurman Dwight. All of the properties involved in these arrangements are in excellent financial condition, and are showing the largest earnings in their respective histories.

The combined current earnings of these companies are at the rate of approximately $33,000,000 per annum. It is believed that contemplated changes should effect substantial economies which should effect in turn, substantially increased earnings. No changes are contemplated in the operation of these companies."

BILL WOULD UNIFY FARM AID FUNCTIONS

VASCONCELOS PLANS REVOLT

Supporters Called on to Arm Themselves

Defeated Candidate Confers With Chiefs in Texas

Will Return to Mexico When Ready to Act

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Dec. 6. (AP) A movement to bring before the people of the United States the conditions under which his opponents assert Pascual Ortiz Rubio was declared the winner in the recent Presidential elections in Mexico was started here today upon the arrival of Jose Vasconcelos, defeated candidate.

Vasconcelos came here from El Paso, where he met several of his San Antonio friends and political advisers. He brought with him copies of a manifesto issued earlier in the day by Dr. Francisco Del Rio Canedo, former secretary of the anti-re-electionist candidate.

The manifesto challenged the vote polled by Ortiz Rubio and called on Vasconcelos's supporters to arm themselves in preparation for his return to Mexico.

The defeated candidate plans to remain here for several days, when he will leave for Los Angeles, where he will confer with his west coast representatives.

Funds already are available for a revolution in Mexico to elevate Vasconcelos to the Presidency, Dr. Canedo announced.

In the manifesto, Vasconcelos declares that "there is no other legitimate President of the Republic of Mexico than Jose Vasconcelos. All authorities, including the army, who continue to support the present government of Mexico, will be severely punished. The writer will take oath before the first municipal government legally instituted in any part of the Republic of Mexico and immediately will proceed to organize a legitimate government."

"The man in any part of Mexico," the manifesto says, "who takes command of the forces to overthrow the usurpers will take provisional charge of the situation and will proceed to organize a government according to the constitution.

"The President-elect is now in a foreign land but will return to Mexico to take charge of the government as soon as there are a group of armed men capable of making themselves respected."

law schools. President Borno (of Haiti) appointed a committee of prominent Haitians to inquire into the matter, and it seemed probable for a time that recommendations presented by this committee and accepted by the authorities would adjust the difficulty. Certain political elements, however, took advantage of the situation to foment propaganda against the Haitian administration and endeavored to bring about strikes in other schools and among the government employees. On the 3rd inst. the American High Commissioner, General Russell, reported that the strike movement had spread throughout the country and that it was feared that the Haitian employees of the departments under American treaty officials might become involved.

"On Wednesday the custom house employees at Port-au-Prince abandoned their work after destroying office furniture and mistreating and injuring two American officials. Neither official was seriously hurt. Subsequently some of the employees in the Financial Adviser's office walked out. A disorderly crowd gathered about the Ministry of Finance and entered the Financial Adviser's office, but without threatening the American officials. The situation was regarded as exceedingly serious because of the popular excitement and the dangers of outbreaks by irresponsible elements.

"Yesterday morning a grave situation arose at Aux Cayes, an important coffee port where there are twenty-five Americans. The high commissioner fears that a similar serious situation may break out at other ports. On Wednesday he made a proclamation making effective the condition of martial law, which has existed technically for several years. He reported yesterday, at 6 p.m., from Port-au-Prince that the proclamation had had an excellent effect. The situation in the cities of Port-au-Prince and Cape Haitien at the last reports was quiet."

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—"Francois is coming to me. He has already left Rome and is en route to San Francisco. However, he is still a long distance away and I don't know exactly when he will arrive. But it will be soon."

Thus declared Mrs. Agnes Aurelia Church, eleven-day divorcee of Francois Louis Church, heir to the millions left by the late Elihu Church of baking-soda fame, as she settled herself today at the Hotel Sir Francis Drake to await her announced reunion and remarriage. Fully recovered from her slight indisposition of yesterday, the young woman reiterated her plans for a second honeymoon.

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—Hoover's wisdom in [illegible] confidence by acting ahead of signs of oratory, [illegible] his facts and figures for 60 members of the Pacific Coast Transportation Advisory Committee, meeting at the Palace Hotel. They were addressed by H. J. Gormley, executive president of the American Railway Association, who participated in the railroad conference called by President Hoover, and Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific system.

[illegible] $1,000,000,000 to [illegible] by railroads in 1930, [illegible] will be forthcoming [illegible] for roadway and structures. During the first quarter of the year, he said, there will be expended $212,000,000, during the second quarter $278,000,000, or a total of $490,000,000.

ENORMOUS PROGRAM

During the first six months of 1929, he pointed out, capital expenditures by railroads aggregated $350,000,000.

"The magnitude," he declared, "of the railways' part in the prosperity of the nation is best indicated by the fact they purchased 25 per cent of the total output of bituminous coal, 18 per cent of the fuel oil output, 20 per cent of the timber cut and 16 per cent of the iron and steel products.

"The best possible barometer of the railroads' confidence in the future is indicated by their enormous program of improvements for 1930."

Voicing the same confidence, Shoup predicted that in three months the country will have crossed the bridge from the recent stock market depression to normalcy and greater prosperity.

"Our finances," he said, "are sound; credit is sound. The magnificent effort that has been made at Washington by President Hoover will be productive and will bring business back quickly.

"All we have to do is to keep business and money moving and jobs steady and so shorten the bridge we have to cross as much as possible."

Reports of various commodity committees reflected the same trend, outstanding in which is indication that 1930 will be productive of a greater box-car demand than ever before, a "sure sign of prosperity."

Charles E. Virden was re-elected general chairman; G. A. Leithner, district manager; Norman H. Sloane, secretary, and C. C. Hine, vice-chairman.

BUSINESS PROSPECTS IN CALIFORNIA BRIGHT

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—Despite the recent stock-market depression and unusually light rainfall in Northern and Central California to date this season, business is good in California, steadily grows better and prospects are bright for a banner year in 1930.

With this as their keynote, district directors of the State Chamber of Commerce, agriculture and industry gathered at the St. Francis Hotel today to report on conditions. William May Garland of Los Angeles, president, conducted the gathering.

Outstanding in the reports presented was complete confidence in what the year 1930 will bring with emphasis on the construction program already mapped and constantly being increased. Typical of these was one from the North Coast district which calls for the expenditure of $16,000,000 in excess of that expended in 1929.

Analyzing the reports, Vice-President Koster declared:

"Business is going along soundly; industry maintains a good status; the entire State is progressing and we have every reason to feel confident that progress will continue unabated during 1930."

Reports of drought conditions, according to Director Briggs of the central valley district, "have been greatly exaggerated."

Nine coast counties in the central district will spend more than $12,000,000 on public improvements during 1930, it was reported by Director Knowland of Oakland.

Buying power of California's business enterprises, according to Vice-President Koster, is higher as 1929 ends than at any time in the last nine years.

COUNCIL WILL GUIDE INDUSTRY

Steps Being Taken to Form Permanent Body

Barnes Outlines Salient Points of Parley

He Declares Business Can Get Cheap Money

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Outlines of organization for a possibly permanent council of guidance for American industry were being formulated slowly today after the recess of the National Business Survey Conference begun by President Hoover.

Julius H. Barnes, named as chairman of that gathering, announced his intent to proceed with care and to interview the nation's business leadership generally. Notwithstanding this, the tentative program shaped after close of the session yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce of the United States appeared to call for the creation of a large assembly conference committee representing many business lines. A small executive group acting as a sort of second chamber of counsel is contemplated.

APPOINTMENT SOON

"The committees which the business conference asked the chairman to appoint will be considered this coming week," Barnes said today. "It is quite likely there will be named one larger conference committee based on trade association representation, and a smaller working committee, the members of which will be selected for their individual attainment and their wide knowledge of business affairs. This requires a little thought and study as to their field and their names."

He added that data given in the reports to the conference as to the outlook in individual industry were so important and extensive that much study will be required to complete their analysis. He indicated that additional material also is being assembled.

SALIENT FEATURES

"Certain things stand out concerning the conference itself," Barnes continued. "First, that it presented an extraordinary and comprehensive cross-section of the whole fabric of American business represented by leaders who can speak with authority; second, that in taking up any possible slack in wages and employment an elasticity of new construction and maintenance is the chief factor, maintenance which means new equipment and construction which means not only expansion but improvement of mechanical production and distribution.

"Third, that this implies large capital expenditures for these purposes and this must be provided from industrial treasuries or most largely by borrowings for capital investment.

MONEY OBTAINABLE

"Fourth, these borrowings depend upon the ability to obtain money at reasonable rates and in ready and adequate quantities.

"This situation has developed rapidly in the last few weeks so that this assurance is present. This is shown by the Treasury refunding today of $325,000,000 at 3 1-8 per cent against its last borrowings at 4 7-8 per cent, not long ago. This is probably the most extraordinary change ever recorded in Treasury operations between transactions.

"Fifth, that industry, in being assured of available capital, required then only vision and courage to proceed. These qualities were clearly evidenced in the presentation by industrial leaders yesterday.

CONFIDENCE EXPRESSED

"Manifestly, confidence in the country's future and preparation for the constantly extending business, which inevitably comes from the activities of 120,000,000 energetic people, warrants preparation for ultimately larger business.

"Industrial and business judgment approved immediate expenditures that cheapen production and distribution costs."

Though seventy of the business leaders who assembled yesterday were named by the conference chairman to meet privately after the main gathering had adjourned, the prolongation late into the night of the general session prevented the smaller assembly from being effected.

From the conference membership so designated, it is expected that a large part of the new general committee for the contemplated industrial council will be selected. Practically all the participants to the gathering left Washington today, and further consultation prior to announcement of the organization will be undertaken at private meetings.

Kahn's Memory to be Honored

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—The late Julius Kahn, former Representative from San Francisco and wartime chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, will receive a posthumous award of the Distinguished Service Medal under a resolution to be introduced tomorrow by Representative James of Michigan, Kahn's successor as military chairman.

The resolution states that Kahn's efforts "proved a potential factor in the speedy and successful prosecution of the war" and that the award is to be made because of his "patriotism, vision, loyal support of the government and unselfish devotion to duty in furthering national defense and World War legislation."

Setting Doheny Trial Put Off

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Justice Hitz of the District of Columbia Supreme Court today postponed for one week the setting of a date for the trial of Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil man, on charges of bribing Albert Fall, former Interior Secretary, in obtaining the lease of the Elk Hills (Cal.) naval oil reserve.

Postponement today was granted because Frank Hogan, Doheny's attorney, was absent from the city.

Aviator Tells of Great Speed

ABILENE (Tex.) Dec. 6. (AP)—A speed of 300 miles an hour over a forty-mile course between the city limits of Sweetwater and Abilene, Tex., was claimed today by L. G. Fritz, Abilene pilot.

Fritz yesterday made the forty-five and one-half miles between airports of the two cities in exactly fourteen minutes, a speed of 210 miles an hour from take-off to landing. Airport officials of the two cities vouched for the latter figure. Fritz timed himself on the flight from city limit to city limit.

Paroled Convict Killed in Battle

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 6. (AP)—Robert Belcher, 34 years of age, a paroled convict from California, shot it out with police here last night and paid with his life. He died in a hospital several hours after he had engaged in a gun duel with two patrolmen who sought to arrest him on complaint that he had insulted a former sweetheart in a fit of drunken jealousy.

Two of the gunman's bullets, however, found their marks before he fell. E. E. Alexander, who attempted to befriend the woman, Mrs. Lillian Jeserich, a widow, was shot and dangerously wounded, and J. H. Jenkins, a policeman, was shot in the mouth. Alexander is not expected to recover.

Phone Company Executive Dies

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6. (AP)—Sudden death last night ended the career of John W. Gilkyson, veteran official of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, as he drew up his carriage and pair to be awarded first prize before an audience of 3500 persons at the seventh annual horse show of the St. Francis Riding Club. Gilkyson was 55 years of age. Death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mrs. Richard Gale Brophy

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) Mrs. Richard Gale Brophy, wife of Commander Richard E. Byrd's former aide, today is awaiting overtures by her husband, who has arrived in this city from Omaha, Neb., where he was discovered working on a newspaper, after he had left a note in which he declared he intended to commit suicide.

Brophy upon his arrival here yesterday said:

"I've come to try to settle my personal affairs. I want to right everything that's wrong."

NEW REBELLION FACED IN CHINA

Mutiny of Soldiers Grows to Grave Proportions

Nanking Under Martial Law as Result of Situation

Nationalist Troops Advance Against Rebel Forces

SHANGHAI, Dec. 6. (AP)—The mutiny, Tuesday of several thousand Nationalist government soldiers at Pukow has grown into a rebellion in several provinces of Central China, the declared objects being the overthrow of the government and its president, Chiang Kai-shek. Other rebels continue to threaten Canton, chief city of South China.

Nanking, China's capital, was placed under martial law tonight to prevent untoward developments while the government troops marched northward to meet rebel forces estimated at 20,000, reported moving on the capital from their base at Pengpu, eighty miles distant.

A short way beyond Wuyi, only thirty-five miles north of Nanking, 15,000 government troops clashed with the rebel advance, the loyalists suffering sharp defeat. Apparently halted by this reverse, the Nationalists were reported to be entrenching at Wuyi.

To meet the threat against Nanking, the Nationalist government ordered reinforcements from other areas before taking the offensive.

IN THE LONG BEACH REGATTA and the MACKAY TROPHY RACE (First Heat)

H. G. Ferguson, record holder of national fame, won at Long Beach with Standard Oil products.

'STANDARD' PRODUCTS LED THE PACK!

RED CROWN Aviation Gasoline and MOBILOIL "B"

Brought in 6 Out of 9 "Firsts" 19 Out of 27 Place Winners

Where outboard races are run on the Pacific Coast and champion pilots meet—you'll see Standard Oil products riding with the winners! Now, in the Long Beach Regatta and the first heat of the Mackay Trophy Race at Long Beach (November 30-December 1)—Red Crown Aviation Gasoline and Mobiloil B again brought in the lion's share of the prizes.

In the Long Beach Regatta

H. G. FERGUSON, in "Blue Streak," took "First" in Class B, Division 2, with Red Crown Aviation Gasoline and Mobiloil B; "Second" in Class C, Division 2, and "First" again in Class D, Division 2.

In Class B, Division 1, "Ludington 18," with DICK FROST aboard, came in with Red Crown Aviation Gasoline and Mobiloil B to take second place. Standard Ethyl and Mobiloil B brought BOB BROWN'S "Golden Bear II" home to show for a third.

Again Red Crown Aviation Gasoline and Mobiloil B came through to give BILL LYON a "Second" in the Class B, Division 2, event, and W. H. WHEELER a "Third" in Class C, Division 2.

In the Class C, Division 1, race, the same reliable products put WM. GERARD'S "Hell Bent" over the line in first place and brought DON MILLER in "Black Ace" right along to take third prize.

Then Red Crown Aviation Gasoline and Mobiloil B gave two "Firsts" to FRED ASHBRIDGE—one in the Run-about Race (Class E)—another in the Special Run-about Surfboard Race—and third place in both these events to JOE McQUILKEN. JAKE DUNNAL and CHARLES HOLT finished this day of victories for Standard Oil products, Jake by taking a "Second" (Class D, Division 2)—Holt by placing third in Class B, Division 2, and Class D, Division 2. Standard Oil products were "in the money" all the way and their record of bringing in 19 out of 27 place winners is something to talk about!

In the Mackay Trophy Race

AL THOMPSON in "Black Maria"—holder of the Lorimer Trophy—scored 400 points with Red Crown Aviation Gasoline and Mobiloil B to lead the list. And the same dependable motor products gave "Blue Streak" and H. G. FERGUSON third place with 324 points.

Again Standard Oil products were picked to win and did!

Long Fight for Brother's Sanity Detailed

Breach With Stanley's Wife Shown by Letters

Specialist in Witness Box Defends Treatment

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—Harold F. McCormick and Mrs. Emmons Blaine of Chicago related the inside story of their twenty-three-year effort to bring their afflicted brother, Stanley McCormick, back to a sound mind, as witnesses today before Superior Judge William Dehy.

Brother and sister bared previously untold stories of events in the lives of the harvester company heir, starting with Stanley McCormick's mental seizure in 1906 and leading up through the latter's asserted improvement under Dr. Edward Kempf from July, 1927, to the present.

Brother and sister gave their testimony in an effort to retain Dr. Kempf in charge of their brother's treatment and in opposition to Mrs. Stanley McCormick's effort to oust them as coguardians of Stanley's personal welfare and his $50,000,000 estate.

PATHOS ON STAND

There were touches of pathos in the testimony of each. Harold McCormick told of escorting his mother, the late Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Sr., to a hill one-fourth of a mile distant from the estate near where Stanley McCormick is secluded, so that the mother could get a glimpse of her afflicted son through field glasses.

He gave it as his opinion that Stanley's mind always has been unimpaired, but there has been an interruption between the processes of his mind and the expression of his thoughts. There has been a tremendous mental conflict. "Under Dr. Kempf, my brother has achieved mental repose, hope, peace of mind and a new life and it is my opinion that under Dr. Kempf he is ever so much better. I earnestly hope that the treatments with Dr. Kempf shall continue."

Mrs. Blaine's stay in the witness box was marked by the reading of considerable correspondence exchanged between herself, her brothers, Harold and Cyrus McCormick, Jr., and Mrs. Katherine Dexter McCormick, wife of the man with the mental ailment.

BREACH RELATED

During her testimony the start of the breach between the witness and her brothers and the wife was related. The breach began in the autumn of 1927, about four months after Dr. Kempf was installed in charge of the attempted mental rehabilitation of Stanley McCormick and was marked by a change in the attitude of Mrs. Katherine McCormick.

According to Mrs. Blaine's testimony, the breach widened in spite of telegrams, letters and cables exchanged between the wife and the brothers and sisters and grew until the two factions had to exchange their communications through attorneys.

The rift took its start with Mrs. Katharine McCormick's desire to have Dr. R. G. Hoskins of Boston administer endocrine gland tests and treatment to her husband and Dr. Kempf's declination to work with Dr. Hoskins. One letter showed that Dr. Kempf alluded to Dr. Hoskins as "unfriendly" and "unethical."

Dr. Kempf, himself, took the stand late this afternoon and was dismissed by Newton D. Baker, chief counsel for the suing wife, without a question.

KEMPF EXPLAINS

Dr. Kempf testified, "My work is wholly directed to the treating of mental diseases caused by emotional conditions. I do not treat mental diseases caused by organic conditions. I think there is very decided improvement in Stanley McCormick since I took charge."

He followed this with the prediction "that his improvement in the last year has been so constant that I think there is every reason to expect continued improvement. If a younger man, I would feel sure. With a man of his years, however, one cannot be exactly certain what to expect."

Mrs. McCormick's counsel dismissed the doctor, after he made his prediction.

Other witnesses included Dr. Nathaniel Brush, resident physician in charge of Stanley McCormick's [illegible] who corroborated the work of Dr. Kempf and said: "Since June, 1927, there has been a marked improvement in Stanley's condition."

Two Rail Line Permits Given for Southwest

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Authority for the Texas-New Mexico Railway to construct seventy miles of line from its terminus on the Texas-New Mexico boundary to Lovington in Lea county, New Mexico, was granted today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission also permitted the South Plains and Santa Fe Railroad to extend its lines from Seagraves in Gaines county, Texas, to Lovington, forty-six miles. Application for construction of a branch line from Lovington south for about forty-three miles was denied.

The Texas-New Mexico, a subsidiary of the Texas and Pacific, filed its application first, estimating cost at $1,625,000. Later the South Plains application was filed. Its branch, which was denied approval, would parallel closely the construction proposed by the other line.

FORT NAMED FOR WARREN

Hoover Suggested Cheyenne Army Post Bear Name of Late Wyoming Senate Veteran

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Upon the suggestion of President Hoover, Acting Secretary of War Hurley has directed that the name of Fort D. A. Russell at Cheyenne, Wyo., be changed to Fort Francis E. Warren, in honor of the late Senator Warren of Wyoming.

Hurley also directed that the name Fort D. A. Russell be given to Camp Marfa at Marfa, Tex.

The President's desire was communicated to the acting Secretary of War in the following:

"Dear Mr. Secretary:

"I have a feeling that it would be a fine tribute to the late Senator Francis E. Warren if the military post at Cheyenne in which he was so long interested, could be renamed for him. In doing so it would be desirable to select some post that would properly commemorate the name of Gen. D. A. Russell, whose distinguished service should ever be before our people.

"I would be glad if you could make arrangements that would meet with this suggestion.

"Yours faithfully,

[Signed] "HERBERT HOOVER."

Gen. Russell, whose service was mentioned by the President, served in various campaigns against the Indians in Oregon, California and Washington until 1861, when he was ordered to the defense of Washington, D. C. He took part in various campaigns of the Civil War and was mortally wounded at Winchester, December 19, 1864, and was brevetted a major-general on the field of battle.

Camp Marfa, with its renaming as Fort D. A. Russell, will become a permanent army post.

TAX SLASH BILL BEFORE SENATE

Approval Early in Week for Hoover Measure Seen

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Facing an uncertain future in the tariff-embattled Senate, the $160,000,000 tax-reduction resolution will be considered tomorrow by the Senate Finance Committee with a view to reporting approval of it early next week.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican leader, announced tonight that if the resolution gets before the Senate next week he will favor immediate consideration. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Democratic spokesman in revenue legislation, has contended the tax cut must await a decision first by the Senate on the tariff.

Leaders of the various factions in the Senate will determine sentiment over the week-end recess on the procedure for the measures.

BORDER CLOSED TO JOB HOLDERS

Americans Working in Mexico Must Reside There

MEXICALI, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) Americans employed in this city and residing on the American side of the line must move to Lower California within thirty days, according to an ultimatum issued by the American immigration office here today.

Notice was given early last summer that this ruling was to be put into effect, but protests from both Americans and Mexicans resulted in a postponement of the effective date while negotiations were carried on with the Mexico City authorities in an effort to have the rule modified. According to today's announcement, the heads of business concerns operated in Mexicali will not be affected. The rule applies only to employees, it was stated.

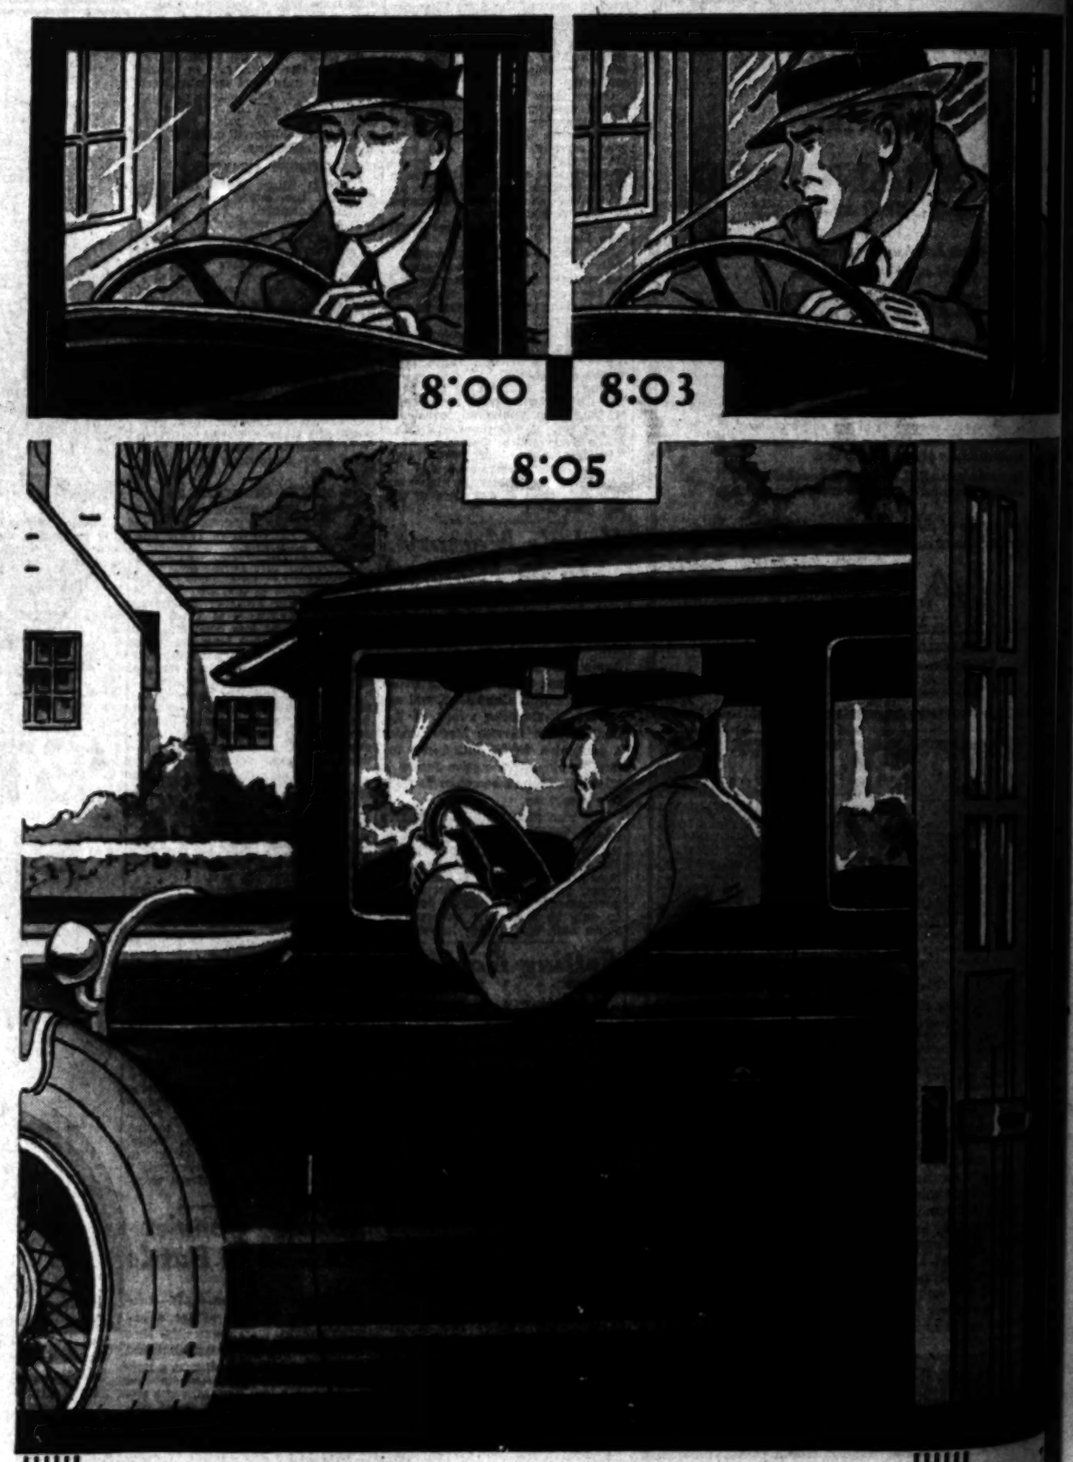
"WET" GASOLINE

..what an infernal nuisance on a cold morning



NOT wet with water—just simply loaded with too-heavy fractions of petroleum—that's "wet" gasoline. It can't vaporize in a cold engine.

You "choke it" until the motor gurgles. And finally you go missing and spitting and jerking down the street.

Why tolerate it? Why accept "winter grades" of "wet" gasoline any more than summer grades?

There is a "dry" gas—one that starts on half choke and warms up the balkiest motor in half a moment. And the best part about Shell 400, this quick starting "dry" gas, is that it cuts down your oil dilution.

Drive with it a thousand miles and you'll find your oil has very little gasoline in it—not over 10%. But worry through a thousand miles on "wet" gasoline and you'll likely find 40% or even 50% crankcase dilution—caused by gasoline running down the cylinder walls into the oil.

Select a convenient yellow and red Shell pump. Fill with Shell 400 when your tank is low—and see how much quicker and easier you get started the following morning.

BLOW YOUR BREATH ON A COLD MIRROR

. . . that's what happens to "wet" gasoline in a cold motor—it condenses in droplets on the cylinder walls. "Dry" gas, on the other hand, stays vaporized better and therefore burns more cleanly

Where Famous Writer Was Born

FLORIDA (Mo.) Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—The rude hut in which Samuel Langhorne Clemens, better known as Mark Twain, was born has been saved for posterity by the intervention of M. A. Violette, an old-time Florida resident.

Owners of the property on which it has stood for more than a century were about to tear it down to make room for a new house when Violette heard about it and bought the two-room cabin. He has moved it to his own property until a site in the Mark Twain State Park near by can be prepared. There it will serve as a museum for mementoes of the author.

Savant Describes Difficult Task Set by Science

Caltech Reflector to Outdo Previous Achievement

Quartz to be Material Used in Gigantic Disc

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—Every problem of the astronomer will be more easily reckoned with by means of the superb telescope that is to be built by the California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, Dr. Elihu Thomson, world-renowned scientist, said in an address here tonight. He spoke amidst historic surroundings before the American Philosophical Society in its own hall, now more than 140 years old and once graced by the membership of Benjamin Franklin. The talk, "Why the 200-inch Telescope," was radioed from many cities of the land by N.B.C.

"It may lead," Dr. Thomson said in talking of the mammoth machine, "to more complete knowledge of planets in our own system and will assist greatly in investigation of other heavenly bodies. It may help to solve some of the problems connected with that most interesting neighbor of ours, the planet Mars, about which we can form hypotheses with but little chance, thus far, of confirming or denying their validity. The major advantage may be summed up in the term 'greater and more accurate space penetration.'"

THIRTY YEARS' TESTS

Dr. Thomson is director of the General Electric Company research laboratory, Lynn, Mass., which bears his name. About thirty years ago he performed his first experiments with quartz in search of something better than glass for astronomical reflectors, because glass so readily is distorted by temperature variations from the standard necessary for such work. Now his laboratory is to fabricate the 200-inch reflector that is to make the Southern California machine excel by several times the world's present greatest telescope, also in Pasadena.

"This reflector," Dr. Thomson said, "will have to include in it two pioneer characteristics. The first, its great size, is far beyond anything before contemplated. It will be twice the diameter of the existing 100-inch mirror at Mt. Wilson and will have, therefore, four times the surface and be very much thicker. It may be six to eight times the weight of the glass mirror at Mt. Wilson, or twenty-five to thirty tons. The second and more important pioneer character is in the material used for the mirror.

MIRROR NOT GLASS

"It is not to be of glass, as in the most recently constructed instruments of large size. It is very difficult to melt the glass, get it uniform and cast it, with the subsequent slow cooling and annealing through months of time, and avoid its splitting or fracturing by uneven cooling or having within it uneven structure. It is far more difficult to shape glass to the accurate figures demanded, as the building of the 100-inch mirror showed clearly. It is even difficult to use, on account of the deformity it undergoes by changes of external temperature, disturbing the direction of the light reflected from parts of its surface and spoiling its performance.

"We shall use fused silica or quartz, melted in an electric furnace at more than 3000 deg. Fahr. renheit. The method we are using on a small scale with great success consists in first melting a mass of good clean quartz sand in a circular mold and obtaining thereby a disk. This is, indeed, fused quartz, but full of tiny bubbles, which tend to make it lighter, but the melted sand has all the desirable properties of the solid fused quartz itself.

QUARTZ'S PROPERTY

"The most striking and important of those desirable properties is that it is a rigid, hard material, almost expansionless by change of temperature. A bar of it a little over a yard long, if raised from ordinary room temperature to about 1800 deg. Fahr. (a very bright heat near the melting point of gold) expands only about one-fiftieth of an inch. Considering this great range of 1800 deg. Fahr. it can well be understood that under ordinary temperature changes fused quartz practically does not expand or contract.

Bandits Kill and Rob Messenger

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6. (AP)—Cameron Cook, a messenger for the Bank of Philadelphia and Trust Company, was shot to death today by three men who seized his bank bag containing, it is estimated, $34,000 in cash and checks. The bandits escaped.

Cook, who was about 50 years of age, had stepped out of a branch postoffice at Seventeenth and French streets in the northern part of the city when a man leaped from an automobile and pressed a pistol against him and seized the bag. Two other men remained in the car.

The scene of the shooting was across the street from a public school and hundreds of the children heard the shot.

SECOND BLAST HURTS NINE IN MUNHALL, PA.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6. (AP)—Nine persons were injured today in an explosion near the scene of the blast that killed five, injured more than a score of others, and wrecked the Postoffice yesterday at Munhall, a suburb. None of those hurt today is in a critical condition, the Homestead Hospital reports. The second explosion, like that of yesterday, was blamed unofficially on gas leakage.

RAIL STRIKE CALLED OFF

Best Bread NOW A Fact

NATURAL flavor wins new thousands daily. Shatters old idea that bread is much alike. Read about the miracle of baking.

NOW you can taste and see the amazing difference in bread. Mothers all over the city marvel as they compare the superior natural flavor of Highland bread and the bleached flavor of ordinary bread.

Do this today. Break in half a slice of the bread you are now serving. Take out the heart of the slice and taste. Do the same with a slice of Highland bread. You, too, will be surprised and delighted with the rich natural goodness of Highland bread compared to the bleached flavor of other bread.

This fair comparison has inspired thousands of mothers to change to Highland bread. Children are healthier and happier. Food costs are sharply reduced. Natural flavor wins.

Get this most-talked-of bread from your nearest grocer now. Look for the gay Scotch piper on the wrapper. See the name Mack's Highland bread. The only natural bread.

All These Benefits Can Be Yours

The natural wheat hearts that give Highland bread its richer flavor bring you and your family many benefits.

It is proved that Highland bread excels in food value every other food and combination of foods for the price.

Precise tests prove Highland bread more digestible than so-called health breads.

Leading authorities state that the life-giving protein of this better bread is more efficient for child growth than the protein of such worthy foods as eggs and milk.

They point out that Highland bread contains every essential of life . . . offers more than half the nourishment children need daily for healthy happy growth.

All this generous goodness is quickly helpful because Highland bread is easily digestible. Our own blending method makes this bread almost 95% quickly digestible food value.

Our own Scotch Twist makes slices of Highland bread as fluffy and enticing as angel food.

Children enjoy this natural bread. Best of all, they can help themselves to health, for each loaf is ready cut into even, tender slices.

You will quickly find that more of this better bread is enjoyed in your home. Less of expensive foods will be served. Thus, food costs are sharply reduced.

Now, frankly, have you ever known of bread bringing so many really welcome benefits? It took us twelve long years to perfect Highland bread. It will take you but a moment to discover how truly perfect it is. Won't you call your nearest grocer now? Just ask for Mack's Highland bread.

MACDONALD'S SUCCESS TOLD

British Prime Minister's Reign Half-Year Old

Even Opponents Admit Its Record "Rather Good"

Accomplishments of Labor Government Listed

(Copyright, 1929, by New York Times)

LONDON, Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—The MacDonald government has been in power six months today and even its opponents admit its record has been rather good. They probably would rather put it "rather good so far," it being patent that the signal accomplishments of the Labor Ministry have been in the foreign field.

Over and above all there was the triumphant visit of Mr. MacDonald to President Hoover and then there was Philip Snowden's success at The Hague reparations conference, not to mention other accomplishments like the resumption of diplomatic relations with Russia on the wisdom of which there is somewhat less unanimity. And naturally, with the approach of the five-power naval conference, the government is looking forward to more triumphs.

WORK STILL AHEAD

In the domestic field it remains true that the ministry has yet to accomplish most of what it promised. Progress in attacking the unemployment problem must be said still not to be concrete and, of course, there remains the dreadful difficulty of accommodating the plans for further social legislation with the budget, which comes down to the old problem of how to spend more money without asking the taxpayers for a greater contribution. The problem promises to call for all the skill of the skillful Mr. Snowden.

The government celebrated its first half-year today by quelling what promised, last evening, to be a serious revolt in the ranks of its own supporters. The labor-union elements demanded in the House of Commons changes in the dole bill which would have added some $20,000,000 to its cost and also the elimination of provisions which would have made it slightly more difficult for an applicant to obtain the dole. At a meeting of the Parliamentary forces, Mr. Snowden this afternoon won his case against the additional cost, but it is apparent the government will have to back down on the clause which would have made an applicant for the dole explain how hard he had tried to get a job before he could get on the dole list.

HAVING HIS TROUBLES

But this incident has served to bring into the limelight the difficulties the government has with those in its own ranks, who expected too much from the promises made in last May's elections. It is, of course, no secret that the Prime Minister is having his troubles with some of his ministers who think their pet projects should get further up on the agenda.

It may prove that the real period of trial for the government will come with the budget debate, which, however, is still some months away. The British public is not in a humor to support much more taxation. And, after all, Socialists must admit they often criticised Winston Churchill for not reducing taxes. What position may they be in if they have to ask for more revenue? While it is true the government stands to profit largely from a success in the naval conference, even that will not change the fact that the ministry faces many domestic difficulties in its second six months.

MEXICO AIDS UNIONISTS IN RAIL STRIKE

Troops on Guard to Keep Company from Putting Strike Breakers to Work

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6. (AP)—Troops tonight guarded the stations and other properties of the Mexican Railway, a British-owned line connecting the capital with the important port of Vera Cruz, to make sure that no strike breakers were put to work and that order was preserved.

Many of the railway workers went out on strike this noon. Tonight the telegraph operators gave notice that they would join the strike. The company stated that enough employees remained loyal to keep up an emergency service and it appeared that regular service will be maintained between Vera Cruz and this city over the Interoceanic line, which is part of the National Railways system.

In preventing the hiring of strike breakers the government has taken the stand that the workers have a right to strike and that the company is not justified in filling their places with nonunion men. The district arbitration board will take a vote of the employees and if the majority support the strike movement it will be declared legal, otherwise the government support will be withdrawn.

The Chamber of Deputies last night adopted a resolution which declared the Mexican Railway always had been an enemy of the Mexican people, of Mexico and of the revolution and giving the chamber's full approval to the strike.

Veteran Boston Educator Dies

BROOKLINE (Mass.) Dec. 6. (AP) William Fairfield Warren, president-emeritus of Boston University, died at his home here tonight in his ninety-sixth year. He was taken ill with pneumonia a few days ago.

Dr. Warren was the first president of Boston University and gave thirty years of active service to that institution. He was born in Williamsburg and was graduated from Wesleyan University. In 1853 he established a classical school at Mobile, Ala. Later he studied at Andover Theological Seminary and held pastorates in Wilraham and Boston.

ROISTERER CONVICTED OF MURDER

Death Penalty Called for in Case of Model Husband Who Got Drunk at Party

WHEATON (Ill.) Dec. 6. (AP)—John Preston, 28 years of age, who testified he could remember nothing of the wild party that ended in the death by strangulation of Agnes Johnson October 12, last, was convicted of her murder, a verdict calling for the death penalty.

Counsel for Preston had not sought acquittal, but asked the jury to consider Preston's condition as mitigation. Preston asserted he had drunk so much liquor he had no knowledge of what happened.

Miss Johnson was strangled as she fought against Preston's advances. Another girl, Matilda Murphy, escaped.

Preston is married, and before his crime had been known as a model husband.

POLISH DIET VOTE TURNS OUT CABINET

Premier and Minister of Labor Not Expected to Get Recall to Office

WARSAW, Dec. 6. (AP)—The government went down in a decisive defeat tonight when the Diet sustained a motion of lack of confidence by a vote of 246 to 130.

The vote followed upon a lengthy debate in which Premier Switalsky, four of his Ministers and numerous deputies participated. Announcement of the vote was received with tremendous cheering by the opposition. It is understood that the government will resign and will be reconstructed in a manner calculated to appease the opposition. It is generally understood that the Premier and Minister of Labor will not be included in the new Cabinet.

The Diet opened yesterday more than a month behind schedule. Speaker Daszynski had declined to open the session when it assembled on October 31, last, because Marshal Pilsudski, Minister of War, had appeared in Parliament attended by several officers of the army. It was charged that their presence was intended to intimidate the Deputies.

During November President Moscicki attempted to make peace between the marshal and the speaker. In reopening the Diet yesterday Daszynski reviewed the events of October 31. Today Communists offered a motion of nonconfidence in the speaker.

Head of Dollar Ship Line Held for Port Quiz

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (AP)—The New York Herald Tribune tomorrow will say that baggage of R. Stanley Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship Company, who arrived on the liner Leviathan today, was held by customs officials pending an inquiry concerning $3700 worth of merchandise the officials charge was undeclared.

Dollar, who was accompanied by Mrs. Dollar and their two children, was able by means of a Treasury Department "immediate attention" order to obtain inspection of his baggage within two minutes after he disembarked. But he and his family were detained at the pier for three hours while three Treasury Department special agents searched the baggage.

Slaying Found Manslaughter

RED BLUFF, Dec. 6. (AP)—After deliberating three hours a Superior Court jury here tonight found Mrs. Alma Vera Carrillo, 38 years of age, guilty of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of her husband, Rosalia, 44, Yaqui Indian, in a quarrel over a bottle of wine October 2, last. It was Mrs. Carrillo's second trial, the jury having disagreed in the first.

Ortiz Rubio at Arkansas Spa

WASTAGE IN OIL FIELDS CURBED

Dutch Shell Head Acclaims Progress Made

California Leads Way for Producers, He Says

Conservation of Low Cost Product Given Praise

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) Sir Henri Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch Shell Oil group, returned from the Chicago meeting of the American Petroleum Institute today imbued with a feeling of optimism regarding the progress he thinks the American oil industry has made in handling the problem of overproduction.

Sir Henri, who sailed this evening for England, pointed out that a large idea cannot be translated into accomplishment in a short period but added that in his opinion the conservation movement is rapidly gaining momentum.

OPTIMIST ALL ROUND

"I am optimistic by nature but I am also optimistic on the outlook for the oil industry because of the enormous strides toward conservation made by the American oil industry since I was here last March," he said.

"You know a big idea takes a long time to accomplish. The progress it makes in its early stages seems slow but it is moving all the time.

"From what I experienced in my visit with oil men in Chicago I am convinced that the movement of American oil industry toward real conservation is rapidly gaining momentum.

CALIFORNIA, NATURALLY

"The biggest accomplishment has been in California where excess production and accompanying unnecessary losses of natural gas were very large. California operators have done the greatest service to the oil industry at large.

"Other sections have done their share, of course, but a man who can produce the cheapest, as is the case of California's flush fields, and yet lead the way in real conservation measures is far more courageous than the man who restricts overproduction in high-cost producing fields."

NEW PARLEY ARRANGED IN MANCHURIA

Russian Envoy Instructed to Resume Negotiations With China Over Railway

MOSCOW, Dec. 6. (AP)—Maxim Litvinoff, acting Commissar of Foreign Affairs, tonight telegraphed Gov. Chang Hsueh-liang of Manchuria that M. Simanovsky, agent of the Foreign Office, had been instructed to meet the Mukden representative, Tsai Yun-sheng, for further negotiations for peaceful settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute.

Earlier the soviet government received a message from Gov. Chang confirming the results of the conference between Tsai and Simanovsky at Nikolsk-Ussurisky, where an agreement was reached to restore the status quo ante with the replacement of two high railway officials on each side to which objection had been made.

The Governor said that Tsai had been provided with official credentials to continue the negotiations and that he will start at once for the border to meet the soviet representative.

Edsel Ford's Yacht Wreck Brings Death

WOODS HOLE (Mass.) Dec. 6. (Exclusive)—One man lost his life today as a result of the wreck of Edsel Ford's new $400,000 yacht Sialia which piled up on a ledge just westward of Hen and Chickens Reef at the entrance to Buzzard's Bay in the pitch black of a blustery night just after 1 o'clock this morning.

Despite heavy seas, Coast Guardsmen took off seventeen men comprising passengers and crew of the new yacht at dawn, but Capt. Albert Berger, a former Coast Guardsman and skipper of the New Bedford power boat Rhode Island, was drowned this afternoon when the row boat from which he was trying to land an insurance official on the wreck was dashed to splinters against the 190-ton yacht's steel side.

Prince Plays Role of Pacifier

LONDON, Dec. 6. (AP)—The Prince of Wales has made peace and the boy who was suspended from Leyton High School by the headmaster for having asked his highness for his autograph will go back to school.

The Prince wrote a letter to Lawrence Gill, the schoolboy's father, which Gill said contained some good advice upon which he acted.

Gill said the letter was marked private and he therefore declined to allow its publication.

GAMBLING PERMITTED FOR SWEET CHARITY

NOGALES (Ariz.) Dec. 6. (AP)—A. C. Villasenor, Mayor of Nogales, Son., announced today that a permit to operate gambling games had been issued to the Charities Association of Nogales. The permit is valid for forty-eight hours, and will be used over the week-end. He denied that commercial gambling, abolished here three years ago, will be permitted. The permit calls for one roulette wheel only. No card games or other devices will be permitted.

GAIN OF IMPORT ITEM FORECAST

Trade in Fertilizer Adds to Harbor Traffic

Importer Says Use Grows on Southland Farms

Nitrogen Figures for 1929 Over 23,000 Tons

BY WAYNE B. CAVE

Another bulk commodity to help play its part in the upbuilding of the Southland is fertilizer, but instead of its passing out, it is passing in from foreign ports and in thousands of tons, according to Wilson Meyer of Wilson & George Meyer & Co., an offshoot of one of the oldest shipping houses in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Meyer came in from Hawaii on the Lasco liner City of Honolulu yesterday, after he completed new contracts for a lot more new business from Germany.

It is to the mainland, however, and particularly Southern California that Meyer is directing the bulk of his importations, shipments which in 1928 totaled 18,000 tons of synthetic nitrogen, manufactured from the air; and this year will exceed 23,000 tons.

"That is in addition to sulphate of potash, also from Germany. California's consumption of which this year will exceed 10,000 tons," he declared.

"The bulk of both classes of fertilizer are used in citrus orchards, so it naturally comes here."

Although his company deals in many other kinds of industrial and agricultural chemicals, the Los Angeles crop feature of it has become so important the firm shortly will establish branch headquarters here, he said.

The firm, as did its parent body for seventy-five years, always charters ships, never operates its own. Lines now used mostly to bring the products from Germany to Los Angeles are the Hamburg American, North German Lloyd and the Swedish-owned Johnson Line transports direct to Hawaii.

SLUMP IN SHIPPING TRAFFIC REPORTED

Santa Claus has lost the address of intercoastal steamship lines, according to several local representatives, and there's nothing but next year to look forward to. In other words, they say, the eastbound movement, which for months has been consistently less than last year, is now matched by a pronounced drop in the westbound business as well.

Not to be outdone, solicitors of freight for lines plying between this coast and Gulf ports, insist their plight is the worst, averring the year 1925 will show materially less trade than 1928. Topping off the situation is the asserted sluggish movement of lumber eastward.

On the other hand, optimists see shippers influenced by the new detention barring split deliveries westbound, and then the usual inventory period, and preference to delay new business until next year, are declared factors.

Lasco's flagship City of Los Angeles is due tomorrow, completing her second special cruise around Central and South America, with 260 passengers and an equally large crew. She will undergo improvements costing $100,000, before she resumes her run to Hawaii January 2, next. An outdoor swimming pool will be one addition, while another will give the dining saloon a seating capacity 100 greater.

Today will see the company's combination passenger and freight steamer Diamond Head depart with her passenger capacity, sixteen, and heavy freight, including sixteen tons of auto bumpers, the final shipment for the islands.

Yesterday witnessed the line's City of Honolulu arrival from Honolulu with 222 passengers and thousands of tons of canned pineapples, coffee and island sugar. Among the travelers were Eska Wilson, head of the Jefferson Hawaiian Films, Inc., which just finished its first picture with a Hawaiian background, starring Hugh Allan and Miss Gladys McConnell, also aboard. Returning also were Dr. Royal Chapman, entomologist of the University of Minnesota; J. F. Comer, former Governor of Alabama; Miss Dusolina Giannini, soprano, on a world tour; Dr. John Stuart, university professor at Peiping, China; Byron Harvey, president of the Fred Harvey Dining-Room and Car System, and son Stewart; also Horace Hunter, publisher of Toronto, Can.

The liner was in almost continuous fog en route from Hawaii, and one day out of Los Angeles encountered such a rain it was impossible to see more than a few ships' lengths.

Out for the Orient / today, the Bordeaux Maru of the "K" Line will lift 4000 tons of old newspapers, cotton and borax from the docks of General Steamship Corporation. Arriving here today the British motorship Silveroak will drop 1500 tons of rubber, pig iron and coffee from the Dutch East Indies, while the Silverpine is due the 11th inst. to load cotton for the Orient.

Sustaining the line's reputation, Panama Mail's passenger steamer Guatemala will depart at 5 p.m. today for Central America and New York with a capacity cargo and with many tons waiting on the dock for want of space. She also will carry out several score passengers.

THE SON OF TARZAN

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

The beginning of the ape's trip back to jungle freedom was set for the very day on which the future Lord Greystoke was to return to school. Generously supplied with money, he had seemingly busied himself preparing for the event, and had invested in many strange purchases, which he managed to pack, undetected. With his parents' permission, he had gone for a last farewell with Akut, and here he was soon earnestly pleading with old Paulvitch.

"Let me take the ape to Dover," he said. "I can do it and still arrive at my school in time. No one will be any the wiser. It will save you the tiresome journey, no harm will be done, and I will have an extra day with my jungle friend before I lose him forever." The wad of bills he placed in the Russian's hand was almost unnecessary, for the plan fitted perfectly into that which the wicked Paulvitch had in his own devilish brain.

That afternoon Lord and Lady Greystoke bade their son goodby and saw him safely settled in a first-class compartment of the railway carriage that would set him down at Eton in a few hours. Little did they realize then that many years were to elapse and strange things happen before, if ever, they were to see him again! When they had left him, the boy gathered his bags, left the train and drove directly to the Russian's address.

It was dusk when he arrived. He found Paulvitch awaiting him—pacing the floor nervously. The ape was tied with a stout rope to the bedpost. It was the first time the boy had seen the animal secured. He looked questioningly at the Russian. The man mumbled some excuse. Another rope was in the villain's hand; with a noose in its end. The man's pockmarked face worked horribly as he talked to himself. His actions made the lad uneasy.

DIEGEL TRIMS HAGEN; MEETS FARRELL TODAY

MEETS THE P.G.A. CHAMP IN FINALS TODAY

None other than the Beau Brummel of the links, smiling Johnny Farrell, who by downing Al Watrous, 6 and 5, in the semifinals yesterday, qualified to meet Mr. Leo Diegel of Agua Caliente. Diegel is the current king, and in defeating Mr. Walter Hagen, 3 and 2, in the lower half of the draw cleared a tough hurdle in the defense of his crown. The boys play 36 holes in the finals today, the first round starting at 9:30 this morning. (Photo by Paul Strite, Times staff photographer)

In his own inimitable manner—with a magic wand in place of a putter—"Terrific!" Frankie Finishes Up Rival in Seventh Round of Main Bout at Hollywood

Frankie Campbell, San Francisco knockout sensation, chalked up his sixth consecutive kayoe at Tony Stabineau's expense last night in the main event of the Hollywood American Legion fight show by putting the huge Stabineau out cold in the seventh round.

FRANKIE CAMPBELL

Campbell had Stabineau groggy most of the affair, the fans expecting a kayoe in the first round when a terrific left hand to the chin had Tony in a bad way. Stabineau took a nine count in the second round, managed to keep off the canvas in the third and the bell saved him in the fourth after he had again been on the floor for another nine count. Campbell switched

DIEGEL'S WISE CRACKS GIVE GOLF FANS LAUGH

BY BRAVEN DYER

Walter Hagen teed off at Hillcrest this afternoon the crowd got quite a laugh out of the introductions as made by Miss Fay Wray, the pulchritudinous motion-picture star. Everybody laughed and waited for half an hour until Diegel finally appeared.

Hagen was now arriving, as usual. Leo didn't seem to mind the wait, even at Walter when he chirped: "Anybody want to play a game of bridge." That was before Hagen appeared.

Diegel, incidentally, is a fine bridge player, if anybody is looking for tough competition.

To get back to Miss Wray—after introducing Diegel she turned to one side and inquired, so all might hear: "Is Mr. Hagen here." That may have been done unconsciously, but Walter, who was standing within fifteen feet of the beautiful Fay, blushed through his deep tan.

The crowd laughed again when Miss Wray became slightly tongue-tied and introduced Hagen as "the British opium champion." Everybody knew it was only a slip, but the laughs were on Miss Wray.

Talk about confidence—Diegel certainly has it. The story was going the rounds yesterday that

Farrell to Give Opponent Hard Fight Today

BY WALTER HAGEN
British Open Champion
(Copyright, 1929, by North American Newspaper Alliance.)

HILLCREST COUNTRY CLUB (Los Angeles, Cal.) Dec. 6.—Leo Diegel, the champion, played like one all day today and left me standing on the short sixteenth green this afternoon with no place to go but home, or I should say back to the hotel. Leo and I had a great match which gave the largest gallery I have ever seen in Southern California many thrills and he beat me, 3 and 2.

WALTER HAGEN

To sum it up quickly Leo outputted me on the Hillcrest greens and for this he won his way into the finals of the championship where tomorrow he will meet Johnny Farrell in the finals. Johnny defeated Al Watrous by 6 and 5. He was playing well and will be a worthy opponent for Leo for the title.

Diegel is still playing the best golf of any professional now in California. I said this when I arrived here more than three weeks ago and have no cause to change my mind. He was 69 this morning against me, went out in 34 and was even 4s coming in when he polished me off at the sixteenth green. He is keyed up to a high pitch and should be the favorite over Johnny.

PLAYS WELL

Johnny was 73 for his morning round today and even 4's for the afternoon when he defeated Watrous at the thirteenth hole.

A gallery which started with about 1000 spectators increased at every hole and by the time we played the eighteenth we were performing for a very large crowd.

Diegel certainly had a great touch on the putting greens. At the fifth he dropped a forty-footer for a 3 to win the hole and at the short sixteenth he holed an uphill putt of fifteen feet to win. We halved the first in 4s and I got the lead at the second when Leo missed the green and was trapped at the right. This is a short hole. We halved the third in par and I had the advantage at the long fourth when Diegel missed his third shot, going up the hillside to the green, but he laid his next close and we halved in par 5s. At the fifth Leo holed the forty-footer for a birdie to square the match.

We both hit the green off the tee, 340 yards, and halved in 3, and, I squared the match at the seventh when I holed a six-footer for a birdie.

Leo had a good break at the eighth when his second was

POWERFUL PANTHER TEAM TO PLAY AT ROSE BOWL

Four All-American Stars Boasted by East's Standard Bearers in New Year's Classic

BY BRAVEN DYER

Pittsburgh's mighty football aggregation, rated far and away the greatest team in the East, will battle the Trojans of Southern California in the annual Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Such was the announcement yesterday by Gwynn Wilson, graduate manager of the local institution, who stated that Pitt's acceptance of the invitation had been received at Trojan headquarters during the morning.

Coming of the powerful Panthers insures local fans of one of the great games in the history of the Rose Tournament. Pittsburgh is touted as one of the finest teams ever to tramp up and down eastern gridirons. In fact, John W. Heisman, former coach and a nationally known figure in the grid game, in a recent letter to the writer, had this to say about the Panthers:

"JOCK" SUTHERLAND

"There is no question here in the East about Pitt's strength. They are almost out of the class of every other eastern team—though I believe Dartmouth might have been right with them had not Marsters been injured.

"Pitt has a stronger team than she had on New Year's Day 1928. I saw that game against Stanford out there and am very sure the Panthers had no such power, versatility and stars as at present."

Quite a recommendation coming from a football coach!

Mississippi Mudcats and Submarine Base Teams Battle for Title Honors Today

BY SPEED EVANS

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 6.—Two of the greatest football teams ever developed among the fighting branches of the Navy tonight were champing at the bit in anticipation of the annual big game at Navy Field, next Sunday, to decide the football supremacy of Uncle Sam's mighty United States Battle Fleet.

The Mississippi Mudcats, 1100 strong, steamed into port out of a gray fog late yesterday and a delegation of faithful ones was at once dispatched to Ramona's wishing well, in Old Town, to wish for several touchdowns and the championship. Whether Ramona, the beautiful, is in a philanthropic mood remains to be seen.

The submarines, with three battle fleet championships already salted away in their booty chest, are confident of making it four in a row. In event one is inclined to disagree with them, 1 peso will win you 2.

As Barnacle Bill rode into town this morning and hitched his snorting sea-horse to a dolphin at the foot of Broadway, the beautiful city which was discovered by aborigines several centuries ago and later recovered by the Escrow Indians had all the appearances of a navy reunion. Old salts who served on the Mississippi and with the submarines years ago, but became separated in the shuffle of naval transfers, have sprung up like mushrooms after a gentle spring rain, and tonight the boys were walking around town with a "put-up or shut-up" air about them.

On paper it appears that the Submarines are one or two touchdowns

Long Beach and Huntington Park Meet in C.I.F. Play-off Game at Wrigley Field To

SPARTAN TEAM IS UNDERDOG

Bay League Champions Have Never Won Title

Jackrabbits Boast Strong Aerial Attack

Santa Barbara Favored to Defeat Fullerton

BY IRVING ECKHOFF

Fighting for a chance to get into the finals of the Southern California prep football play-off, the Huntington Park Spartans, who have never won a Southland pigskin championship, take the field today, an underdog against the powerful Long Beach Jackrabbits. The game, which is listed to start at 2:15 at Wrigley Field is one-half of the semifinal round of the C.I.F. play-off. Santa Barbara and Fullerton tangle in the other semifinal contest on the Indians' field at Fullerton.

WILTON WILTON

The nearest the Spartans have ever come to a Southland championship was in 1927, when they were defeated by Santa Maria in an extra-period game. The contest was scoreless all the way and the victory was decided by the yardage made in five plays in the extra session. The Saints, who were at that time coached by Walter Herrold, who is now mentoring the Spartans, were turned back by Fullerton in the title clash a week later.

Long Beach hasn't been near the top of the heap since 1923, when Morley Drury and Don Hill led the Jackrabbits to a Southland championship. Coach Orian Landreth's team has a very impressive record this year, with five victories and three ties. Two of the even-up games were early season affairs, 6-6 with Manual Arts and 0-0 with Hollywood. The other was a scoreless tie with Santa Ana.

The Jackrabbits have only been scored on by three elevens this year, Manual tallying once, Coronado once and San Diego twice, for a total of 25 points, which is a pretty good defensive record for eight games.

Their offensive total is 89, a little over 11 points per game.

On the other hand, Huntington Park has run up the huge total of 176 points in ten games for the average of 17 points per contest. However, the Spartans' opposition hasn't been as tough as Long Beach's. Four teams have scored on Herrold's eleven, Roosevelt twice; Redondo, twice; Venice once and Santa Monica once. Santa Monica's touchdown was enough to hand the Spartans their sole defeat of the season, the count being 7-6 in favor of the Viking outfit.

An interesting item in the Huntington Park record is a 6-6 victory over the Fullerton Indians in a practice game.

In the Santa Barbara-Fullerton game Coach Clarence Schutte's eleven is a heavy favorite to win inasmuch as they haven't had much trouble winning any of their games this year. St. Augustine gave them a bad scare a couple of weeks ago, the Tornado winning in the last quarter, 18-12. However, northern fans explain the poor showing in the fact that Schutte hadn't given the team any defense against the Notre Dame shift and style of play which is employed by the Saints. After scoring twice in the first period, Santa Barbara rested on its oars figuring to coast through to victory. However, the southerners had other plans and rallied in the fourth quarter to tie the score. On the kick-off after the second St. Augustine touchdown, Johnny Bechtrich, Santa Barbara fullback, galloped 87 yards for the winning score.

Santa Barbara, like Huntington Park, has never won a Southern California football championship and Schutte's men are out to get one this year.

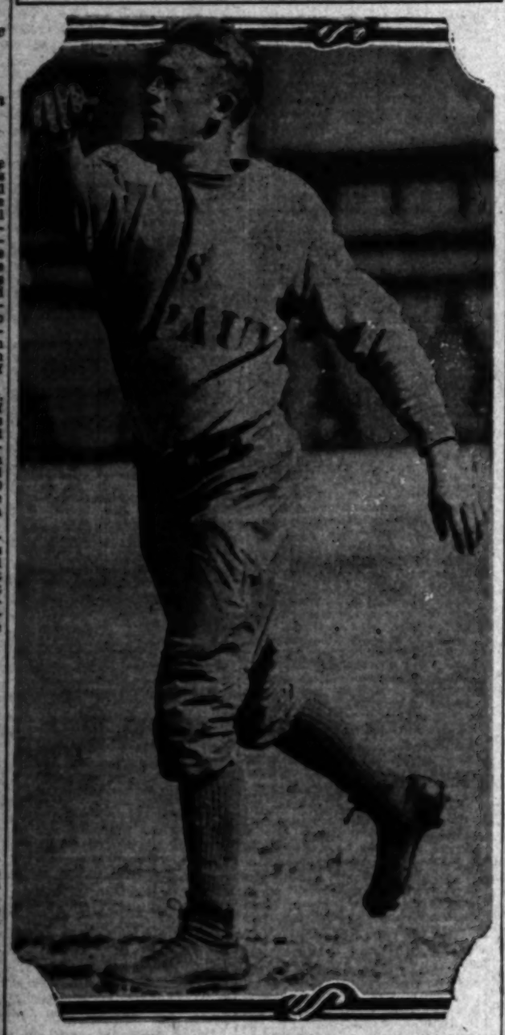
Here's Clair (Skeets) Byers, said to be one of the finest halfbacks developed at De Paul. His specialty is that of a triple threat artist—passing, punting and running. He has been injured frequently this season, but he is reported in fine shape for the game which the visiting boys from the Chicago institution will wage against the local Firemen eleven at the Coliseum this afternoon.



HAGEN PRAISES DEFENDING KING

headed and headed for trouble but struck a spectator on the head when it was outside the traps at the left and bounced back into a grassy lie near the green. My second was hooked and bank of sand traps, with the hole so close to the edge of the green that I had to try and play the ball very fine. I missed the edge of the green by six inches and fell back into the trap to take a 6 to Leo's 5.

We both holed good putts for threes at the par four ninth, with newsreel cameras and talking machines all going at the same time.

We halved the tenth and eleventh and at the short thirteenth Leo put his tee shot within two feet and won with a two as I missed a fifteen-foot put. We halved the next three holes in par. I had a great chance to win the fourteenth when I reached the edge of the green in two, but I hit my third too hard and missed a tricky seven-footer for a win.

At the short sixteenth Leo holed an uphill putt of fifteen feet for a two and the best I could do after being inside off the tee was a three. We halved the last two holes and I went to lunch two down.

MISSED CHANCE

There was one time this afternoon when it looked as if I might get even with Leo. He obtained a spud of two holes in the morning and increased this to three at the third in the afternoon when he holed his putt for a birdie three. Then I won two in a row to become one down; we halved the short sixth and I was well inside Leo at the seventh. I had about a six-foot putt but while I was taking a good look at my line, Leo, putting from some distance away, rolled his ball into the hole for a three and then I missed and became two down.

Immediately after this I lost the eighth hole. It had gone against me in the morning and repeated when my second shot found the trap at the left of the green and my out was not close enough for me to hole the putt in a four. These incidents put me three down again and I lost another hole to become four down. I got two of these back and was two down with three to play and at the short sixteenth missed the green and faded from the landscape, but at the fifteenth I had the pleasure of knocking a mashie shot of 150 yards to within two inches of the hole. I won this hole and reduced Leo's lead from three to two, thus giving myself still a chance, which I tossed away when I banged my iron into a trap at the next hole.

Leo was uncanny. He started working at the fourth hole in the morning when he missed his third and then proceeded to knock his fourth stiff and get a half in five.

The gallery was as well behaved as any I have ever seen and as enthusiastic. It was likewise entirely impartial and rewarded Leo and myself equally well. No such incidents as occurred at Pebble Beach were enacted here which may be attributed to the Hollywood-Los Angeles crowd which is quite democratic anyway, and, of course, the contestants in this championship all being professionals, it would be difficult for the gallery to come to any conclusions which might be based on the social position of the combatants.

I am certain that Dr. Oscar F. Willing, the Portland (Or.) dentist, who was "razzed" at Pebble Beach, would enjoy playing before such an audience as we had here today. The motto of this audience seemed to me to be "kindness." Show people, and they composed no small part of our crowd, do have a lot of sympathy for the under dog. They are not as hard as bankers and manufacturers and what not.

Johnny and Leo are both big favorites in the film colony and their match will draw well tomorrow.

PANTHERS PLAN FOR TRIP WEST

nia to represent the East in the Tournament of Roses battle.

The belated invitation comes on the eve of the departure of Carnegie Tech's grid squad for Los Angeles, where the Tartans will meet Southern California one week from tomorrow. It is a striking coincidence that two of Pittsburgh's college elevens will play on the Pacific Coast within a period of less than three weeks and that they will meet the same opponent.

Members of the Pitt athletic council will meet tomorrow morning to make plans for their second trip to the Rose Bowl. It is likely that virtually the same plan that was adopted two years ago when Coach Jock Sutherland's championship squad went west to meet Stanford will be followed again.

Pitt probably will not leave here before the 20th inst., making the long cross-country jaunt by easy stages and arriving in Pasadena a day or two before the game.

Coach Sutherland could not be reached tonight to determine his plans for practice, but the Golden Panther squad which completed an undefeated season Thanksgiving Day, undoubtedly will resume training work Monday.

Sutherland profited by experience gained on the last trip to California and it is probable that he will prescribe some new training measures for his players to keep them in condition for the Rose Bowl tilt.

The unbeaten 1927 Panther squad left here December 26 for Pasadena. The first workout en route was held at Dodge City, Kan., December 28. On succeeding days practice sessions were staged at Albuquerque and Winslow, Ariz. The squad arrived in Pasadena Saturday December 31, two days before the big game.

JUNIOR ENTRIES TO CLOSE SOON

F. Lee Smith, secretary of the Santa Monica Lawn Tennis Association, announced yesterday that entries for the first annual west coast junior tennis championships to be staged the 14th to 23rd inst., inclusive, at the Clover Field courts, would close the 10th inst. at 6 o'clock sharp.

Unbeaten Pittsburgh Squad Accepts Invitation

Four All-Americans Cavort for Eastern Champs

Pasadena Assured of Great New Year's Classic

Jock Sutherland, a close-lipped chap, who isn't very colorful as far as we newspaper men are concerned. However, Jock turns out winning football teams and there's no question about his players having oodles of color. Remember Gibby Welch, the big star of the 1927 team, which faced Stanford? Well, Sutherland, has four all-Americans on his present team, which is quite a jump from one two years ago.

Joe Donchess, end; Toby Uansa, halfback; Pug Parkinson, fullback, and Ray Montgomery, guard, are the four players who have been named on virtually every all-American selection of any importance this year. Donchess is a repeater from last season. The battle between this chap and Francis Tappaan, Troy's star wingman, should be one of the classics of the season, while Uansa vs. Russ Saunders will also undoubtedly provide a number of spine-tickling moments.

Here is Coach Howard Jones's statement regarding the choice of the Panthers as the Trojan opponent:

"Pittsburgh's excellent undefeated record brands it as the outstanding team in the East and the University of Southern California eleven is delighted to have this caliber of competition in the New Year's Day game in Pasadena. Pitt's teams are consistently of top-notch class and this year's Panther squad appears to be one of the best in its history. We look for the hardest kind of a battle in the big game."

Director of Athletics Bill Hunter said:

"Pittsburgh has made one of the most remarkable football records of recent years during the 1929 season and the Panthers must have a team that can be called truly great. We are all happy to have such an opponent of unquestioned worth in the New Year's Day game and our boys know that they will have to put up their greatest fight of the season to have a chance for victory over this powerful squad."

WILSON LAUDS PANTHERS

General Manager Gwynn Wilson of the Southern California associated students said:

"Because of the University of Pittsburgh's outstanding showing during the past season in the East, the University of Southern California is pleased to receive Pittsburgh's acceptance of our invitation to play in the Pasadena New Year's Day game. I do not believe any more worthy representative of eastern football could be selected and Pittsburgh's acceptance assures one of the great games of the year for the East-West contest."

The Trojans, following acceptance of the bid from Pasadena, immediately narrowed the eastern field to two teams, Purdue and Pittsburgh. It was discovered there was no hope of Purdue getting permission to come west, due to the Big Ten ruling against post-season games, so no invitation was extended the Boilermakers.

Pitt appeared on the Coast in 1922 against Stanford, defeating the Redskirts. Pop Warner was coaching the Panthers then; his assistant, Tiny Thornhill, being at Stanford. Chuck Winterburn, now assistant to Pop at Stanford, was one of Pitt's big stars that day.

The Panthers gave Stanford a terrific struggle at Pasadena on January 1, 1928, but lost, 7 to 6. Welch, all-American that year, could not gain consistently against Warner's powerful line.

Sutherland is a former Warner pupil at Pitt, having been named all-American guard during his days under Pop. Jock does not use Pop's system entirely, having a diversified offensive which he has built up both from Warner's formations and his own observations.

WALLOPED CARNEGIE

Some idea of Pitt's strength may be formed from the fact that the Panthers defeater Carnegie Tech, 34 to 13, while Notre Dame, victor over Southern California, 13 to 12, was able to subdue the Carnegie eleven only 7 to 0.

Pittsburgh's great record is as follows: Waynesburg, 58 to 0; Duke, 52 to 7; West Virginia, 27 to 7; Nebraska, 12 to 7; Allegheny, 40 to 0; Ohio State, 18 to 2; W. and J., 21 to 0; Carnegie Tech, 34 to 13, and Penn State, 20 to 7.

This gives the Panthers a total of 277 points as against but 43 for their opponents. This is an average of 30 points a game to slightly more than 4 for their rivals.

Southern California in ten games has rolled up 400 points for an average of 40 points per game. Troy's opponents have scored 42 points, which puts the teams about on a par defensively.

There is more general satisfaction in Southern California over the selection of the Trojans than at any time in the history of the Tournament of Roses. It's a fine thing that S.C. and the Pasadena officials have finally buried the hatchet, and much credit goes to Hal Reynolds, new chairman of the Tournament of Roses committee.

WORK FOR TARTAN GAME

In the meantime the Trojans put in another day of work in preparation for Carnegie Tech next Saturday. It would be a fine kettle of fish if the Tartans should upset Troy's apple cart (That sounds kind of mixed but maybe the meaning is conveyed.) Howard Jones is doing his best to guard against overconfidence and staleness. There will be no practice today, but the boys will be back at it Monday.

Tony Steponovich looked good in scrimmage last night, and will no doubt be used against Carnegie Tech. Jess Hill is also ready to go again, although he still has to wear a brace on his knee.

DIEGEL DEFEATS HAGEN

"Sir Walter" Falls Before National Title-holder, 3 and 2; Farrell Trims Watrous, 6 and 5

a magnetic nervousness that carried "Larrupin'" Leo to great heights over his more phlegmatic opponent.

A smashing drive on the 360-yard first hole, and a pitch shot that came to rest a bare ten feet from the pin put Hagen in nice position for a birdie, but Leo, after a poor drive and short pitch, laid Walter a quarter stymie and they halved the hole in 4's.

Hagen went 1 up at the short second hole, Diegel's iron being off line, and "The Haig" won with a par. They halved the next two holes, and it looked like a half on five, but Leo sneaked in a magnificent 30-foot putt for a birdie to square the match.

Walter canned a neat putt on the 336-yard seventh hole for a birdie to take the lead once more.

For some reason, the eighth proved Hagen's nemesis, and breaks on that hole seemed to actually inspire Diegel. The professional champion got a "break" to square the match once more, when his ball hit a galleryite's foot and caromed off from the trap it was headed for. Diegel then put his second on the green and was down in two putts, while Hagen's ball found the trap and he took a 6.

Both bagged birdies on the tricky ninth to continue all square.

LEO 2 UP

Coming in, Diegel's putts just couldn't miss, and he dropped putts for birdies on the 192-yard twelfth hole and 180-yard sixteenth, for a pair of deuces to be 2 up at the turn. They halved the remaining seven holes in pars.

The cards:

Par (Out)	434	543	444—35
Diegel	444	533	443—34
Hagen	434	543	363—35
Par (In)	443	454	345—36—71
Diegel	443	454	345—34—68
Hagen	443	454	345—36—71

In the meantime, after turning the nine-hole mark, all even, Farrell had won five of the incoming holes to be 2 up at the turn. Johnny mediated with 37-36—73 against Watrous's 36-38—74, but his match play was much superior to that of the Detroit golfer.

WATROUS CRACKS

Hagen, who, as "king" of American professionals, has always taken his own time about appearing at the first tee, kept the gallery fidgeting for some time after lunch. Not a few deserted "The Haig," following Watrous and Farrell, but soon returned when Al crashed on the first nine, and Johnny won five holes, three of them consecutively, to go 8 up at the twenty-seventh.

Diegel invited the gallery to a hand of bridge while waiting for Hagen, who finally appeared to be introduced by Miss Fay Wray as the "British opium champion."

Hagen could hold Diegel just so long as Diegel got down in two putts, but after halving the first two holes, the professional champion pitched stiff to the pin and dropped a five-foot putt to go 3 up on the 323-yard twenty-first hole. Hagen was fifteen feet past the cup and his putt was short.

HAGEN COMES BACK

But Hagen is Hagen, and the British open champion has had galleries pop-eyed with spectacular comebacks on world-wide links when it appeared that all was lost. He started such a comeback on the twenty-second hole, pitching dead to the pin, and dropping a curling eight-foot putt for a birdie to win the hole.

Diegel was in a tree basin on the twenty-third hole, and took 5 to get down, while Hagen was on in two and took two putts for a par to make him only 1 down.

They halved the twenty-fourth hole in 3s, but Leo's unorthodox putting stroke gave him a new lease on life when he holed a ten-footer on the twenty-fifth to win the hole with a birdie.

Then came the twenty-sixth, the same eighth hole that "The Haig" lost in the morning round. A midiron is noteably Hagen's poorest shot, and he half topped his second. Six feet to the right and the ball would have been right on the pin, but instead it rolled into a trap. Walter missed his out, took two to get down and lost the hole to a 4, being once more, 3 down.

The twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth were halved, but Hagen hooked another midiron shot ont the twenty-ninth, staged a great recovery, and then missed a four-foot putt to go 4 down, with seven holes to play.

"THE HAIG" RALLIES

A stymie on the thirty-first hole made "The Haig" only 3 down, after they had halved the thirtieth. They also halved the thirty-second hole in pars.

Rallying his forces once more, Hagen was given one of the greatest ovations of the day when he pitched two inches from the pin on the thirty-third hole for a birdie, now being only 2 down and three to play.

Whether Hagen missed his shot on the 150-yard thirty-fourth hole, or whether he just played too short with the idea of putting his ball right on the can, may never be known, but anyhow the ball hit on the edge of the green and bounded down into a trap. Diegel left himself a downhill, eight-foot putt, and won the hole and match, when Hagen pitched six feet over the hole, and missed his putt, thus ending a great match.

The card:

Diegel (out)	433	553	344—34
Hagen	434	443	545—35
Diegel (in)	443	554
Hagen	453	453

Chuck Ward, leading amateur of the Brentwood Country Club, told us yesterday that Farrell played marvelous golf to defeat Watrous, and that he believes the former national open champion will give Diegel a real tussle today. Johnny is, perhaps, the most popular golfer in the tournament, and he will have considerable backing against Leo, who, however, will naturally be the favorite.

Here are the cards for Watrous and Farrell:

(Morning round)

Watrous (out)	433	543	453—36
Farrell	435	543	445—37
Watrous (in)	434	564	345—39—74
Farrell	353	455	344—36—73

(Afternoon round)

Watrous (out)	444	644	464—40
Farrell	433	543	454—35
Watrous (in)	443	4x
Farrell	454	4x

The finalists will start off the first tee at 9:30 this morning, and again at 1 p.m. The largest gallery ever to witness a Southern California tournament, and possibly a new P.G.A. record is in prospect. Yesterday's gallery was apparently larger than that which galleried Bobby Jones at the Los Angeles Country Club in September, and was at that time accepted as the biggest gallery to see a match in Los Angeles.

DIEGEL JOKES DURING MATCH

he spotted Hagen one stroke and then bet him $500 on the side that he would still win the match. Wonder if Leo feels the same way about his final affair with Johnny Farrell today?

It was hard to determine which golfer was the more popular with the galleryites. Hagen, because he was behind all afternoon, had most everybody pulling for him, but every time Diegel got in trouble and then pulled himself out with some marvelous golf the crowd cheered him lustily.

Walter didn't smile very often during the afternoon round. But he broke into a broad grin as he stepped on the 15th green after dropping his long approach shot within four inches of the pin for a birdie which left him but 2 down and three to go. Walter got a terrific ovation and liked it—and you couldn't blame him.

Both golfers were good sports through the entire match, conceding all short putts.

Diegel must have been connected with the Red Cross at some time or other. He certainly "nursed" that ball into the cup on those putts of his. That's the only term I can think of to describe the way Leo coaxes the pellet into the can.

Diegel has been a great golfer for many, many years. But for a long time he couldn't putt for sour apples. After many distressing defeats because of his putting, or lack of it, Leo started experimenting and finally evolved the peculiar stance which is his own pet way of getting the ball down.

It worked yesterday to perfection, for it was Leo's superb putting that gave him the victory over Hagen.

Field Marshall Willie Hunter spent a busy day trying to keep several thousand very agile spectators in formation. Willie's voice could be heard above the stamping of the human horde, exhorting one and all to "keep off to the right," or "keep off to the left," as the case happened to be.

Ringside seats at the greens were hard to procure unless you dashed on several holes ahead and plunked yourself right on the edge. Hunter and all his cops were not sufficient to keep the good-natured crowd back once the players reached the green.

Press ribbons and badges were at a premium, although a lot of ineligibles seemed to be adorned with 'em. Harold Lloyd bobbed up wearing a yellow ribbon labelled "Press," but at a late hour last night it had not been revealed wha newspaper he was scribbling for.

Should be a great match today—Diegel vs. Smiling Johnny Farrell. Both Hagen and Diegel are of German extraction, although born in this country. Farrell is as Irish as Pat and Mike put together.

As Diegel and Hagen came to the twenty-eighth tee yesterday Farrell told me that he had never played Diegel in a P.G.A. match. Johnny did not qualify for the tournament last year, but he's plenty hot right now.

Four down going to the thirteenth, Hagen came galloping on to the green with his arm around Diegel's neck in a Strangler Lewis headlock. The crowd was packed so tightly around the green that Walter and Leo had to band together to get through.

The thirteenth hole was lucky for Hagen, however, as he won it and followed this up by halving the fourteenth.

Bobby Cruickshank, winner of the 1926 Los Angeles open, was an interested spectator yesterday. "Wee Bobby" is back to take a crack at the purse again next month.

There are a lot of heavy eaters among the scribes. Franklin J. Roche, the well-known man about town, tops 'em all. Mr. Roche's appetite is so insatiable that after eating three lunches in the grill he still has to nibble grass all afternoon as he tramps up hill and down vale.

MANUAL ARTS CAGERS CONQUER GONDOLIERS

The Manual Arts High School cage outfit won a practice tilt from the Venice High quintet yesterday afternoon by a score of 27 to 17 in a basketball game played in the Gondolier gymnasium. The score at the half was 18 to 6. Neiman, guard, and Swartz, forward, for the Toilers, tied for high-point honors with 8 digits apiece. Gottlieb, forward, and Gleeck, guard, each scored 6 points for high-point honors on the Gondolier team.

In a preliminary practice game, the Manual Arts lightweights defeated the Venice High midgets by a score of 16 to 12.

The varsity line-ups:

Venice		Manual Arts
Gottlieb (6)	F.	Swartz (8)
Geisert	F.	Harden (2)
Sorenson (2)	C.	Ladry (2)
Gleeck (6)	G.	Robb
Catt	G.	Neiman (8)
Low (3)	G.	Strom (1)

PASADENA JAYSEE GRID TEAM PLAYS IN HAWAII

HONOLULU, Dec. 6. (AP)—The football team of Pasadena Junior College arrived here this morning for an intersectional game to be played against the Kamehameha school team of Honolulu here Saturday, starting at 2:30 p.m. (5 p.m., Pacific standard time.)

Frank R. Baker, coach of the Pasadenans, said all members of the squad, twenty-two strong, were in good condition. They went from the liner directly to a practice session on a local gridiron.

FLEET TEAMS BATTLE TODAY

better than the Mudcats. But you can't believe in things on paper.

There was considerable rejoicing among the Mississippians when it was learned that Gilbert Le Fevbre, fleet-footed Diver halfback, had sustained a bruised hip last Tuesday, but it later developed that Cousin Gilbert had recovered quicker than the stock market and would be on hand for the kick-off. Le Febvre has been the outstanding star all season.

The Mudcats found a ray of consolation, however, in reports on Ted Thayer, the Periscope-peepers' fullback. Thayer was injured in the Armistice Day game with West Coast Army and it is doubtful if he will be in shape to start.

The Mississippi forward wall, which has showed a disinclination to bend or puncture, is expected to do big things in the way of opening holes for Livingston, the Mississippi's "Red Rover," and "Pig" McBride, two of the best ball-toters in the Navy.

One thing is certain: If the Mississippi loses the boys won't have to walk home. Their warship is standing by to take them back to Pedro Bay. And that's some consolation.

PHELAN MAY LAND NEW JOB

to look over conditions at the Seattle institution. Jimmy is in a receptive frame of mind, and he may place his name on the dotted line after he spends a few days at the University of Washington.

Earl Campbell, graduate manager of athletics at Washington, has been in the Middle West and East for the last month seeking a football coach. He has either interviewed or received information regarding every gridiron teacher of note who is not tied down by a contract. As a result of this survey, Campbell has decided Phelan is the logical choice, and every effort will be made to sign him to either a three or five-year contract.

Phelan has coached eight years at Purdue. Previously he was in charge of the football situation at the University of Missouri.

MERCURIES FACE JAYSEES

A fast basketball game will be on tap for the Los Angeles Athletic Club gymnasium tonight when Coach Forrest Twogood sends his Mercury quintet against the Los Angeles Junior College five. The Mercuries have won three practice games by huge scores but expect some tough opposition tonight as the junior collegians have a team built around a Manual Arts city championship outfit of a few years back.

RIIS TAKES TWO BASKET CONTESTS

Riis took two league games in a double-header with Narbonne yesterday in the Marine loop. The Riis lightweights pulled out a 15-to-12 victory, thanks to some clever work by Bob Brown, while the varsity rang up a decisive 36-7 score.

NEW MILESTONE ON LOCAL MART

Exchange to Turn Thirtieth Birthday Today

Six of Original Stocks Still Active Traders

Rapid Growth During Period Briefly Reviewed

The opening bell on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange today will ring in the thirtieth birthday since the founding of the market, when, on December 7, 1899, a small group of brokers gathered, signed articles of association and elected officers for the Los Angeles Oil Exchange, the predecessor of the present security mart, which in 1900 changed its name to the Los Angeles Stock Exchange.

Not only will attention be accorded the thirtieth birthday, but members will be mindful of the fact that six major stocks on the board today were listed for the first trading session thirty years ago and have continued as active leaders at various times since. John Earle Jardine, president, stated yesterday. The stocks were Edison company common, which at that time sold at $40; Los Angeles Athletic Club, at $10.80; Los Angeles Investment Company, at $1.50; Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company, at $195; Associated Oil Company, at $48.50; Union Oil, at $200, and Farmers' and Merchants' Bank, at $375.

FIVE SUCCESSORS

Five other companies whose successors are now listed on the stock exchange were on the original board. They were as follows: First National Bank at $430, now the Security-First National Bank; Home Savings Bank at $151.50, now the California Bank; American National Bank at $116.50, now merged with Citizens' National Bank; National Bank of California at $105, merged with Merchants' National and now the Bank of America of California, and Security Savings Bank at $250, which became Security Trust and Savings Bank and then joined with First National to form Security-First National Bank.

The first session of the Los Angeles Oil Exchange was conducted February 1, 1900, with seventy-three stocks listed, comprising 64,428,250 shares. Listings of the exchange today include 126 issues, totaling 130,034,044 shares, and representing a value of approximately $6,500,000,000. From among the fifty original members of the exchange, only one man, S. H. Ellis, has held his membership continuously and is active on the exchange, according to the seniority records of the organization. Today, also will mark the birthday anniversary of President Jardine, who acquired his membership in 1908, and is now third in seniority standing on the exchange.

GROWTH REVEALED

The first annual report of the institution, dated 1907, reveals a volume of 10,398,166 shares and a value of $2,664,139, or about 20 cents per average share traded in. Subtracting the oils and mines from the recapitulation for that year, only 918,296 shares, with a value of $1,215,949, were traded. To date, in the thirtieth year of its existence, the stock exchange shows a trading volume of 14,854,683 shares and a value of $442,939,136, which figures do not include the volume of the junior market, the Los Angeles Curb Exchange. The combined volume amounts to 51,330,131 shares and a valuation of $672,117,336.

Dividends paid in 1907 by listed corporations were $5,416,076, while disbursements by companies listed on the stock exchange in the first eleven months of 1929 amount to more than $180,000,000.

Some of the unusual stocks which appeared on the first board were Los Angeles Brewing Company, $135; Los Angeles Jockey Club at $50, California Hospital at $90, Seaside Water Company at $140 and Emergency Hospital at $10.

Net of Lehigh Valley Rail Up

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) Lehigh Valley Railroad Company today reported net income of $5,393,727 for the first nine months of this year, equal after preferred dividends to $4.45 a share on the common stock as compared with $3,789,231 or $3.13 a common share in the 1928 period.

Net income for the September quarter was $2,530,140, equal after preferred dividends to $2.09 a share on 1,210,024 common shares as against $1,987,729 in the preceding quarter or $1.64 a common share and $2,382,742 or $1.89 a common share in the 1928 quarter.

Metropolitan to Add New Hangar

Los Angeles Metropolitan Airport is now completing its sixth hangar. As the rental of hangar space is one of the chief sources of income of the port, the new addition will substantially increase the earnings, Lloyd L. St. John, secretary-treasurer, said yesterday.

All of the present hangars are completely leased and the new building which will provide approximately 25,000 square feet of floor space will permit the port to fill the growing demand for accommodations, according to Mr. St. John.

Extra Voted by Oil Rectifiers

Directors of Petroleum Rectifying Corporation have declared an extra dividend of 35 cents per share, payable the 20th inst. to stock of record the 14th inst., according to an announcement yesterday by D. C. Nicholes, president.

The last regular quarterly dividend of 35 cents per share was paid November 1, last.

STOCK SPLIT BY GENERAL ELECTRIC ON

Distribution on Basis of Four for One Hangs on Stockholder Vote

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) General Electric Company has called a special meeting of stockholders for January 15, next, to vote on increasing the present 7,400,000 shares of authorized no-par common stock to 29,600,000 shares and issuing four new shares for each share now held.

Directors propose to pay in April a quarterly dividend on the new common stock of 40 cents a share, placing the issue on a $1.60 annual basis, or equivalent to $6.40 a year on the present stock, which has been paying $4 in regular dividends annually with occasional extras, totaling $3 this year.

A dividend of $1.50 a share on the present stock was declared payable January 21, next, to stock of record the 16th inst. This will be the last payment on the present stock if the split-up is approved by a two-thirds affirmative vote of the outstanding shares.

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) New "when-issued" stock of General Electric Company was admitted to trading on the New York Curb Exchange at 1:43 p.m., and the initial transaction was 3000 shares at 63 5-8, while on the securities market of the New York Produce Exchange, the new stock on a "when-issued" basis opened at 63 1-2, sold up to 64 and then back to 61 3-4.

Citizens Bank Votes Extra to Common Stock

Declaration of the 117th consecutive quarterly dividend and the payment of an extra of 20 cents a share on the stock of the Citizens' National Trust and Savings Bank were announced yesterday by H. D. Ivey, president. The regular dividend for the last quarter of the year amounts to $1 a share, or at the annual rate of $4 on the stock of $20 par value.

Mr. Ivey also announced the decision of the directors to distribute a liberal bonus at the end of the year to employees and officers of the bank. The distribution, he said, was authorized in reflection of the completion by the Citizens' Bank of the most prosperous year in its history.

Payment of the extra dividend of 20 cents will be made by the Citizens' National Company, investment subsidiary of the bank, and is the equivalent to $1 a share on the old stock of $100 par value. The investment company has paid similar distributions out of earnings for the last several years.

Distribution of the regular quarterly dividend of $1 and the extra of 20 cents brings the total dividend reterrn, Mr. Ivey pointed out, to $4.20 for the year. This is the equivalent to $21 a share on the old stock, which was split five for one and the par value reduced to $20 last June.

Regular dividends on the old stock were increased last April from $18 to $20 a share, the rate maintained on the new shares.

Allis-Chalmers Increases Rate

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) Directors of the Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company today declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share on its common stock as against 50 cents paid previously. The dividend is payable February 15 to stock of record January 24.

Orders on hand as of November 30, last, amounted to $13,600,000, as against $9,681,000, as of January 1, last. This does not include unfilled farm tractor orders. The outlook for the company is most encouraging for coming year, it was stated following the directors' meeting.

INVESTMENT TRUST ESTIMATES INCOME

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) Officials of the Investment Trust Associates estimated today the net cash earnings for the year closed November 30, last, at $10 per share on the average number of shares outstanding during the year. The company which is affiliated with United Founders' Corporation, was organized in 1924. Its shares were quoted at $30 per share a year ago and they now have a liquidating value of $27 a share.

STIMULANT GIVEN STOCKS

General Electric Split-up Comes at Propitious Time; Telephone May be Next in Line

BY EARLE R. CROWE

Split-up of the General Electric shares, announced during yesterday's market, is obviously intended as a stimulant to a tiring stock market. The increase in the dividend rate accompanying the split-up action introduces more substantial assistance behind the cause of speculation, and also promotes the national campaign for confidence in business.

No better time for such an announcement by one of the most powerful of industrial companies could have been chosen. It comes when the stock market is dragging along in reflection of disinterest in all things speculative, and of some uncertainty regarding the trend of business. The General Electric management apparently has taken cognisance of the maxim that a healthy stock market encourages a better tone in general business.

READY WITH NEWS

At other critical times in the history of the stock market the pivotal companies have been ready with similar news calculated to revive interest in speculation and to demonstrate to the public the healthy state of business enterprises. Split-ups, stock dividends, a large crop of extra dividends, merger rumors, etc., generally come at the end of a bull market when artificial respiration is badly needed.

For the last few days the market evidently has been leading up to the General Electric announcement. The leading stocks have been noticeably stronger, and several of them, including General Electric and Westinghouse, scored substantial gains yesterday in reflection of the good news. The intimation is plain, however, that more news of this character will develop as soon as the first installment wears out its punch.

If one or two more of the outstanding industrial, utility or rail companies take similar action, the stock market may fulfill predictions for a "Christmas rally." With the volume of trading running up close to 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 shares and prices rising, the retail merchants would probably benefit from the resultant improvement in sentiment.

While looking around for the next candidate for a split-up of shares, the speculators may liven up the perennial rumor on American Telephone. Undoubtedly an announcement of this character from a company of the size and importance of American Telephone would pump a sizeable flow of fresh fuel into the market.

TELEPHONE STAND KNOWN

Speculators, however, should not entertain hopes of an increase in dividend accompanying a split-up in American Telephone. The management has repeatedly declared against payments in addition to the regular rate or any increase in the regular $9 annual distribution. Frequently rights to subscribe to new stock are offered which serve to swell the annual returns of stockholders if the rights are sold for cash.

Possibly American Telephone would have more to gain from a split-up in stock at this time than at any time in the last few years. A lower price for the split-up shares would encourage prospective installment buyers of stock who might, because of the current uneasiness in the security market, avoid commitments in the higher-priced stocks. And there are also installment buyers of Telephone shares at prices considerably higher than the current level who would at least feel better after a split-up.

Cheerful Tone Noted in Trade Survey of Week

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (AP)—Dun's Review tomorrow will say:

It is significant, as the year draws nearer its closing, that tangible reasons for added encouragement and for a further strengthening of confidence have appeared. Less than a month after the culmination of the stock market collapse, sentiment has undergone a distinct improvement, which could scarcely have come so quickly without the impressive demonstration of the underlying solidity of the commercial structure. The adjustments to new conditions, the recession from an unusually high scale of activity are present now in varied form, but the supporting elements continue to have a stabilizing influence.

Supplementing the inherent soundness of trade, which has been evidenced by the absence of disorder, other factors, including definite action on Federal income-tax reduction, have contributed to the constructive and reassuring forces. The weather, moreover, has been helpful recently, low temperatures over a wide area giving impetus to demand for seasonable goods, and Christmas purchases have been gaining momentum.

Responding to the larger retail movement, mercantile opinion has turned for the better, while some industrial trends have had a similar effect. Thus, the decline in steel output apparently is being checked at a point well below the exceptional rate of the summer and the belief is held now that a recovery may begin in January.

BUILDING AND LOAN HAS BANNER YEAR

United States Building and Loan Association experienced the greatest period of growth in its history during 1929, President Orville L. Routt announced yesterday in stating that resources of the institution had increased to $3,527,070.03, as compared with $2,384,282.73 on January 1. Investors in United States numbered 5642 on the 1st inst. as against 2264 in 1928 and 1030 in 1927. Branches have been opened this year in San Francisco, Oakland, Fresno, Bakersfield, Pasadena, Spring street, Los Angeles and San Diego.

WOOL MART INQUIRY ON INCREASE

Weekly Review Reports Actual Sales, However, Continue Light

BOSTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

While there is somewhat more inquiry, the volume of wool trading has not improved materially. Mill buyers are inclined to bid the market down, but most dealers are still resisting strongly a further drop in prices.

Foreign markets are slightly easier for the week. London closing a bit down from the high point and about on parity with opening prices. Australia, South Africa and South America all are slightly in favor of the buyer.

The manufacturing situation is rather irregular and generally slow, although lower-priced wool appears to have stimulated some business in woolens.

Mohair is slow and easy.

The rail and water shipments of wool from Boston from January 1, 1929, to December 5, 1929, inclusive, were 162,419,000 pounds, against 154,808,000 pounds for the same period last year. The receipts from January 1, 1929, to December 5, 1929, inclusive, were 290,740,900 pounds, against 292,460,543 pounds for the same period last year.

Estimate of Telephone Net for Year High

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) Net profits of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company are expected to amount to more than $165,000,000 this year, according to well-informed circles here. This would be equivalent to around $12.56 a share on the 13,146,765 capital shares outstanding.

This year's net income should not only be of record-breaking proportions but it should surpass last year's net by approximately $22,000,000. For the year 1928, the company reported a net income of $143,170,491, equal to $12.11 a share on 11,823,745, the average number of shares outstanding during that period.

There is every indication that the final quarter net income will approximate $44,000,000, according to the estimates. This will compare with $38,855,899 for the fourth quarter of 1928 and bring the net for the last half of the current year up to $84,624,839 against $80,202,065 for the 1928 period.

Volume of New Bond Issues Up

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (Exclusive) During the week ended today, new financing aggregated $171,202,500 of which $170,658,000 was bonds while $544,500 was in one stock issue. This compares with $26,206,000 in the preceding week of which $16,206,000 was in bonds and $10,000,000 in stocks and with $342,460,363 for the week ended December 7, 1928, when stock issues totaled $218,217,063 and bonds, $124,243,300.

Bond offerings for the year to date totaled $3,092,128,908 against $4,711,297,140 in the 1928 period. Stock financing for the year to date amounted to $3,025,956,782.

Apache Testing New Aero Motor

Apache Motor Corporation is now testing its 200-horsepower aircraft engine preparatory to the official test of the Department of Commerce Bureau of Aeronautics, H. J. Heffron, president, stated yesterday.

The factory test of the 300-horsepower motor has been successfully completed and it is being installed in a Stearman biplane for flying tests at the Los Angeles Metropolitan Airport, Mr. Heffron said.

ITALO PETROLEUM REPORTS EARNINGS

Net profits of the Italo Petroleum Corporation of America amounted to $650,331.30 after all charges for the ten months closed October 31, last, R. S. McKeon, secretary and general manager, announced yesterday. Gross sales amounted to $2,714,315.13. Production expense, overhead and administrative expenses totaled $838,187.63. Interest charges amounted to $115,994.87 and depletion, depreciation and abandonments, $1,390,071.31.

HYDRAULIC BRAKE PAYS AT OLD RATE

Quarterly of $1 Voted by Board on Enlarged Capital

Directors of the Hydraulic Brake Company, licensors for the Lockheed hydraulic brake for automobiles, declared yesterday a quarterly dividend on its enlarged capital stock of $1 a share, maintaining the old rate of $4 a share annually on the increased number of shares outstanding. The dividend is payable January 1 to stockholders of record the 20th inst.

The enlarged capital is the result of the payment October 1, last, of a 20 per cent stock dividend, and in effect amounts to an increased dividend, the company disbursing $35,584 more annually in dividends. The recent stock dividend raised the number of shares outstanding from 44,676 to 53,372.

On January 1, last, directors raised the dividend rate from $2 to $3 a share annually and in the following April again raised the rate to $4 a share per year. Disbursements in cash dividends for the last four quarters including the payment to be made January 1, next, amounts to $186,800 while the dividends paid since the company was founded in 1923 up to January 1, last, totaled $366,195.

Net profits for the first nine months this year amounted to $275,288.31, equivalent to $5.15 a share on the present capital. This is $1.14 a share more than a full year's dividend requirements on the stock.

Directors of Hydraulic Associates, Inc., which is a holding company formed recently to acquire a controlling interest in the Hydraulic Brake Company, are expected to meet next Tuesday, to declare an initial dividend, it was stated.

PUBLIC DEBT SINKS RAPIDLY

Reduction by United States in Last Ten Years More Than All World Powers Combined

BY JOHN F. SINCLAIR

[Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.]

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—It is hard to believe that the United States has actually reduced its national debt more than have all the other nations of the world combined during the last ten years.

Think of a public debt of over $26,500,000,000 at the peak, reached on August 31, 1919, being cut to about $17,000,000,000. The debt principal in ten years has shrunk by paying in cash to creditors $9,905,000,000—an average of more than $990,000,000 a year—about $3,000,000 a day every day during the last ten years.

What a record!

The Treasury continues to pioneer new territory in fiscal matters. On the 15th inst., when two issues of government certificates, totaling $704,306,000 fall due, the officials have decided to have a new certificate issue and one of Treasury bills to take the place of a part of the old certificates falling due.

With reference to the Treasury bills, a new plan has been worked out. It's modern. They expect to issue the bills at a discount without interest. In this way the credit market will be ascertained in a very definite manner. Interest rates in the United States for some time to come should be better judged then. The rate of the certificate issue has not yet been announced, but it is expected any day now.

But in the field of debt reduction, the government's achievements are phenomenal.

Already the Treasury has recommended a reduction in the income taxes of the people. This recommendation has been incorporated into the revenue bill, introduced by Chairman Hawley.

The big reductions are made on the smaller incomes. As Assistant Secretary Mills says: "Its terms are so simple as to require no explanation."

In a word, the bill, which is likely to become a law, reduces the normal tax on taxable incomes of individuals for the calendar year of 1929 from 1½ per cent to one-half of 1 per cent on the first $4000 of taxable income; on the second $4000 of taxable income it reduces it from 3 per cent to 2 per cent; on the balance of the taxable income of the individual, it reduces it from 5 to 4 per cent.

So the percentage of reduction decreases as the amount of the income increases.

In the case of corporations there is a very small reduction, compared to that of individuals. For the same period, the calendar year of 1929, the taxable incomes of corporations are to be reduced from 12 per cent to 11 per cent—not much, but still enough for corporations to realize that tax reduction is going on.

Probably the most important feature of the new bill, outside of the fact that the greatest tax reduction affects the smaller incomes, is the fact that it limits the new rates to the calendar year in question, a distinct novelty in the history of income-tax legislation in the United States.

The Treasury has usually underguessed rather than overguessed the amount of surplus. It estimates the surplus for the fiscal year 1930 at about $226,000,000 and for the fiscal year 1931 at $123,000,000.

Income taxation still remains by far the most important money-raiser in the hands of the Federal government.

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Constructive Operations Carry Stock Prices Upward as Confidence is Revived

Dominated with a turnover of more than 7000 shares led a spirited rally of security prices on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday in which all of the major issues participated. While a similar movement was under way on the previous session the recovery was not sustained. Yesterday's revival of bullish operations, again ran the list upward and although a slight recession was noted toward the close the main trend of prices held at the higher levels.

Opposition doubled the activity of any other issue on the board and shot up 13-4 points to 45 3-4. The close was at ½. Southern California Edison was the second most active trader, and ran up another 2-4 points to a high for the day of 6. A late seller flurry, however, brought the close back to 59½ for a net gain of 1-4. Pacific Public Service showed another 1¼ points during the session to 61½ finished at 61¼, up 1-4 net.

Prices for all the petroleum issues combined to reflect the undercurrent of strength behind this group. Standard of California achieved a new high for the year at 65¼ and closed at 64¾, up 1-8 net. Union, Union Associates and Rio Grande, trading with equal intensity, advanced ¼ point or more each, Rio Grande crossing 21 for the first time on the late recovery. Richfield firmed up 1-4 to 29½.

Hydraulic Brake, on the expectation that the dividend obtaining on the old stock would be renewed for the larger issue and on rumors of an important new contract, advanced 2 points to 45. The company announced the declaration of the dividend after the market had closed. Republic Supply showed up prominently with an advance of 1½ points to 23½. Aero regained 1-4 to 3 while Boise Chica eased 10 cents to 1.60.

Sales totaled 31,518 shares valued at $1,209,317; previous day, 30,137 shares, valued at $1,204,556.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (AP)—Demand for bonds improved with the approach of the week-end today. The market was able, however, to hold its recent gains and nearly twenty new highs for the year appeared, although prices moved narrowly.

Announcement of the Treasury's new financing, which embraces $325,000,000 in 3¼ per cent certificates and $100,000,000 in the new Treasury bills, was accompanied by a broad advance in the listed government issues, most of which touched new highs for 1929. Only one security, the long term Liberty 3½s are now selling at discount and these closed today at 99.31.

The rate of the forthcoming certificates was lower than forecast and reflected the sharp reduction in money charges since the September financing, which bore 4½ per cent coupons.

The temporary experiment with the non-interest bearing bills is being viewed with interest in financial circles, for this is the first time the Treasury has undertaken through this means, which is in use in England. The bills are to be sold at discount for cash only, and prize is to be fixed by competitive bidding. This method is regarded as an interesting one in view of the fact that only cash and bills with a volume of Treasury bills at various maturities are subsequently made available for short term investments than the quarterly issues of Treasury certificates. Backers pointed out that if the bills, as they propose, familiar and as the volume increases might be developed to equal $4 billions.

Railroad bonds traded in the lightest volume of the week and there was a general easing of values in the group as a result of the smaller inquiry. New highs appeared in Canadian National 4½s, Chesapeake and Ohio refunding 4½s, Erie general 4s and convertible 4s, Missouri Kansas and Texas prior lien 5s, Nickel Plate 5½s, Southern Pacific 4½s and St. Louis and Southwestern Consolidated 4s.

Industrials displayed the best strength and 20 issues were carried to new peaks. Dealings in Loews and Warner Vitaphone 6s, Mirrale Sloss 6s and United Biscuit of America 6s, Utilities were dull.

The advance in stock prices resulted in rising coupons for the conversible issues. American Tobacco 4½s moved over above the $2,000.00 mark for a net gain of 15 points. Consolidated Gas convertible 4½s rose a point. Texas Corporation 5s and Chicago and Northwestern 4½s traded at fairly narrow price ranges.

The foreign section was dull and irregular.

The quotations represent sales of bonds (in $1,000 units) and the high, low and last dealing prices in order given. Accrued interest is added to the prices quoted when the same is the case, and both bid and close when same is blank.

OIL NEWS

By EDWARD KEGLEY

The Chanslor Oil and Refining Company is the latest operator to enter the Coalinga district in a move which a number of other companies are projecting for next winter, considerable drilling has been headed.

Chanslor was the discoverer of the pool of field three miles west of Coalinga. It will drill on the northwest quarter of Sec. 16, 19-14 Coalinga. Material is being assembled on the location and the company plans to spud in within a few days.

Several companies to enter the Coalinga district is J. W. Martin, who is drilling ahead on Sec. 22, 19-14, a short distance from the Chanslor lot. A few miles away, in the Kettleman Hills district, the Connolly-Gulf Company is working on a well in the same general vicinity. Shell has made location for a well to be drilled on Sec. 1, 3-16.

Lillis Lead

The Western Gulf Oil Company is drilling ahead and putting in water string for its Lillis No. 1 well, which is to be drilled on Lillis ranch, about thirty miles northwest of Bakersfield. Material and equipment started to move in more than a week ago on a 2000-acre lease. The well is to be drilled on Sec. 26, 11-13 and is the first for that particular district.

Under Way

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company has completed about fifteen miles of the natural gas pipe line to run from Kettleman Hills to Kingsburg and points in Northern California. Construction of this line, paralleling the one recently completed from San Jose to Kettleman Hills and Kingsburg, started at Kettleman Hills several weeks ago and work is being rapidly pushed.

To Spud

The Archer Oil Company will make a production test this week on its Watson No. 1 wildcat, near Dunn. According to field report it will not deepen this test but will try out the formation almost encountered, which had shown signs of oil and gas, with bottom at 4[illegible] feet.

Drilling Going On

The Standard Oil Company is drilling foundation for Shepard No. 1 which is to be drilled on a 255-acre lease in Castaic Pass, three miles north of Carpinteria. This undertaking is an effort to link up the producing fields located along the Santa Barbara coast.

Standard's series of ventures include the Carlos No. 1 at Point Conception; the Sudden No. 1 at San Agustin, and the Saticoy-Clark No. 4 near Saticoy. The latter is the deepest of the group and is now 3[illegible] feet and has not discovered any oil sand.

Near Santa Barbara, Standard is drilling ahead in Santa Barbara county No. 1 on the county farm tract of 24 acres. This prospector is but a short distance from the Summerland field discovered by the Union Oil and Refining Company a months ago.

Drilling Slowly

While a week the Santa Fe Springs field's output has shown a marked decline notwithstanding the completion of fifteen new wells, and operators are speculating the proration will be curtailed by Umpire Paul Kelly.

Yesterday's production was 159,400 barrels compared with the 174,000-barrel daily average a week ago, indicating strongly the effectiveness of the engine to supervise curtailment.

In the Round field yesterday's total flow was 31,000 barrels, which included the new completion of the Rosehill-Rio Grande combination now pumping out 2700 barrels beamed per. That would give the field a daily production slightly less than the 30,000 barrels daily allotment.

Depth in the Ventura-avenue area yesterday was 26,400 barrels of oil and 26,000,000 cubic feet of gas. This also shows a radical decline from the figures committed a week ago.

To Complete Soon

The first well of the Barnsdall Oil Company at Maricopa Flat may be completed within the next three days. Section No. 1 in that field is seven and three-quarter-inch casing set and after a few feet of sand is cored below a depth of 2[illegible] feet, the company will make a attempt to place it on production.

Elizabeth Trust No. 1 in the Ventura field is drilling below 5240 feet in sands of deep production.

To Deepen

The R. R. Macmillan Oil Company is deepening Refiff No. 2 near the corner of Little Lake and Foreman roads in Santa Fe Springs following failure to bring it in from a depth of 7850 feet. This project is to drilled into the lower Clarke sand, according to the 8000-foot depth before another production test is made.

To Test Showings

The Rose Oil Company is preparing to make a production test on its lease near the corner of Rosecrans avenue and Pasadena avenue, in Signal Hill. The drill is now at about 5700 feet at that point and if no results are obtained it is said the hole will be deepened at least 500 feet more. The No. 15 was completed some months ago, after a shallow producer for months.

Now Completion

The General Petroleum Corporation has completed Santa Fe No. 2-23 at Santa Fe Springs for 2200 barrels of 32.7-deg. gravity oil per day from a depth of 7850 feet in the lower Clarke sand. The flow is reported shut 4.7 per cent.

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 6. (AP)—Prices made irregular concessions in today's curb market. Many leaders sold off at the opening as traders took their profits, but strong support checked recessions. Although it was of a selective character, trade continued to find it difficult to attract an appreciable following. Some of the stocks of the high-grade issues are being continually picked up on the recessions by investment interests.

New, when issued, stock of the General Electric Company was admitted to unlisted trading privileges upon after the announcement of the four for one stock split-up and turned over in large volume, between 62½ and 60½, closing at 64½. Directors have indicated their intention of placing this stock on a $1.60 annual dividend basis.

Oil shares failed to make much response to the consideration of a quarterly dividend of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, which showed the largest dividend gain, improved freedom in the petroleum group. Additionally, gains for shares quoted down-town included Pure Oil, 7½; Skelly, a point; retained all but 2 points of the gain; Sinclair Consolidated Oil, fractionally higher; Ohio Oil, Standard of Kentucky and New Mexico Oil, unchanged to a point higher for the year at 142.

Tri-continental Allied Income, based on reports of investment companies, featured the investment trade and trading was active. Gains in excess of more than 4 points in Western Air Express was the only development of importance in the aviation group.

Aluminum Company of America jumped 12 points to 339 and American Metals 12 points to 110. Manufacturing issues moved 20 points to 470.

A rumor of more than 12 points in Midland Steel was influenced by unconfirmed reports of a merger of that and other Middle Western steel companies.

The following prices for sanitized when compared with the high and low and close thereof at the high:

COMPROMISE SOUGHT IN STATE GAME ROW

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6. (AP)—In order that an attempt might be made to effect a compromise between parties aligned for and against the proposal to give the State Fish and Game Commission full regulatory powers over wild life of the State, the directors of the State Chamber of Commerce here today granted an extension of time to its conservation committee, which is investigating the problem. Opponents of the proposal are largely commercial fishing interests. Proponents include the Associated Sportsmen of California, and the California Conservationists.

SENATORIAL IMMUNITY BEATS WRIT

Court Rules Heflin and Blease Not in Contempt for Ignoring Subpoenas

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. (AP)—Congressional immunity today was decided to be more powerful than a District of Columbia grand jury subpoena.

Justice Gordon, youngest member of the District of Columbia Supreme bench, who was called upon to decide the question after Senators Blease of South Carolina and Heflin of Alabama had refused to heed a jury summons, ruled today that they are immune from arrest for contempt.

The Senators were called upon to relate what they had been told about the case of Arthur Scrivener, Washington detective, whose death under mysterious circumstances three years ago was held to be a suicide. The case recently was revived and is now under grand jury investigation.

Judge Gordon announced his decision after the grand jury had submitted a report on Heflin's failure to appear. He said that the Constitution gives Senators and Representatives immunity from arrest while Congress is in session.

Italian Princes to Call on Pope

ROME, Dec. 6. — King Victor Emmanuel will go tomorrow to the Vatican with his only son, Crown Prince Humbert, and other princes of the House of Savoy, to present the princes to the Pope.

The ceremony will not be so striking as that which marked the visit of the King and the Queen and Foreign Minister Grandi to the Pope yesterday, but it will be carried out in the same form.

Bones of Mastodon Checked in Newest Fossil Discovery

E. L. Doheny and Group Engaged in Work

Checking up on bones of mastodon found at Capistrano Beach on property belonging to E. L. Doheny. On top of the fossil block at the right may be seen the fossil remains of the vertebra and at the left may be seen one of the femur bones. Those in the group are, left to right, Frank G. Hogan, Mrs. G. E. Laughery, Ransome Sutton, Wesley L. Bliss, R. M. Sands and H. E. Leyden and J. R. Pemberton standing behind Mr. Doheny, who is in right foreground.

HUGE MASTODON SKELETON "UNVEILED" BY DOHENY

Scientists View Bones Discovered on Capistrano Beach Land of Multimillionaire Oil Man

BY RANSOME SUTTON

In the presence of about twenty persons, including personal friends and observers, Edward L. Doheny yesterday "unveiled" the mastodon unearthed on his Capistrano Beach development. The discovery was made three weeks ago by H. E. Leyden, who has charge of the development work.

While cutting a street across the mesa, about a mile from the beach, he saw in the bank what looked like the crumbled end of a horn. But it was a larger horn than he ever had seen before, and he reported the matter to Mr. Doheny by telephone.

It was great news to the man who sponsored the Doheny scientific expedition to the Havasupai Canyon, in Northern Arizona, a few years ago, when the footprints of dinosaurs were discovered, over which paleontologists are now making much ado. Dropping everything else, he drove to the scene, about three miles below Capistrano, and promptly sensed the prehistoric significance of the find. Then he invited the co-operation of Dr. Bryan, director of the Los Angeles Museum, and the excavation of the Pleistocene monster has since proceeded under the direction of Dr. Bryan, and his representative, Wesley L. Bliss.

LIKE HUGE PEDESTAL

At the "unveiling" there were present Mr. Doheny and his assistant, R. M. Sands, also his geologist, J. R. Pemberton, and Frank J. Hogan of Washington, D. C.; H. E. Leyden, in charge of the property, representatives of The Times and Los Angeles Museum.

Approaching the diggings by way of an unpaved street newly cut across the mesa, a strange sight rose out of a hollowed place in the bank. It looked like a huge pedestal, upon which a gigantic statue of some kind had collapsed. For the earth had been removed from around the fossils and about two-thirds of the jumbled framework of a mastodon's body lay in plain view.

Looking down from the rim of the excavation, one did not need a microscope, nor was it necessary to use one's imagination. Naked eyes could see those bones.

A femur, or thigh bone, lay on top near the animal's head, and the vertebrae were jumbled out of place. But one very gratifying fact stod out, all the bones of this creature are probably in this heap, and when it is restored the skeleton will contain its own bones. At La Brea that would have been impossible, because hundreds of animals there left their bones together, and it is quite impossible to select those which belong to just one animal. Mr. Doheny's mastodon, however, died alone, and the bones on the lower pedestal all belong to him.

EXPERTS SAY MASTODON

How do we know it is a mastodon? The museum experts say so, and they have worked in mastodon graveyards long enough to know. Moreover, this beast had saber-like tusks, perfectly curved for fighting and rooting, whereas its Pleistocene contemporaries of elephantine proportions, including two or three species of elephants and the woolly mammoths, had tusks which curled too much to be of any fighting value. Only mastodons had fighting tusks. Then the tooth, which has been exposed, shows the corrugations found only on the teeth of mastodons. And such a tooth! It measured nine inches long and five and one-half inches wide.

More interesting, however, is that exposed femur, because it gives a definite idea as to the size of the animal. It is thirty-five and one-half inches long, and ten and one-half inches thick at the upper socket. Using it as a yardstick, it is easy to determine how tall the animal was—because there is a mastodon's skeleton in the museum from which proportions can be obtained.

It is safe to say this creature stood close to ten feet tall. And, judging length in the same way, it was about fourteen feet long from the stub of the tail to the base of the tusks.

ONE TUSK EXPOSED

Only one tusk is exposed, and not fully. For the bones are all matrixed together in indurated clay, and it will take a lot of careful chiseling to separate them. The partially exposed tusk, from which the pointed end has been broken, measured three feet long by four and three-fourths inches in diameter.

RACE FOR BONES WAKES UP DEAD

Curio Seekers Swarm Over Indian Burial Ground

New Type of Claim Jumper Rises in Carpinteria

Relics of Eight Centuries Dug Up by One and All

BY CHESTER G. HANSON
"Times" Staff Representative

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 6.—A new type of claim-jumper loomed on the outskirts of Carpinteria today as curio seekers swarmed over the site of the old Indian burial ground uncovered by road builders and sought skulls, bones, jewelry and other relics of savages who have slept under the cliff overlooking the ocean for probably eight centuries.

News of the discovery of the old graveyard has brought numbers of people, some near-scientists and others just memento hunters, armed with shovels and picks. They are working over the burial ground where countless skeletons were dug up by a steam shovel several days ago. They are here and there in the black soil making excavations where likely spots give promise of yielding the grave of some Indian brave of by-gone days. The result is that such remarks as the following can be heard by the grave diggers.

ARM AND LEG NEEDED

"I wouldn't dig there, that's Charley's spot. He got a fine skull out of there already and he needs an arm and a leg to go with the rest of his bones."

"No, don't dig there. He has uncovered a fine skeleton and he wants to take it out all intact. He has just covered it up again while he has gone to lunch and will go to work on it when he comes back."

"Well, I haven't heard of any law about staking claims in an Indian graveyard, and so here I go," exclaims the exasperated searcher and plunges in with his shovel.

There really is nothing startlingly new in the discovery of this old burial ground, according to David B. Rogers, archeologist and curator of the Museum of Natural History of Santa Barbara. But it is very interesting, he said. He is an authority on the Indian history of this part of the country, having done considerable excavating of old Indian villages himself. He has a wounderful collection of Indian relics at the museum.

CANALINO INDIANS

This burial ground, he said, dates back probably 700 or 800 years. It is, no doubt, the burial ground of a tribe known as Canalino Indians. As far as Mr. Rogers has traced the history of the early peoples here, they came along about 7000 years ago, the Oak Grove tribe. They disappeared and several centuries later came a tribe of nomads or hunters and then came the Indians, whose skeletons now are being pawed over by curio hunters at the old burial ground.

The Canalino Indians no doubt came over to the mainland from the Channel Islands when the islands became overpopulated and the food supply ran low. Mr. Rogers has perfect skulls in his showcase representing these peoples.

As to why so many skeletons are found buried in a crouched position, face down, it is explained that they were a very idealistic people. They believed that one should leave this world as he came into it and

MR. GENE TUNNEY, banished from the Social Register, behaved about as could have been expected.

He left the prize-fighter friends who helped him make his million shivering on the New York dock while he retired to his cabin and drank cocktails with the society people, the licking of whose boots must by now have put a callous on his tongue.

AN OPEN LETTER

An open letter to Paul Shoup, the big shot of the Southern Pacific:

Looks here. You are not one of these snooty New Yorkers who come out here and try to change California to make it look and sound like the Bronx. Neither are you one of the pinhead clerks in the Postmaster-General's office who tries to change California place names. You belong here. Here is where you sprouted.

Then why in thunder don't you restore the real name of San Buenaventura? You might as well put the name Frisco on your stations; or shorten your native San Bernardino to San Berdoo as to plaster "Ventura" on the depot of this beautiful old town.

San Buenaventura has a lovely an romantic significance. "Ventura" means nothing.

Come on, feller; be good!

OLD CHING

I always have a lot of luck when I come to a town in bumping into the most interesting character in the place. I found one in San Buenaventura who delights my soul.

He is an old Chinaman. When he was young this was a little town and there were a lot of Chinese. One by one they have died off, or have gone back to China to die. Only he is left—in patient loneliness.

He makes his living by collecting edible seaweed to send back to China. The kelp beds wash in his daily prosperity as the manna descended from heaven. He spreads it on the beach to dry; and—to the townspeople—it would be considered a crime just one degree below murder to monkey with it.

I have an idea that part of the old fellow's moiety of happiness comes from the fact that, as he works, his face is always turned toward the sea. Somewhere over there, across the blue water prairie, is China, the home of his heart, which he will never see again.

ROMANCE

It is a great pity that the history and traditions of these old California towns are not known as is the history of the New England towns. San Buenaventura, for instance, has more romance and drama than all the towns in New England stacked in a pile.

For instance, out here on the same beach where the old Chinaman collects the seaweed.

SHARKS!

Years ago, a company of Mexican soldiery was sent to garrison Santa Barbara. That burg, being very aristocratic and slightly upstage, declined to be garrisoned by soldiers recruited from convicts; at that time men were sentenced to the army instead of prison.

Some early-day diplomat solved the embarrassment by sending them to the island of Santa Cruz—thirty miles off the coast—and turning them loose to shift for themselves and to be forgotten.

Twenty of the soldier convicts

PUBLISHERS TO DINE AT RIVERSIDE

They Will be Entertained as Prelude to Opening of World Relations Parley

Publishers of Southern California newspapers will be guests of Frank Miller, master of the Mission Inn at Riverside, and Dr. R. B. von Kleinsmid, chancellor of the Institute of International Relations, at a dinner Tuesday evening.

Mr. Miller, well-known for his personal efforts to promote world peace and further universal harmony, is a member of the advisory board of the Institute of International Relations, which is to hold its fifth annual session tomorrow to next Friday at Riverside.

Prof. D. K. Karve, founder, organizer, and syndic, Indian Women's University, Poona, India, will give an address on "Social Problems in India," and Maj.-Gen. Victor A. Yakhontoff of New York City, formerly military attache, Imperial Russian Embassy, Tokio, and assistant Secretary of War, Russia, is to speak on "The Russo-Chinese Conflict" immediately following the dinner Tuesday.

The Institute of International Relations annually brings to Southern California a group of the foremost authorities on foreign affairs in this country, as well as a number from overseas.

KENTUCKIANS' DANCE SET

Kentuckians and their friends are invited by A. F. Schuler, president, to attend the monthly reunion, dance and card party to be given by the Kentucky State Society Tuesday evening, next, at El Patio Ballroom, Third street and Vermont avenue. Music will be furnished by Josef Skrivanek and his orchestra.

MACKAY JURY IN FOR NIGHT

Members Sent to Hotel After Failing to Reach Verdict in Trial of Keyes's Former Aide

The jury of eight women and four men deliberating the fate of Donald MacKay, chief trial deputy District Attorney during the regime of Asa Keyes, on a bribery indictment was unable to reach a verdict last night after four hours, and was sent to a hotel for the night.

Superior Judge Wilson, before whom the case was tried, ordered the bailiff to have the jury members in their room today at 9 a.m. to resume deliberations.

MacKay is charged with accepting a bribe from Ben Getzoff, Spring-street tailor, and admitted pay-off man, to dismiss criminal charges preferred last year against A. I. Lasker, former head of the Lasker Finance Corporation.

Deliberation by the jury began at 4:30 p.m. yesterday, and when sent to bed no report had been made to the court as to how consideration of the case was progressing. Courtroom attaches declined to comment on the probable standing of the twelve, but there were indications that the jury had taken only one ballot. A few moments after the dinner recess the jury asked for a copy of the instructions of the court, and some of the exhibits. These were supplied on stipulation by both defense and prosecuting attorneys.

ARGUMENTS HEARD

The case was given to the jury after arguments by Dept. Dist.-Atty. William McKay and Chief Deputy District Attorney Stewart for the prosecution, and MacKay himself and Attorney Richard Cantillon for the defense.

Dept. Dist.-Atty. Mackay reviewed the testimony extensively in his plea to the jury, painting Mackay as one, who had been influenced in dismissing the Lasker charges by gifts from Getzoff, and terminating his address with a request for MacKay's conviction.

MacKay then argued briefly in his own defense, pleading with the

STATE GAME FARM OPENS TOMORROW

Others to be Established in Southland by State Commission

The Los Serranos State Game Farm, the first of its kind in Southern California, will be dedicated formally, according to announcement by Fish and Game Commissioner Clarkson, tomorrow morning. The ceremonies will be in charge of the Izaak Walton League and State officials.

Located three miles south of Chino on the Chino-to-Corona highway on the Los Serranos Country Club site, the game farm was obtained by the Fish and Game Commission without cost to the State. Extensive buildings consisting of brooders and runways have been constructed by the State and at present thousands of wild game birds of all kinds are being held there for release in Southern California.

According to Commissioner Clarkson some 5000 sportsmen and wildbird lovers will gather at the farm at 8 a.m. tomorrow for the formal opening. As a part of the program hundreds of birds now on the farm will be released in the surrounding country.

Present plans of the Fish and Game Commission are to establish a number of other game farms in the south as soon as the success of the present farm has been demonstrated to the local hunters.

Ray L. Riley, State Controller and candidate for Governor, will speak this afternoon at the dedication. Making a trip from Sacramento to be present at the dedication, he will be in Los Angeles tomorrow morning and leave tomorrow night on the return trip.

LOOSE DOG BAN SOUGHT

The Automobile Club of Southern California yesterday filed with the Council a request that an ordinance be passed prohibiting dogs from running loose on the streets. It was referred to the Public Welfare Committee.

FUGITIVE REPORTED IN SUICIDE

Former Motor Officer Killed Self in Trinidad, Bond Company Informed

Efforts were being made by the Sheriff's office last night to verify a report that Earl R. Wilson, former motorcycle policeman and a fugitive from justice on Wright Act charges, committed suicide in Port of Spain, Trinidad, when an investigator for a local bonding company sought to place him under arrest.

The information concerning Wilson's asserted death came to the H. S. Hallner Company, bail bondsmen, from Cecil Armstrong, an investigator, who trailed Wilson for the company from Los Angeles to New Orleans and on to Port of Spain.

Immediately on receipt of Armstrong's brief cablegram, which gave no details, H. S. Hallner, head of the bond company, conferred with Capt. J. B. Fox, head of the Sheriff's fugitive detail, who cabled the American Consul at Port of Spain for further particulars and identifications.

Capt. Fox requested the American Consul to certify the reported death of the former officer, obtain his lodge cards, passport and other personal effects to bring before the courts here in future proceedings.

Approximately two months ago, according to the investigators, Wilson, under $3500 appeal and other bonds with Hallner and other companies as result of Wright Act charges, fled Los Angeles and went to New Orleans where he obtained passage on a boat for Port of Spain off South America.

The chase after Wilson is believed to be one of the longest made by any bond company after a fugitive. Investigator Armstrong traveled twenty-four days from Los Angeles to Port of Spain.

Wilson was on the city's motor police several years ago. He is between 38 and 40 years of age and is understood to have a divorced wife living in Los Angeles.

S. T. HILL FUNERAL TODAY

SCHOOL EPIDEMIC DYING OUT

Unusual Illness Among Students in Eagle Rock Sets City Experts Investigating

An epidemic resembling intestinal flu, which in the past two days has caused the illness of ninety-four pupils of Sart Rafael School, Eagle Rock, yesterday was the subject of intensive investigation on the part of city and school health authorities. At Glendale the epidemic is reported as being more pronounced than at Eagle Rock.

According to Dr. Carl Wilson, director of the chemical and biological department of the Department of Water and Power, the epidemic was not caused by drinking water. This, he said, was determined at a meeting held yesterday afternoon at San Rafael School and by examinations of the water supply, which was up to the usual standard.

ILLNESS COMES SUDDENLY

At the meeting yesterday, besides Dr. Wilson and school officials, two representatives of the School Health Department were sent by Dr. Morrison, head of the department. Dr. Stevens, infectious disease expert, and Sanitary Engineer H. H. Matthewson, of the City Health Department were present as well.

Pupils, it developed at the meeting, were seized suddenly with violent nausea and vomiting. Only in a few instances were temperatures noted and only in adult attacks did slight dysintery follow. The pupils showed no ill effects afterward.

"It could not be the water" said Dr. Wilson; "the same water goes through one trunk line that supplies al of Eagle Rock and there is but one section of the city that is affected and that is the northwest part adjoining Glendale, where I understand the epidemic has assumed larger proportions. The water is from the infiltration galleries in the Los Angeles River and this is considered the safest source of supply. It is treated with chlorine, which has the same effect on

S.C. LEWIS WORTH NICKEL, HE TELLS COURT REFEREE

S. C. Lewis, former head of the Julian Petroleum Corporation and at one time rated a millionaire, testified before Arthur Wills, referee of the Superior Court, yesterday, that he had in his possession exactly 5 cents.

Lewis was taken before the court on a judgment against him in favor of the Grunze Tile Company, for $1400 worth of furnishings of Lewis's home in Beverly Hills.

"I have only 5 cents in my pocket, my sole wealth, and the only property I own is a set of law books," said Lewis, in response to questions by his attorney, William Rains.

The debtor's attorney thereupon demanded that the law books be sold to pay the judgment, but Attorney Rains argued that the books were implements of Lewis's profession and not subject to levy. Referee Wills agreed with Lewis's attorney and the former head of the oil company still has his library.

QUERY FEATURES OIL CASE

Question on Departmental Transfer of Authority Put to Finney But Goes Unanswered

Whether it is usual or unusual for one department of the government to act for another was a question that featured the trial yesterday in United States District Judge Norcross's court, in the case of the United States against the Pan American Petroleum Corporation. The question was asked of Edward C. Finney, former first assistant Secretary of the Interior under Secretary Fall, and now solicitor of the same department. It was not answered.

Former Senator Pomerene, chief prosecutor in the case, immediately objected to the question. The court did not rule on it, as Norman S. Sterry of defense counsel stated he later will call Mr. Finney as a defense witness to answer the question. It was intimated that the question has considerable bearing on the case, in that the right to give leases of oil reserves was transferred from the Navy Department to the Interior Department at the request of Mr. Fall.

FALL TRANSACTION

Mr. Finney resumed the stand yesterday afternoon, after testimony had been taken out of turn, for the defense, from Darius E. Perkins, an attorney of Visalia. The last question asked of Mr. Finney, before the latter left the stand was, "Did you have knowledge of a $100,000 transaction between Mr. Fall and Mr. Doheny?" The answer was, "No." Mr. Sterry then asked if Mr. Pomerene contended that the government had reference to more than one transaction. Mr. Pomerene said he referred to but one transaction.

The morning session of court was featured by a controversy between Mr. Pomerene and Mr. Sterry over the reading into the records by the former of paragraphs from the records of the United States Supreme Court regarding previous cases against the Pan American company. Sterry protested that 95 per

BAUMGARTEKER REWARD POSTED

Wife of Missing Wine Man Makes $1000 Offer

Woman Plot Suspect in Jail to be Quizzed Anew

Girl Admits Friendship With Rich Merchant

A reward of $1000 for the return to his home here of Frank Baumgarteker, wealthy wine merchant, who has been missing mysteriously for eleven days, was announced last night in an effort to solve the strange puzzle of his disappearance.

The amount has been posted in a bank by Mrs. Mary Baumgarteker, wife of the missing man, and will be paid to anyone giving information that will lead to the finding of Baumgarteker, if alive, and the recovery of his body, if dead, according to the announcement of police authorities.

Investigation of half a hundred bits of information by Captain of Detectives Cato, Capt. Allen and Detective Lieutenants Condaffer, Conkin and Sanderson, and the arrest of Dorothy Dustin on a suspicion of extortion, have failed to locate the 43-year-old vineyardist, the searching officers admit.

GIRL TO BE QUIZZED

It has been revealed that Baumgarteker carries a total of $500,000 insurance on his life, and that a few days before his disappearance he made special inquiry as to the dates of payments of premiums. The policies were found to be fully paid. Information on this particular phase of the case was supplied authorities earlier in the search when the missing man's secretary was asked as to his business affairs. Police since have decided that the insurance inquiry was more or less of a coincidence in connection with the disappearance.

The questioning of friends and business associates has only served to more completely twist the tangled skein of information on his disappearance, and almost motives for the riddle with a baffling fog of mystery.

The Dustin girl, who was placed in the County Jail yesterday to await an investigation of her attempt to procure $1000 from the missing man's wife, will be questioned today at 2:30 a.m. by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Richardson.

The filing of a complaint against the 24-year-old stenographer on a charge of blackmail will depend on the outcome of the inquiry today, according to Cato. "We will place all the facts and circumstances of the case before the District Attorney and formal charge must come from that office," Cato said.

GIRL TELLS OF FRIENDSHIP

Mrs. Baumgarteker, who requested that the girl be arrested after her prearranged meeting with her in a downtown hotel, where the asserted story of the husband's friendship with a chum of the girl was intimated and the publicity threat uttered, will tell her version of the money plot to Richardson.

Officers yesterday investigated the story of the arrested girl and report that they located and questioned the girl chum, Katherine Rousseau. The Dustin girl told the officers that the Rousseau girl and Baumgarteker were very friendly some months ago. Police say that the Rousseau girl, who lives at 1426 South Ardmore street, admits a close acquaintance with the missing man, and that she formerly was employed in his office. She also says, according to police report, that she was discharged last May on account of the friendship between herself and employer. The girl, however, states that she has not seen Baumgarteker since July, last, and was unable to give the police any clew that would aid in disclosing his whereabouts.

Acting on a "tip" from San Diego officers, who have been engaged in the search since the recovery of the Baumgarteker auto in a garage there, Capt. Allen was in the southern city and Mexican resorts yesterday and working on a report that the missing man was seen in Agua Caliente Thanksgiving Day. Other reports, which were under investigation, said that Baumgarteker was seen near Ensenada.

cent of the testimony so far has been written matter, previously in court records and that three-fourths of the transcripts of court records are repetitions. The objection was overruled and the records were read into the court records.

On request of defense counsel, Darius E. Perkins, formerly attorney for R. J. White and H. T. Coffin, who filed mineral claims in the Elk Hills Oil Reserves in 1910, was called as a defense witness out of turn. The government is seeking cancellation of three important leases in the Elk Hills district, obtained by the Pan American Company and now held by the Richfield Oil Company.

Mr. Perkins stated that the claim held by White and Coffin, on a mineral claim, was staked in 1910 and was not part of an asserted conspiracy to obtain the land for the Pan American company. This lease, it was brought out, later was transferred to the Pan American company and relinquished to the government as part consideration for the other oil leases.

The trial was continued until Monday morning, Lieutenant Commander Lendis will be the next government witness.

MASTODON BONES VIEWED

Scientists Say Animal Found on Doheny Property Lived 25,000 Years Ago

The diameter measurement, however, was made at a distance from the buried base. Scaled according to the length of the femur, but not measured, the skull is about forty inches through from crown to under side of lower jaw.

The land in which the bones were buried is of tidal mud origin. Mr. Doheny explains the jumbled position of the bones on the theory that tidal agitation may have caused the jumbling. The mastodon, he thinks, was caught in the mud when the mesa lay on a level with the surface of the ocean. Since then the morass had been raised up, for it is now 160 feet above sea level.

The following bones appear entire: Backbone, including all of the tail vertebrae, the head and (certainly) one tusk, both shoulder blades (eighteen by twenty-seven inches in size,) many ribs, the pelvis, femur and teenth.

FEET NOT YET FOUND

The feet and shinbones have not yet been found, probably because they are buried within the matrix.

The depth of the excavation, from the surface of the mesa to the upper side of the skeleton, is only about three feet. A large part of the covering, according to Wesley Bits of the museum, consists of surface soils washed down from the mountains. In order to get down to the land level, upon which this creature and all other Pleistocene animals lived, it is necessary to dig down only three feet. So we are not very far removed from the Pliestocene after all.

Compared with Jumbo, the largest African elephant ever exhibited in a circus, the mastodon was a bit smaller.

At the present time, a herd of mastodons—for they ranged in herds—would have hard picking along the beach. But during the Pleistocent the climate was quite different from now. That period included the four glaciations, with which geologists are familiar. The ice, says Geologist Pemberton, did not cover Southern California, save on the mountain tops, and he thinks the climate was not many degrees colder than now. Up along the Canadian boundary, however, the ice sheets were a mile thick, and that great ice pack must have greatly influenced rainfall.

FOREST ANIMALS

Dr. Chester Stock, of the California Institute of Technology, has found evidence that the climate was very cool and moist, the country therefore being quite generally forested. And mastodons were forest animals, rather than plains animals. Like the woolly mammoths, they were equipped for cold weather. The remains of one found in an ancient swamp near Newburg, N. Y., had on its bones quite a few fragments of long, dense shaggy hair of a golden brown color. In its mouth were remnants of the twigs upon which it was browsing when it became bogged. Benson says mastodons were strong enough and fleet enough to run down and destroy any animal with which they were contemporaneous."

Geologists and zo-ologists agree that they came from Asia to America via the Alaskan land bridge.

HANDLED WITH CARE

These fighting lords of the wilds ranged from Alaska southward over the whole United States. The skeletons of more than 100 were found bogged together in an ancient quagmire about twenty miles south of St. Louis, and from similar swamps skeletal remains of individuals have been recovered in a dozen States. Nowhere, however, have the skeletons stood the wear and tear of time as well as here in California. But Mr. Doheny's skeleton, while perfect as to parts, will have to be handled with care, because the bones are more crumbly than those taken from the tar at La Brea.

As to the age of this skeleton, it is safe to say it has been in existence since about the time the last glacial period closed, which was probably some 25,000 years ago. It is known, however, that mastodons survived extinction longer than the elephants and mammoths, and many paleontologists suspect that mastodons were still at large when the red men arrived. As a matter of fact, Mr. Doheny has a photograph of a drawing made in a cave of Mountain Sheep Supai Canyon which looks much like a mastodon attacking a human being.

EPIDEMIC CAUSE BEING STUDIED

the water as pasteurization has on milk. The water never is out of closed conduits except for the extra supply tanks on the hill tops which contain a very small amount.

EPIDEMIC DYING OUT

"The water samples all show O.K. in the laboratory tests. The first case was noted Wednesday, the majority of attacks occurred Thursday, while on Friday there were but seven, indicating the dying out of the epidemic. So far we have not determined the source."

No complaint has been lodged with the Department of Water, Power and Light by the City Health officials, according to Secretary James P. Vroman, last night.

Dr. George Parrish, City Health officer, said that the matter had been reported to his department yesterday and that every effort was being made to prevent further illness.

PARRISH HAS THEORY

An investigation by the Health Department as to the cause of the poisoning disclosed that it was not from the five dairies located in the district. All food supply houses were visited and nothing found that would cause the epidemic, he said.

His employees learned that most of those affected were either in the San Rafael Grammar School or the neighborhood immediately surrounding it. For this reason, he explained, samples of water from the Sagmore reservoir supplying the district, were obtained and were being examined in the health department laboratory by Dr. Mona E. Betin and Dr. L. V. Diater.

Dr. Parish explained that the Health Department was not informed of any of the poisoning cases until yesterday morning. As the result of the department's investigation, he stated, he has a good idea of the cause of the poisoning but is not positive, and until he is, the commission advised him not to make a further report.

Investigation of the poisoning cases was conducted by Dr. O. S. Porter, assistant city health officer, aided by M. S. Siegel, director of personnel; George Savage, of the Health and Sanitation Division, and Health Engineer H. H. Mathieson.

Thrice-Struck Traffic Victim Dies of Injuries

Henry Balsinger, 68 years of age, of 1813 South Western avenue, died yesterday in Georgia-street Receiving Hospital as the result of injuries received Thursday when he was struck by one automobile, run over by another and then dragged forty feet by a Pacific Electric car. The accident occurred on Venice Boulevard midway between St. Andrews and Manhattan places.

Balsinger was walking across Venice Boulevard, when, according to the police report, an automobile driven by Charles Milgus, 31, of 1373 West Twenty-third street, struck him. He landed unconscious on the roadway at the other side of the car tracks. Milgus stopped his car at the curb, but before he could reach the injured man a large sedan ran over Balsinger and flung him across the rails.

The sedan sped on a short distance, stopped a moment, and then continued on its way. Milgus started again to aid the stricken man, but this time was blocked by the approach of a Pacific Electric car. The car wheels did not run over Balsinger, but the trucks dragged him a distance of forty feet, police reported.

Detectives under Capt. McCaleb are conducting a search for the sedan. Milgus is being held on suspicion of manslaughter pending an inquest to be held at 10 a.m. today.

After crashing into two other automobiles last night, Mrs. Anna Czarra, 43, of 634 South Coronado street, was arrested on charge of drunk driving, and was sent to the County Jail.

Detective Lieutenants Torres and Stead asserted that Mrs. Czarra, driving on the left side of the street, struck a car owned by A. Ward of 619 West Twenty-fourth street, which was parked opposite to 2621 Scott street. This automobile was jolted up on the sidewalk, following which, Mrs. Czarra's car backed across the street and into the automobile of A. J. Clare of 2621 Scott street. Police took Mrs. Czarra to Georgia-street Receiving Hospital, where Dr. Smith tested her and pronounced her intoxicated.

so the bodies were buried in what the scientists have designated as the embryonic position. You can go out in that graveyard and find one skeleton after another, so buried, face down. All their personal belongings were buried with them and so the grave diggers today are finding various types of hunting and cutting instruments hewn out of stone, arrowheads, bowls and the like.

BEADS FOUND

One grave, uncovered by H. M. Bowen of Santa Barbara, has yielded a number of small beads which were recovered only by running the black powdery soil through an old piece of window screening. The graves are not deep, some skeletons being only a foot or so under the surface, and one skeleton on top of another. Mr. Rogers explains this by saying that it probably was an old burial ground used for many years.

W. H. Hern of Carpinteria uncovered a grave which showed two heavy stones had been planted at the head to prevent wild animals from digging up the grave.

One of the most interesting things uncovered in the present excavating, in the opinion of Mr. Rogers, is a long Indian bead of sacred pipestone. It is about the thickness of the finger with a small hole the length of it. How the Indian drilled that hole is a mystery. The next mystery is how the stone got out here, being found only in an Indian quarry in Southern Minnesota. Mr. Rogers said he thought he had the only such bead in the world until a woman brought this in, dug up in the present burial ground. Mr. Rogers found his bead resting on the breast of a skeleton he dug up in an Indian village north of here four years ago.

SCIENTIST TO DIG

The burial ground will be the scene of intensive scientific research when an expedition headed by Bruce Bryan, Los Angeles archaeologist formerly with the Southwest and Los Angeles museums, begins excavations. Bryan holds a permit from the owner, enabling him to carry on investigations.

From a preliminary investigation of the remains turned up, Bryan is of the opinion that only one side of the original burial ground has been touched and that considerable yet lies buried beneath the ancient kitchen-midden or shell mound that was once the habitation of the primitive coast Indians of the California cultures.

Bryan plans to photograph everything of value and whatever relics are found in excavating will be restored and placed on exhibition in one of the museums of Los Angeles.

Woman Reports Brutal Attack

Miss Natalie Castello, 25 years of age, 2163 West Twenty-fourth street, was beaten and choked brutally when an unknown man attempted to assault her near Adams and Gramercy Place last evening, according to her report to the police.

Miss Castello had alighted from a car and was walking up Gramercy Place when a man stepped from behind a tree and grabbed her arms. She offered him her purse, but he refused this and hit her in the face, choked her and attempted to force a gag into her mouth, she said. She fought him off and screamed and neighbors coming to her rescue drove the assailant away, the police learned. Detectives Sauter and Misner of the Wilshire station are investigating the attack. Neighbors said that a man answering the description had been seen loitering about the corner for several hours during the evening.

Trio in Stolen Auto Captured

Three boys in a roadster last night were chased through dense fog for eighteen blocks before pursuing detectives caught them. Detective Lieutenants Wingfield and Jones of the Seventy-seventh-street division noticed the youths driving in a yellow roadster which had been reported stolen. A chase began and the detectives overtook the fleeing trio.

They were George F. Bennett, 18 years of age, of 1623 West Fifty-first street, recently paroled; Benjamin J. Cook, 17, of 4239 Raymond street, also out on parole, and S. F. Biegler, 15, of 1272 West Vernon avenue. All were booked on charge of suspicion of robbery. Additional charges of grand theft and violation of parole were booked against Bennett and Cook.

BIFFLE PERJURY VERDICT WAITS

Jury After Hours' Debate Retires for Night

Observers Predict Decision by Noon Today

Dunaev Ordered by Court to Appear Tuesday

Four and a half hours' deliberation by a jury of seven men and five women failed to bring a verdict in the case of Garland Biffle, Alhambra law-book salesman, tried on a charge of perjury in connection with his testimony in the trial of Alexander Pantages, yesterday, and at 10:30 p.m. they were sent to their hotel for the night.

Deliberations will be resumed today at 9:30 a.m., and courtroom observers and attorneys for both prosecution and defense intimated that they expect a verdict before noon. No indications as to the standing of the jury was available but the nearness of the verdict was apparent, according to court officials, when the jurors asked for the court summons which brought Biffle to the witness chair at the Pantages hearing.

PERJURY CHARGED

Biffle was charged with falsely testifying at the Pantages trial that he saw Eunice Pringle and Nicholas Dunaev, playwright, together in the lobby of the Pantages Building the afternoon of August 9, last, date of the asserted attack on Miss Pringle by Pantages. He also testified at the Pantages trial that he overheard Miss Pringle say, "Pantages will be sorry if he doesn't place me this time," and that Dunaev replied, "Don't get cold feet."

Miss Pringle testified at Biffle's trial that she entered the lobby of the Pantages Building alone after leaving Dunaev in the latter's car at Seventh and Hill streets, Dunaev corroborated her testimony.

STICKS TO STORY

Biffle and his wife were the only witnesses called by the defense. They both repeated the testimony they gave at the Pantages trial, that they saw Miss Pringle and Dunaev together in the lobby of the building. Biffle also repeated his previous story that he overheard a conversation between Miss Pringle and Dunaev.

The case was given to the jury yesterday after arguments by Dep. Dist.-Attys. Frampton and Van Cott for the prosecution and Attorneys William T. Kendrick, Sr., and William T. Kendrick, Jr., for the defense.

DEFENSE ARGUMENT

The defense argued that Biffle gave his testimony in the Pantages case in good faith; also that the testimony was immaterial to Pantages's defense and, therefore, could not be made the subject of perjury. Kendrick, Sr., asserted Biffle had been arrested to intimidate other witnesses for Pantages.

Dep. Dist.-Atty. Van Cott, concluding for the prosecution, declared the "State has conclusively established that this defendant gave untrue testimony in an effort to save Alexander Paniages from prison. In the interest of justice and law enforcement it is your duty to convict this man of perjury."

After the jury retired Judge Wood ordered Dunaev to return to court next Tuesday morning, at which time the court will decide what action, if any, will be taken in regard to Dunaev's asserted prompting of another prosecution witness. Dunaev was ordered to remain in the courtroom Wednesday when Bailiff Parker reported to the court that he had overheard Dunaev discussing proposed testimony to be given by another State's witness.

PROBATION DENIED IN SHOOTING

C. C. Connor Faces Term in Prison for Assault on Police Officer

Probation yesterday was denied by Superior Judge Doran to Clarence C. Connor, 32 years of age, who two weeks ago pleaded guilty to a charge of assault with a deadly weapon on H. C. Kelley, police officer.

Characterizing Connor as an unfortunate victim of his own temper, the judge said he was compelled by law to sentence him to the penitentiary. Connor should serve as an example to other hotheaded young lovers, he said.

Connor is asserted to have shot Kelley last September while the officer was stationed at the home of L. H. Truesdale, 5322 Baltimore street, in response to a complaint made to police by Truesdale that Connor was annoying his daughter Beatrice.

An additional assault charge against Connor in which Truesdale was involved was dismissed by the court upon the motion of Dep. Dist.-Atty. Colegrove. He faces a sentence of from seven to ten years.

WISHFUL "PRAYER" PRIES RINGS FROM SEALED BAG

The old game of jewel-wishing cost Mrs. C. M. Branch of 604 North Walden Drive, Beverly Hills, five rings valued at $6000, it was revealed last night in a Beverly Hills police report.

The loss was reported to the Beverly Hills officers last Thursday, the day that Mrs. Branch discovered she had been duped by two swarthy Mexican women after one of the women had prayed over the rings for seven days, according to the police record.

Mrs. Branch reported to Detective Lieutenant White that a Mexican woman appeared at the door of her home and asked her if she had any wishes she wanted to come true.

An agreement was reached, according to the report, and the Mexican woman instructed Mrs. Branch to wrap five rings tightly in a package, suspend them round her neck and not to open the package for ten days. She did this, White reported, and for seven days the woman came to the Branch home and prayed over the rings.

Mrs. Branch looked within the package each day, however, and found all the rings intact, according to the record. On the eighth day a substitute Mexican woman visited Mrs. Branch and did the praying.

When she looked in the package that evening, Mrs. Branch told police, she found cheap substitutes for the original rings.

Mrs. Branch refused to discuss the matter last night and a special detective working on the case said he was under orders not to give out any information. Beverly Hills police said Mrs. Branch could not give them a description of either Mexican woman.

SINGER BACK FOLLOWING LONG TOUR

Dusolina Giannini Cites Antipodes Audiences' Love of Better Music

Dusolina Giannini, youthful American opera singer, returned to her native land yesterday on the liner City of Honolulu, following a tour and a half months' tour of Australia and New Zealand, firmly convinced that the audiences of the Antipodes are music hungry and among the most appreciative in the world. She gave a series of forty-nine concerts which started in Sydney and went on through all of the important cities of Australia and New Zealand.

"The people of Australasia seem to take their music more seriously than do Americans," Miss Giannini said last night, "for we noticed that during the eleven concerts in Sydney there were many of the same faces in the orchestra rows during the whole course."

The singer pointed out that although many of the world's noted singers visit Australia, their visits are at long intervals and in the interim the only entertainment is the music from the American sound pictures. "And then too," she added, "many of the artists wait until they are advanced in years and have lost their best voice before they travel."

NEW TURN IN INQUIRY ON JULIAN CASE

Postal Inspectors Now Seek Data from Victims of Asserted Stock Tangle

Postoffice inspectors yesterday resumed their investigation of the asserted overissue of the Julian Petroleum Corporation stock by mailing out form letters to various stockholders and those supposed to have bought fake stock. The investigation has been in progress for several months.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Redwine declined to comment on the case, except to say that the investigation has been under way for a long period, following the dismissal of the cases in the State courts, and that the usual form letter is being sent out by postal inspectors.

Peace-Prayers Day Proposed

In a telegram sent last night to President Hoover by Ethelwyn Mills, secretary of the Los Angeles branch of the Fellowship of World Reconciliation, a plea was made for executive declaration of a day of prayer when the London conference on armament reduction begins.

It is requested that all agencies be asked to unite simultaneously in a prayer that the conference shall formulate a plan for protecting the world from the horrors of war. The communication adds a belief that other nations will unite in a world-encompassing prayer, adding spiritual strength to their official representatives.

The request was suggested by Henry Hotchener, international lecturer, now residing in Hollywood.

WORKERS HEAR SPEAK

Co-operation and Human Relations Experts Railway Company Employees

Grease-grimed workmen of two great railroad [illegible] paused in their work to listen to addresses—one on the "humanics," the other on co-operation and prosperity—delivered by visiting officials in their respective shops.

In the shops of the Southern Pacific Company, Frank H. Skipper, British student of human relations, who, for twenty years has conducted a research of human relationships as applied to industry, spoke to the talkers as they sat elbow to elbow with interested executives and heads of departments.

Miles away, in another part of the city, employees of the Union Pacific System formed the audience in their shops, at an address on the importance of co-operation, by George O. Brophy, special representative of the public relations department of the line.

ROAD TO HAPPINESS

Declaring that "to find happiness, one first must give happiness," Skipper, who has been employed by the Southern Pacific to carry his message into all its shops and offices, stated his belief bluntly that "humanics" is more important in industry than mechanics.

"The solution of 'humanics,'" he said, "is to be found in putting yourself always in the position of the person with whom you are dealing—and then acting accordingly. Most of us are too charitable with ourselves and our own motives, and not enough with others and their motives. The greatest science in the world is the science of living. Even a railway porter can be an artist in the science of human relations. In the ultimate scheme of things the highest official and the lowliest man in the yards are important cogs in the vast machine of industry."

CO-OPERATION EFFORT

Brophy pointed out to Union Pacific men that co-operation among employees, shippers and receivers makes for efficiency and prosperity in railroading.

After repeating the company's recent announcement that nearly $3,500,000 is to be spent by the system in Southern California, and that $2,000,000 of this will be expended in the vicinity of Los Angeles, the visiting official stressed the theory that prosperity is certain to follow co-operation.

"In 1928 the railroads established a record of handling more business with fewer cars than at any time in history," he said. "[illegible] to co-operation in the handling of equipment, in the capacity and [illegible] is through this co-operation, urged by Brophy, that prosperity [illegible] possible."

quest Over Alvarez-Garcia Bodies Conducted

Formal murder charges against [illegible]nando Boltares, 24-year-old truck [illegible], who has confessed to the [illegible] murders of the Alvarez-Garcia [illegible]ily of San Fernando, will be withheld pending further investigation of the asserted culpability of [illegible]s Dolores Guichaps, his sweetheart, to the slayings, the District Attorney's office announced yesterday.

Decision to withhold the charges [illegible] the time being followed an inquest at which Boltares went on the witness stand and again related his confession to the crime. The jury returned a verdict declaring he committed the murders with homicidal intent.

WOMAN TESTIFIES

The Guichapa woman also went on the stand and denied Boltares's assertions that she was the master mind in the San Fernando "vendetta" or Mexican family feud. The jury recommended further investigation as to her case for the gathering of corroborative evidence.

After the inquest both were returned to County Jail to be held incommunicado and Capt. Bright of the Sheriff's homicide division, and Dep. Dist.-Atty. Broker held a conference that resulted in decision to withhold temporarily the charges. Boltares from the witness stand [illegible]ich an interpreter calmly related how he lured Charles Alvarez, [illegible] years of age; Mrs. Helena Alvarez-Garcia, and her two daughters, Carmelita, 12, and Elisa, 6, to [illegible]rgers' Canyon, north of San [illegible] October 9, last, on the [illegible] of finding buried wine and [illegible] slew them with a shovel.

SHE DENIES STORY

[illegible] also related in detail how five [illegible] later in Azusa he located the [illegible]land and stepfather, Luciano [illegible]ria, and on a rose took him a [illegible] south of the town, where he [illegible] and buried the last members [illegible] the Alvarez-Garcia family.

Boltares testified the Guichapa [illegible]man was present at the shovel [illegible] orders of four of the family in the [illegible]upon and during the commission [illegible] the crime urged him on, after [illegible]ich she assisted him in burying [illegible] bodies. He also said he showed [illegible] the grave of Garcia after he [illegible] shot. Her testimony contra[illegible]ted Boltares.

Whether Max Berenzweig, former [illegible] of the special police vice [illegible], intends to surrender himself [illegible] an indictment charging perjury, [illegible]nday continued to remain a [illegible]ery. His decision, which S. S. [illegible], his self-announced attorney, [illegible]ected to learn through friends [illegible] Ensenada, Baja California, was [illegible] forthcoming.

The fugitive's friends whom Hahn [illegible] he had conferred with Thursday, after a trip to Ensenada, [illegible]ported the attorney, the latter said, [illegible] accordance with their promise; [illegible] they stated they had been unable to establish communication [illegible] Berenzweig and thus convey [illegible] his wife's request that he [illegible] and submit to arrest.

Although expressing disappointment, Hahn said both he and Mrs. Berenzweig intend to continue their efforts to ascertain the whereabouts of the former officer. However, Capt. Fox, head of the Sheriff's fugitive detail, dispatched over [illegible] yesterday to Deputy Sheriffs [illegible]er and Johnson to return to Los Angeles from the Mexican border, where they have been pursuing the search for Berenzweig.

Council Balks at Plea to Navy in Power Case

A resolution asking that the Los Angeles City Council join with the [illegible] of Seattle and Tacoma in asking Secretary of the Navy Adams to [illegible] several naval vessels to hook [illegible] to the power lines in the Washington office was introduced in the [illegible] yesterday by Councilman [illegible], but failed of adoption.

Williams attempted to have the [illegible] suspended so the resolution could be adopted without reference [illegible] committee. In this he was defeated, gaining only the votes of [illegible], McAllister and Randall in favor. The resolution finally was referred to the Water and Power Commission, after Councilmen Davis and [illegible] called attention to the "presumption and "childish" move to [illegible] in a matter of which the Council is wholly ignorant.

Asserted Aide of Hold-up Man Under Arrest

[illegible]ged 42 siding in two chain-[illegible]e hold-ups, Roy E. Whitney, 34 [illegible] of age, was arrested yesterday [illegible] 918 South Lake street and was [illegible]ed on a charge of robbery. YOU DOGGONE LITTLE RASCAL!

But Size Doesn't Matter at Dog Show

Harlequin Great Dane and a Chichuachua

HUNDREDS of dogs' tails will wag today in Ambassador Auditorium, with the opening at 9 a.m. of the thirteenth annual exhibition of the Los Angeles Kennel Club.

Everything was in readiness for the event yesterday, according to club officials.

They declared the show will be the largest held in this country outside of the New York exhibition and that it will go far toward increasing interest in the breeding of fine dogs.

Promptly at the opening of the show, Alexander H. Stewart of Chicago is scheduled to begin judging toy dogs, setters and pointers. By noon, he will begin judging the collie sector. Tonight, at 8 p.m., there will be judging by three men, in as many different rings, Edward M. Laird of Los Angeles, judging Boston terriers; Anton H. Korbel of San Francisco, taking the great danes and Russian wolf hounds, and Stewart judging the bulldogs and chows.

The climax of the show is to be reached Sunday night, when the best dog in the exhibition will be chosen by the three judges. Judging is to continue all day Sunday. The show will be open from 9 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. both days, ending its run Sunday night.

Bar Examiners Will Consider Applications

The committee of bar examiners of the State Bar of California will meet today to consider the applications of fifteen lawyers from other States for permission to practice in California. Applicants passed by the committee will become eligible to make a motion for admission before the Supreme Court when it meets in Los Angeles Wednesday.

Under the committee's interpretation of the law governing admission of attorneys on motion, the examination will be more in the nature of an inquiry into the applicants' general character and experience than into their knowledge of the law.

The examination will be held in the Los Angeles office of the State bar, in the Chester Williams Building. John E. Biby of Los Angeles, chairman of the committee, will preside. The other examiners include George F. McNoble of Stockton, George A. Sarau of Riverside, Edward I. Barry of San Francisco and Thomas A. J. Dockweiler of Los Angeles.

Wood-Worker's Dropped Torch Fires Factory

Three alarms last evening called out firemen to battle with a fire in the Roy J. Dodge Furniture Manufacturing Company's factory at 1328 West Slauson avenue. Prompt response by many companies confined the fire to the two-story frame factory building and its adjoining garages and sheds.

Battalion Chief Haguewood and Fire Investigator Montgomery estimated the damage at between $3000 and $6000. They reported that a workman had dropped an alcohol burner, used for heating scrapers, and that blazing alcohol had run through the factory, spreading the fire rapidly.

The chief of the first fire company arriving turned in two additional alarms as a precaution. The blaze was quickly subdued.

Judge Defers Writ Hearing

Hearing on the petition of Edward Arnheim, wealthy broker, for a writ of habeas corpus in connection with a police complaint against him charging the kidnaping of his own child was postponed yesterday by Superior Judge Aggeler until the 17th inst. Meanwhile Arnheim is at liberty on his own recognizance.

Arnheim was arrested November 29, last, at his home, 634 South St. Andrews Place, on complaint of his former wife, who told police he was wanted by Chicago authorities for taking his 10-year-old daughter out of the State. After police took him in custody they gave the child into the mother's charge.

PANTAGES HIRES MORE LAW TALENT

Le Compte Davis Joins Legal Forces to Help Prepare Appeal Brief

Le Compte Davis was formally added yesterday as associate counsel in the appeal of Alexander Pantages, theater magnate, convicted of a statutory offense against Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer.

Davis was legally permitted to join the ranks of Pantages's legal staff of Superior Judge Fricke on motion of Attorney Jerry Geisler. According to the court records, Pantages now is represented in his appeal by Davis, Geisler, W. J. Ford and W. I. Gilbert.

It was reported at the Courthouse that it will be Davis and Geisler who will prepare the briefs for the defense in Pantages's appeal, which now is before the Second District Court of Appeals.

Pantages was convicted of attacking Miss Pringle the afternoon of August 9, last, in a "conference room" in the Pantages Building. The former theater owner is now under sentence of from six months to fifty years in San Quentin, imposed by Judge Fricke following Pantages's conviction in Superior Court.

Noonan to Face Court Monday in Robbery Case

Jack Noonan, 26-year-old brother of Sally O'Neill and Molly O'Day film actresses, is scheduled to appear before Superior Judge Aggeler Monday morning to enter a plea to charges of burglarizing the home of Ted Lewis, orchestra leader, at 1400½ Hayward avenue, on the night of June 28, last. His plea originally was set for yesterday, but at the request of his attorney the court granted the postponement.

Noonan must stand trial as a result of the decision handed down by Superior Judge Gould Thursday at a sanity hearing in the psychopathic court at the General Hospital.

Two others, Joe M. Burbridge, 23, and Sherry Tansey, 35, also were indicted with Noonan, but both have pleaded guilty and asked for probation.

Twins' Father Shown Mercy

A penitentiary sentence was escaped yesterday by Harlan F. Cooper, 20 years of age, when it developed in his hearing for probation that he recently became the father of twin girls.

Declaring that the young man now has grave responsibilities, Superior Judge Aggeler sent him to Ione until he attains his majority with instructions that he again appear at that time for consideration on the probation plea.

The youth recently pleaded guilty to robbing a Chapman Ice Cream store last September. Use of a firearm could have resulted in a sentence of from seven years to life. He was represented by Attorney S. S. Hahn.

Girls' Cigarette Donor Sentenced

John Hamilton, apartment-house owner, was sentenced to jail for sixty days by Municipal Judge MacCoy yesterday following his conviction on charges of violating the section of the State Penal Code which prohibits giving tobacco to minors.

Deputy City Prosecutor Kaufman called three schoolgirls under the age of 13 years to the stand, all of them declaring that Hamilton asked them into his apartment at 101 North Hope street, where he gave them cigarettes and persuaded them to smoke. Hamilton denied the charge, declaring the girls stole the cigarettes from his rooms.

CONVICT HEEDED IN CIVIL ACTION

Judge Admits Deposition of Evan B. Seitz

Ruling Due Later on Right to Maintain Suit

Land Fraud Charges Made in $200,000 Case

Following argument Superior Judge Price yesterday admitted a deposition of Evan B. Seitz, a convicted robber now serving from five years to life in San Quentin prison, in the trial of the suit brought by him and his wife, Nina Lee Seitz, against Frank Kelley, his wife, Barbara, and his son Edward. Seitz and his wife are seeking to recover 6000 acres of land in Antelope Valley, they assert the defendants obtained from them by fraud during the organization of the Antelope Valley Finance Company.

Can a person sentenced to life in prison maintain a civil action in court?

This question was presented to the court when efforts were made by the plaintiffs to admit the deposition from Seitz. Kelley, the principal defendant, is an ex-convict under parole from San Quentin, where he served eighteen months for embezzlement. Mrs. Seitz and her husband contend that Kelley, posing as a lawyer, induced them to turn over the land on the promise that he would give them stock in the Antelope Valley Finance Company. This, they hold, he failed to do.

Judge Price held that Seitz's testimony was competent and admitted his deposition as evidence. It was taken in prison. Attorney S. H. Sharnikow, counsel for the defendants, argued that the deposition could not be admitted as Seitz was "civilly dead." Judge Price will rule later on the question of whether Seitz can maintain a suit in court, while he is in prison.

Attorneys Irvin C. Taplin and Harry M. Hunt are representing Mrs. Seitz. The property involved is asserted to be valued at $200,000. The hearing will continue Monday.

PICKWICK EXTENSION EXPECTED

Expansion Will Depend on Permit for New Service Along Beach Highway

Many thousands of dollars are to be spent in expansion of the Pickwick Stages System, it was announced yesterday by T. B. Wilson, executive vice-president, in outlining plans. The projected expansion program is contingent on the granting by the State Railroad Commission of the Pickwick Company's application of a permit to bridge the gap in its present lines from Long Beach to Santa Monica and over the Malibu Highway to Oxnard, said Wilson. Hearing on the application is set for Tuesday in the State offices here.

The Pickwick Company recently extended its Seashore Highway route from Sierra to Long Beach. Oxnard and Santa Monica were connected by Pickwick's acquisition of the Southern Pacific Motor Transport Company's franchise. Wilson emphasized that the granting of the company's application will link the Coast from Santa Barbara to San Diego with a nation-wide bus system.

Immediately on the granting of the permit, he said, the Pickwick Company will inaugurate the following new bus schedules:

A two-way schedule daily between San Francisco and San Diego, via Santa Barbara, Oxnard, Santa Monica and Long Beach.

A two-way schedule daily between Santa Barbara and San Diego. A third two-way daily schedule between Los Angeles and San Francisco via Malibu Highway. A fourth two-way schedule daily from Los Angeles via Long Beach to San Diego.

Free Religious Talks Planned

Free Christian Science lectures will be delivered as follows, next week: Paul Stark Seeley, C.S.B., of Portland, Or., Tuesday at 8 p.m., in Twenty-sixth Church, 470 North St. Andrews Place; Thursday at 8 p.m., in Twenty-eighth Church, 1927 1-3 Westwood Boulevard. Westwood Hills; Friday at 8 p.m., in Seventh Church, 793 West Tenth street, San Pedro. Next Saturday from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m., in Angeles Mesa Theater, 5807 Angeles Mesa Drive, under the auspices of Thirtieth Church, and the same day at 8 p.m., in Second Church, 948 West Adams street. Rev. Andrew J. Graham, C.S.B., of Boston, next Saturday at 8 p.m., in Sixth Church, 4200 South Flower street. The speakers are members of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Board Approves Play Area Plan

Acquisition of three and one-half acres for the development of a playground and swimming pool in the area bounded by Eighth avenue and Sixty-eighth, Seventieth and Madden streets, petitioned by the Southwest Protective Association and residents of the district, was approved by the Playground and Recreation Commission yesterday, providing the district will raise the necessary funds, estimated at approximately $100,000.

The commission agreed to develop the area, providing $50,000 of the sum raised is allotted for the purpose.

Councilman Barthel of the Eleventh District appeared in behalf of the project and stated there appears to be a willingness on the part of proponents of the plan to raise sufficient funds.

TINY PILOT WINS HIGH CREDENTIAL

Miss Vera Dawn Walker Given Full Transport License by Government

The smallest air pilot in the world, Miss Vera Dawn Walker of 677 South Westlake avenue, yesterday became the eleventh woman to win the coveted United States Department of Commerce full transport pilot license.

Miss Walker, an inch shy of five feet in height, put in five gruelling hours of steady writing to pass her written examination.

Then she donned her flying suit, climbed in an open biplane at the Standard Flying School, Aero Corporation of California, and in thirty minutes convinced Inspector Jimmie Null of the Department of Commerce that she is capable of handling a ship with skill on a par with the best male flyers.

She took off, climbed to 2000 feet and came down in three tight spirals to land within a few feet of the line drawn on the airport as a mark. The test requires that a pilot come to a stop within 200 feet of the mark.

Spins, rolls, sideslips, vertical banks and the rest of the tricks in the modern flyer's book were executed in quick succession.

By the time she landed, Miss Walker's written examination had been corrected and Null informed her she had made an average grade of 90 per cent on the 100 questions embracing every phase of flying and planes—aircraft construction, meteorology, navigation, rigging and laws of the air.

And not only is Miss Walker the possessor of the highest license a pilot can get from the government, but she starts her first day as demonstration pilot for Panther motors, a new product of the Compton plant of the MacClatchie Manufacturing Company.

Miss Walker's first undertaking on the new job will be an attempt to set a new world's solo endurance record from the Standard field at midnight, New Year's Eve. Following this she is scheduled to make a national tour and visit the capitals of the forty-eight States.

The ninety-five-pound miss took her first flying lesson fourteen months ago from Lee Flannigan, chief Standard instructor. She has 210 hours solo flight to her credit, ten hours more than the transport license requirement.

Miss Walker was the only Los Angeles entrant in last summer's Women's National Air Derby to finish.

Miss Bobbie Trout of Los Angeles and Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell of Long Beach, also hold transport licenses in Southern California.

DRIFTS FOR NEW TUNNEL COMPLETED

Engineer Shaw Reports on Sepulveda Boulevard Project Progress

The drifts, or pioneer tunnels, for the Sepulveda Boulevard tunnel, through the crest of the Santa Monica Mountains behind Sawtelle, were completed yesterday and daylight shows through the bores, according to the announcement of City Engineer Shaw.

The tunnel, which is to be 635 feet long, runs under Mulholland High Way and is a part of the project which will link Wilshire and Ventura boulevards.

The drifts, of which there are three, are 8 by 9½ feet. One is constructed at the top of the proposed tunnel with the others at either side. The workmen made about fifteen feet a day during the progress of the work.

It now is planned to put in the concrete arch at the top of the tunnel. Then steam shovels will be run under the arch to remove the core.

DEVELOPING GROUP RE-ELECTS LEADERS

Several officers and directors were re-elected last night at the annual meeting of the Palo Verde Mesa and Chuckawalla Valley Development Association, held at the Chamber of Commerce. More than 300 members were in attendance. The board of directors, which was re-elected, consists of A. E. Nicholls, R. M. Teague, E. B. Wickham, Lyman Farwell, Dr. Paul Bresee, Charles A. Spears, T. Mahncke, Edward J. Rodden and Frank U. Sherman. The board re-elected Mr. Nicholls as president and Mr. Farwell as secretary.

Such an interesting shop I have discovered! It is known as "Chapultepec" (meaning white house in Mexican) and here you will find the most delicious Mexican candies, guava jelly in wooden boxes, mangos and the most wonderful fancy baskets for Christmas gifts, containing typical Mexican confections—so very different from any thing to be found in the United States—640 S. Alvarado is their address; DRexel 7892 the phone number.

Candymaking lessons are given personally or by mail for home or business by the Liberty Candy and Supply Co. In case any of my readers want to learn at home, or buy supplies for making Christmas candies, let me advise you to see them at once! Their address is 400 Grant Bldg., 355 S. Broadway, TU. 4156.

If it is desired to frost with meringue a custard or other dessert to be served in a glass dish which cannot be put in the oven, place the meringue on the custard or dessert, then heat the fire shovel red hot and hold it over the dish for two or three minutes until the meringue becomes a delicate brown. An electric toaster, if available, is also excellent for this purpose.

Any jewelry you have that needs repairing may be taken to Mr. Kent up at the Peerless Platers, 239½ S. Spring (upstairs.) Mr. Kent does special designing work, also helps to copy anything in the jewelry line you wish to have duplicated. His prices are astonishingly small and his workmanship is excellent! VAndike 5417 is the phone number.

To remove sand from clams, before washing them put a little cornmeal inside the shells; or, better still, let the clams stand overnight in water enough to cover them to which add a cupful of cornmeal.

We cannot lay too much stress on the benefits and pleasure too, derived from opening an account in the Woman's Banking Department of the Bank of Italy National Trust and Savings Association at 7th and Olive streets. Do you take all your financial problems to Miss Grace S. Stormer, the very capable director of this department. She is always happy to assist in such matters.

When making gelatin, instead of using individual molds, fill muffin pans and place them in the ice box; this saves time and there is no danger of overturning.

When you order potato chips be sure you get the "Mayflower" brand, won't you, for there is a vast difference in them, you know. First of all, the Mayflower brand are extremely fresh and delightfully crisp at all times! Try them out—that's the best way to prove their superiority. Don't forget, it's the Mayflower brand sold at better grocers that you want.

If fruit jar rubbers become hard, soak them for one-half hour in a solution of two parts water to one part ammonia and they will become pliable.

You really shouldn't fail to call up the Hoffman Rug Works of 2914 W. Jefferson St. (EMpire 3048) and have them call for your old carpets to make Fluff rugs from. This concern does beautiful work and charges very little. Colonial rugs they make also from rags you have collected.

To toil for a hard master is bitter, but to have no master to toil for is more bitter still.—[Oscar Wilde.

Whatever you do don't fail to have the West Coast Slip Cover Company, 1425 West Eighth street, make your next curtains and draperies! They will be correct in measurement and hang perfectly—being also beautifully made in the most ultra fashion—now what more could you ask for? Prices are very reasonable, so this leaves nothing to be desired, does it? Their phone number, DRexel 6728.

As a Christmas suggestion, my readers should by all means see that the family gets one of those beautiful Ben-Hur de luxe all-china healthful coffee makers. Coffee made in the all-china maker has the clearest, most delicious coffee taste imaginable. There is no chemical change in the beverage due to erosion of metal caused by the acid tannic content of the coffee.

Also, these coffee makers make a healthful beverage because they eliminate the resinous, turpentine-like fats and check the release of the bitter, astringent tannic acid, which two substances are the reason for more headaches, sour, bilious indigestion and other distressing symptoms than any other known cause.

One of these de luxe all-china coffee makers will be the cause of more happiness and satisfaction throughout the new year than a hundred times its cost would produce invested in any item.

If your grocer does not carry them, he can secure one for you if you order it through him. You see, nearly all the best grocers are now showing them!

Granted that you have decided to give a picture for one of your Christmas remembrances—then the next thing to decide is where to have it framed. This is where my suggestion proves helpful. Let me urge you by all means to go into one of Mathews Paint Company's stores where you will find the most desirable mouldings to be seen in a day's travel!

For instance the old English prints you have chosen would be most artistically and appropriately framed by them. Japanese prints they also do beautiful white for French prints they have a moulding with color in it which will exactly match the predominating color of the print chosen.

Mathews, you know, have three stores to go into; one is at 1245 S. Hill, another is at 1559 N. Vine St. at Selma, and the third is located on Green and Oak Knoll, Pasadena.

Gossip: I overheard the following conversation and am printing same as I know it will benefit you.

"What a marvelous luncheon we have just had. I must say that Victor Hugo's Restaurant Francais is unique when it comes to atmosphere and cuisine. Weren't those salads delicious and the after taste so pleasant?" "As I understand it," said the second party, "their secret or finesse, my dear, is that they use the best of everything; that is why they use exclusively, when preparing their salads and cooking, the celebrated 'Castruccio Sublime Extra Virgin Olive Oil,' which has been on the market for over half a century." "Oh! So that's it," said the first party. "Well, I'm going to run over to my neighborhood grocer and buy a can of that 'Castruccio Olive Oil' and give my friends a chance to do a little 'awing' after eating the surprise dinner that I'm planning for Ronald's birthday next Sunday."

To label jellies, preserves, etc., cut short lengths of white passe-partout or adhesive tape and print on them with ink the names of the various kinds; being gummed, the labels are easily attached.

Let's clear out all the clothing and articles about the house you no longer want and send a sky bundle to the Children's Hospital Salvage Department. The money derived from them will help save some wee lad or lassie's life, think of that! Do this today if you can. 713 Maple avenue is the address; TUcker 1203, the phone number.

After plucking ducks or geese of the feathers and pin-feathers, rub them with cornmeal to remove all down. Another good method of removing the down is to pour melted paraffin over the fowl where the down occurs, let it set, then peel it off; with it will come all the obstinate down. A strawberry huller will be found excellent for removing pin-feathers from a fowl.

When cutting marshmallows, use a scissors and dip it frequently in ice water and use without drying; they will not stick and the work is quickly done.

Haven't you an old down quilt which you discarded because the feathers were coming out and the covering had become worn? Resurrect this quilt and have it made like new by the Western Feather and Down Works, 1205 W. Washington street (WEstmore 9654.) They renovate such coverlets most reasonably—doing very fine work, too.

For a variation in cornstarch pudding, add to the cornstarch a tablespoonful or two of raspberry or currant jelly just before setting it aside to cool; this adds to its appearance and improves the flavor. Always add a small piece of butter to milk puddings when cooking them; this improves the taste and also prevents the pudding from boiling over.

The recipes that have been given you each Saturday call for products than which no finer can be bought, and they are known as Guasti Cooking Sherry, (slightly salty) and Guasti Sweet Sherry Flavoring. It is interesting to know that they are made by the Italian Vineyard Company at Guasti, Cal., from the finest of grapes grown in the vineyards which cover 50,000 acres.

Today's recipe to be found in a free cook book known as "Treasured Flavors" (issued to all who write in to the Italian Vineyard Company at 1242 Palmetto street) is particularly apropos for the holidays which are at hand. Copy it and use it soon.

MINCE MEAT

2 lbs. fresh lean beef broiled and chopped fine when cold.
1 lb. suet chopped very fine.
2 lbs currants.
3-4 lb. sliced citron.
1½ teaspoons cinnamon.
3 lbs. chopped apples.
2 tablespoons ground mace.
1 tablespoon allspice.
2½ lbs. brown sugar.
1 lb. seeded raisins.
1 grated nutmeg.
1 tablespoon ground cloves.
24 oz. (1 bottle) Guasti Cooking Sherry.

Let stand 24 hours before using. Leave out salt when using Guasti Cooking Sherry.

The variety of chocolate favors in all shapes and designs you can buy at the California Nut Store will please you no end—such ideal table decorations and favors do they make for your luncheon or dinner party. The miniature Christmas trees set in chocolate are adorable! Do choose your holiday favors and salted, as well as plain, nuts at one of their interesting locations—one is at 804 S. Broadway, the other next Warner Brothers downtown theater on Hill street.

Has your husband any neckband shirts with detached collars he would like to have fixed with the collars attached? Mr. A. M. Werner, the shirtmaker, does such work beautifully. He can make the single cuffs from double cuffs, too. He also shortens sleeves and puts new collar bands on shirts. 111 South Spring is his address.

Pie-making—Pastry boards and rolling pins may be kept white and smooth by rubbing them frequently with a cut lemon. Pastry is tricky stuff and will not stand much handling or rolling; roll in one direction only when making it if it is to be light. Use a slow oven for all pastry; too much heat in the oven causes pie crust to shrink.

What a lot of helpful suggestions you gather for Christmas presents when you go down to the basement of the Department of Water and Power at Second and Broadway! Electrical rates being so low now, every one can afford to use such appliances.

When down in the basement the week past, I saw some Royal Rochester china that any homemaker would be proud to use. Then the modernistic coffee set appealed to me tremendously—that makes an ideal gift for mother. Another useful article is an electric hair dryer—useful as can be for all the feminine members of the family; but go in yourself and see what a lot of ideas you will gather. You will always be happy you have chosen electrical gifts for the entire family.

When making pineapple jam run the slices of pineapple through the food chopper. In making quince jelly, try coloring it with a few drops of beet juice.

Of course, you will give a box of "Udelco" stationery for a Christmas gift! It consists of 200 sheets of paper and 100 envelopes with your name and address on the paper and flap of envelope, all for the small cost of $1. Orders are filled up to the twentieth, by the way. Write to the Udell Company, 3457 Virginia avenue (HOlly 1155) for samples. All orders are mailed free.

A convenient strainer for jelly is made by putting a circle of cheesecloth between a pair of embroidery hoops, letting the cloth sag. When using small molds, first strain the jelly into a white enameled pitcher with pointed spout, for convenience pouring. This device is also useful for straining starch.

Your silver must look its best at the coming holiday season, isn't it so? So in order to bring about this state of affairs take any flat pieces as well as knives, forks, tablespoons and teaspoons which are in need of repairing or replating into the Peerless Platers, 239½ S. Spring (upstairs.) They do such excellent work and charge unusually small prices.

To cut pastry sharply and neatly, the knives of fancy cutters should be dry, clean and floured; another method is to dip the cutter in boiling water and use at once, repeating when it cools.

Action Put Off on Street Plan for Play Area

Because a strong division of opinion on the opening of Denker avenue through the Harvard playground has developed among the residents in the district, the Playground and Recreation Commission yesterday decided to hold in abeyance any action to vacate the necessary area for the extension, pending further study.

City Council proceedings for the extension of Denker avenue without cost to the playground department already have been approved and the project only awaited a vacation order by the commission.

The extension is desired by some residents for the improvement of traffic conditions, due to the size of the playground, which is fifteen acres, one of the largest in the city. Protests have been filed, however, by thirteen different Parent-Teacher Associations on the ground that the extension through the playground would make the latter dangerous for children.

The government of South Africa will build a large steel and iron plant at Pretoria.

ASSERTED BRIBERS ORDERED ARRESTED

Bench warrants for the arrest of George and James Mort were issued yesterday by Superior Judge Aggeler following their failure to appear and enter pleas to indictments charging bribery. In addition the court ordered their $2500 bail forfeited. The brothers are charged with having offered a $100 bribe to two detective lieutenants to aid in effecting the release of their aunt, Mrs. Annie Mort, from booking on suspicion of embezzlement.

Canvass of the returns of the Mexican election show that Ortiz Rubio was made President by a vote of better than eighteen to one. Vasconcelos made quite a splurge, but he didn't pick up many ballots. There are birds like that in every land.

TALE OF A TUB

Somebody reports that while we have one automobile to every seven persons in this country there is but one bathtub to every twenty-two. The idea is that three times as many people want a ride as do a bath. A car can go somewhere, but a bathtub just sits still and glares.

NO BIG LIDS NEEDED

Paris not only seeks to put our loved ones in longer skirts, but bigger hats. This would also be a task. The maids and matrons who are climbing in and out of their cars a dozen times a day will not put up with lids that are forever getting bumped. There will be no more roof gardens on their menu.

SAFETY FIRST

One of the women in Congress is seeking to provide the country with a fireproof match and a self-extinguishing cigarette. She will have the enthusiastic backing of the fire insurance companies, but she will hardly bring a thrill to folks who use matches or smoke. The prospect of owning a cigarette that can put itself out inspires little enthusiasm in the breast of the fag-burner.

THE BIG MONEY

More than $3,000,000 in real money rolled through the door on the final day of the tax-collector's prepenalty reception. This had naught to do with the deluge of checks and cash that had been flooding the office for weeks before. It is freely predicted that the collector will have more than $125,000,000 when the second installment of the tax burden is in. It seems like a fierce wad of money, but the politicians will see that it is quickly spent.

A BOWL FULL OF ROSES

From all the rumors floating about it began to appear that the Rose Bowl was not running over with roses this year. Attempts to select contenders for the annual football classic seemed to have stirred up a tempest.

But now it is all quiet along the Arroyo Seco. The Tournament Committee has chosen the University of Southern California to represent the West in the great intersectional game.

It could hardly do otherwise. While Southern California was tied with Stanford and California for first place as far as defeats are concerned, each team having lost one game, the Trojans had a heavier schedule than either of the others. On a percentage basis in the Coast Conference the sons of Troy automatically became the champions.

If the Coast Conference could find some way to determine the championship itself, the matter would be greatly simplified for the tournament people. Jealousies could not enter into the selections. It is a matter of pride to the entire State that three great teams are able to represent her. There is no dearth of laurels. Indeed, the Bowl could be filled with laurels as well as roses.

While Troy has led the conference several times in the last decade, she has not played in the Bowl since 1928. This was the only time she has been called upon to defend the West against the East in the history of these New Year's celebrations. Stanford and California have each played three times.

While Pasadena initiated the Rose Tournament, the entire south is represented in the great pageant. So while the affair belongs to the Crown City, yet its continued success is vital to every citizen south of the Tehachapi.

HOOVER'S FIRST BUDGET

Appropriations of $3,830,000,000, asked of Congress in President Hoover's first budget message, are less by $145,000,000 than the appropriations for the current year, but the difference, as the President points out, is only apparent since the current year contained the appropriation of $150,000,000 for the Federal Farm Loan Board and no estimate of this board's needs for 1930-31 has yet been made. If it reaches $150,000,000, the appropriations for 1931 will exceed those for 1930 by $4,304,000—a trifling increase for a rapidly growing country, especially in view of the construction program which the President has in mind as a stimulus for business.

One portion of the budget message is especially worthy of note—that portion which calls attention to the reaching of the turning point in debt payment, the payments on principal for the first time exceeding the payments on interest. This, of course, means accelerated extinction of these war obligations for the future, since funds from interest savings will be increasingly available for principal payments.

In a condensed and simplified form of the budget which the President has prepared for the public, it is noted that expenditures for past wars and for defense now amount to 72 per cent of the total of expenditures—surely a powerful argument for peace. The proportion is decreasing; there was a time not long ago when this proportion was nearly 90 per cent; but it is still huge. The actual running expenses of the administration of the vast and complicated affairs of the country consume only 8 per cent of the budget total. Public health, Indian affairs, aids to labor and agriculture and the public buildings program require only 13 per cent. The public buildings program takes $246,000,0000.

The budget includes items for naval construction which may, of course, be eliminated in part as the result of the Naval Limitations Conference to take place in London, so that it is quite possible the 1931 budget will be smaller than that for 1930. The air service of the Army and Navy will receive a total of $33,000,000 for new planes, parts and accessories, a sum which should mean a continuance of activity on the part of the aircraft factories and aid in building up this new industry, so desirable from a national standpoint. The sum of $460,000 for construction purposes is also asked for the benefit of the Coast Guard and Department of Commerce. For lighting and equipping airways, inspection and licensing of commercial planes and pilots, and other aircraft activities of the Department of Commerce, the requested appropriation is $8,925,000 and for furnishing weather reports to aviation the Department of Agriculture is to have $1,400,000.

Additional appropriations of $3,100,000 are asked for the Indian Service, for 1931, and the President notes that more money will be required by this service for the current year. These additions are expected to relieve the conditions on the Indian reservations and in the Indian schools which shocked the nation when they were revealed.

Forest protection will receive $2,000,000 more if the President's recommendation is followed, and the major amount, if the President has his way, will be spent for prevention rather than for suppression of fires.

Increases of $5,000,000 for rivers and harbors and of a similar amount for flood control are asked for. The latter item is exclusive of anything that may be spent for Boulder Dam. If the power contracts are completed in time, a supplemental appropriation to begin work on the dam will be asked for.

The message shows a clear grasp on the President's part of the national finances and a determination to see that the money is spent to the best advantage.

GOLDEN-ROD RUBBER

Shall we soon be rolling merrily along on synthetic rubber made from golden rod? So it would seem from a recent dispatch from East Orange, N. J., which reports that Thomas A. Edison has discovered a process by which the gummy substance found in that plant may be substituted for the latex found in natural rubber. The inventor's secretary, who gave out the information to the press, said that by the utilization of golden rod rubber can be manufactured in commercial quantities at a cost of about 16 cents a pound, or almost 60 cents a pound cheaper than any other manufactured rubber thus far produced.

It is popularly supposed that nobody but a hay-fever immune can safely handle the golden-rod plant at the time of its flowering, which is when it attains full growth and is presumably best adapted for use in the way proposed by Edison. But people who do handle it have observed the gumminess of the juice it exudes when cut or broken. This fluid, like that of the rubber tree and various plants giving forth a similar substance, is known by botanists as latex. Edison found it in many plants, particularly those of desert growth. One reason for his settling upon golden rod as best for his purpose may have been the plentiful supply of it available in almost every part of America.

Among the several species of this plant are the western golden rod, found from the Rocky Mountains to the Pacific, and the California golden rod which grows in many parts of this State. But it is in New Jersey and neighboring States that golden rod is most abundant, so that Edison did not have far to go to obtain all he wanted of it for experimental purposes.

The value of this new discovery, should it prove all that is claimed for it, should be great, and rubber manufacturers as well as motorists and others will look forward with much interest to further news of what may prove one of the greatest triumphs of the wizard of East Orange.

THE RAINY DAY

If a shower comes up in the city of Berlin the pedestrian will find on the next corner an automatic machine for the vending of umbrellas. Drop 15 cents in the slot and walk off with a brand new storm shedder. The umbrellas are made from oiled paper and may not last a lifetime, but they are good for a dozen or more storms and are right handy when the drops are dropping.

The LEE SIDE o' L.A.

By Lee Shippey

FIRST as the scene of the great American gold rush, later as the land of fruits and flowers and now as the world capital of motion pictures, California is, to the citizens of other countries, the most romantic part of America; and Los Angeles is the most romantic spot in California. An official of Thomas Cook & Sons, who has represented that greatest of travel bureaus in several parts of the world—Europe, South America and the Orient—tells us that while New York is a very well-known town and several other big American cities are more or less known to the general public wherever he has been, it is of Los Angeles that the youth of the world dreams, it is to this glamorous New Bagdad that the young artist, musician, actor or lover of the beautiful wants to come.

And yet some of the best-informed people in eastern America have some of the weirdest ideas imaginable about Los Angeles and its environs.

Thought Montana in Our Suburbs

A Chicago newspaper recently wired its Los Angeles representative to dash over to Montana and interview a man there—and to be sure and wire his story in plenty of time for the next morning's paper. When he wired back that it would be at least a three-day trip, unless he used a plane, the eastern-trained telegraph editor at first thought he was joking. Los Angeles is about as far from Central Montana as Chicago is.

Nearly every day The Times News Bureau, which supplies news to many eastern newspapers which have no staff representatives here, receives such wires as this: "Send 250 words on John Bowser." No address accompanies the name. Investigation shows that Bowser is some man from Scranton, Pa., who has been arrested in San Francisco, not in Los Angeles. Some folks in Scranton seem to think Los Angeles and San Francisco are twin cities, like St. Paul and Minneapolis or New York and Brooklyn.

Just Around the Corner in Oregon

Recently an order came from a New England paper for 300 words on a pioneer who had died that morning—in Oregon. As New York papers often "cover" stories in Trenton, Atlantic City or even Philadelphia or Boston, a good many people back there have the idea that it would be about as easy to "cover" Seattle or Portland from Los Angeles. But Seattle is 1240 miles from here. The distances out here are simply so much greater than they are back East that even men who know their geography pretty well cannot comprehend how great they are till they have actually been over the ground.

Yet when even newspaper men, who have far greater general knowledge of this country than the average man has, are so sadly uninformed on those great areas of it which they have never visited, one cannot but realize how many of us still need to see America.

Victorville Correspondence

Since cool weather started and motorists quit driving nights, it has been necessary to close our local hospital. One of our doctors is leaving and we thought we were going to lose our undertaker, till he heard that a recent college graduate was coming here to practice.

I will admit that half of the lies told about the desert are not true. I very much doubt that story about the rattlesnake biting the punctured tires and making them swell up hard again, as we have no rattlesnakes near Victorville.

The tarantulas and centipedes have killed them all off.

I even doubted the canteen fish story at first. But when the old prospector told me how he lived on the milk of a burro for a month, because there was no water, how could I doubt him longer?

People who really know the desert never doubted that story of the canteen fish, however, as was shown when several contributions came in to employ a lobbyist at Sacramento to work for a bill for their protection. Indeed, so much more than was needed has been raised that there will be a surplus, which probably will be turned over to the wife of the unknown soldier.—George McCarthy.

Nothing Wrong With Mental Vision

About a year ago we had a story about Jason Hidden, the almost-blind Ontario man who plays the phonograph better than anyone else we ever heard. That is no joke, for it makes a lot of difference who plays the phonograph. We once had a neighbor who played the phonograph in a way that would drive you crazy, and later another neighbor who played it so its music came to you like a benediction. Hidden used to play the phonograph in a restaurant in Ontario, because he wished people to have really enjoyable music while they ate, and it was the best cafe music, all in all, that we ever heard.

Hidden wasn't doing that for money, but because there wasn't much he could do, handicapped by such poor sight, and he wanted to do what he could. Now the restaurant's closed and he's out of a job. But the same old desire is actuating him. That is evident from the Christmas card we have just received from him—one written, we assume, by himself:

Could we but broadcast on the air
To everybody everywhere
One thought of love and kindly cheer
As we restow the passing year,
I'd send the happiest wish of mine
For Christmas, 1929.

Now, when an elderly man whose eyes have been fading out for some time can take that affectionate view of the world, why the dickens can't the rest of us?

MONEY FOR TALK

Maybe talk isn't going to be so cheap. We see where the telephone company is arranging to spend more than $330,000,000 in extensions and betterments on the Pacific Coast within the next five years. Nearly $100,000,000 of this will be blown in in Southern California. This wonderful outlay should boost the price of conversation another notch. But maybe not. Our talk is costing quite a string of beads as it is.

GIRL AND GUN

New Jersey woman was fined $1000 for shooting a drummer in a new orchestra. It seems that under a New Jersey law it is an offense to plug a drummer when he isn't looking. Thus proving how tender-hearted the Jersey legislators must have been. Instead of getting a marksmanship medal the lady draws a fine.

ESSAY ON MAN

By James J. Montague

The moon is cold and bleak and barp
There isn't anybody there.

And yet it may contain, I'm told,
Vast stores of platinum and gold.

And there are, it is rumored, signs
Of emerald and diamond mines,

While underneath its arid soil
There may be quantities of oil.

The distance to the moon to span
At present is too much for man.

The satellite moves on its way
A quarter million miles away.

But if it ever can be proved
That once its crust has been removed

There may be found a treasure, which
Will make its daring finder rich.

I'm rather sure the world's best brains
Will think about the princely gains

That wait for one who dares to fly
So great a distance toward the sky.

We'll have that treasure here, some day
For greed will always find a way.

WHAT OTHERS THINK ABOUT IT

CONTROL OF PESTS

[New York Sun]

For more than three months not a single Mediterranean fruit fly or sign of its work has been discovered by the alliance of forces working for its eradication in Florida. The Federal and State workers who took up the fight based their campaign on thoroughness and appear to have had unusual success. When they took charge thousands of infestations had been reported; they soon discovered that the fruit fly was breeding much faster in Florida than it does elsewhere. The vigorous action which they took has been rewarded by accomplishments much greater than predicted.

News from other fronts of man's unending war against insect pests is less encouraging. The European corn borer and the Japanese beetle, like the fruit fly unwelcome invaders of the United States, are widening their lines of invasion in spite of all the measures taken to combat them. The corn borer, first observed in the New England States, is now doing great damage in the Great Lakes district. An appropriation of $10,000,000 has been spent in fighting the borer in five States alone. The spread of the Japanese beetle in the last year has been more moderate; from New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania it has reached various localities within a radius of forty or fifty miles of previously infested areas. The newly infested areas are to be brought under the supervision of the quarantine and control forces of the Department of Agriculture.

THEORY OF ALIENATION

[New York World]

Entertainment of a heart-balm suit, as it has come to be called, is nonsensical, as it assumes something which is obviously untrue; that a woman is a sort of volitionless creature, incapable of any act on her own motion, and doing what she does only because she is influenced by some superior kind of will, like a trained seal. How false this is should be apparent to anybody who has ever tried to influence a woman. The theory of law on which such suits are entertained must be a relic of the days when a woman was actually regarded as an inferior order of being, a chattel which could be owned or stolen like any other chattel. The time has come, it would seem, to admit that this theory of law is a big mistake.

IDAHO SHOULD WATCH MT. BORAH

[Kansas City Star]

Idaho has named its highest mountain peak for its distinguished Senator, William E. Borah. It is a fitting act. But we trust Idaho knows the chances it is taking and is making ready for them. Mt. Borah is lofty, dignified, majestic. It meets storm and sunshine undismayed. But if it is true to its name its peaceful calm may be disturbed at the most unexpected time and the mountain may blow its head off with a tremendous crash that will shake down houses for miles around.

ADVANTAGES OF CAMP KEARNY

BY COL. JOHN W. CLIFTON, U. S. A. (retired)

The conceded object of building the giant Zeppelins and the Pacific Coast dirigible base is to solve problems of aerial science and strategy in co-ordination with the naval fleets for the national defense.

Dating from 1920, records of the Navy, the Army and committees of Congress show the unexcelled and undisputed advantages of the Camp Kearny site for all types of aeronautical development.

Camp Kearny saves money and time. Camp Kearny was built by the Army in 1917 and 1918 for a permanent training camp to accommodate 50,000 men. In surface and subsurface developments and available utilities about $1,000,000 of the nation's money is already invested in this site. Because of the highly developed state of Camp Kearny and the undeveloped state of Sunnyvale about $1,000,000 and six months' time would have to be expended at Sunnyvale to match the present condition at Camp Kearny. The solid land at Camp Kearny would sustain the enormous weight of the hangars with little expense, but expensive foundations would have to be built at Sunnyvale with great loss of time and money. Railroad trackage and paved highways are ready for immediate use in developments and operation at Camp Kearny. Water, power, telephone, telegraph, sewerage and drainage systems and other facilities are already installed, thus the government will be saved over $1,000,000 in cost of constructing the dirigible base that will have to be expended at Sunnyvale.

These factors will not only save the government large sums of money, but nearly a year's time in completing the base. This is vital because the base must be completed by the time the first dirigible is constructed in about eighteen months. This would be impossible at Sunnyvale.

Economy of operation. At San Diego is located the naval air station, the naval training station and the marine base which can provide the personnel for the air base without extra cost to the nation as Camp Kearny is only ten miles from these units. A special personnel of from 300 to 600 men would have to be created and maintained at Sunnyvale, which is unnecessary at Camp Kearny. This would entail an annual expense of from $500,000 to $1,000,000 for maintenance and operation of the dirigible base at Sunnyvale. Even a government flying school is maintained at San Diego at which experts for service of the dirigible base could be trained with small additional expense. At Sunnyvale a special flying school would have to be constructed and maintained at large additional expense.

On the 1000 acres of land at Camp Kearny offered the government free by the city of San Diego, the surface is in such perfect condition that for more than ten years Army, Navy, commercial and private flyers have selected this field for special and emergency uses. Many record flights have been started and completed in the Camp Kearny area—even Col. Lindbergh tested the carrying capacity of the Spirit of St. Louis on the Camp Kearny field as it now stands, before starting his record flight to Europe.

The greatest American experts on aviation, meteorology, climate and all other conditions essential to an ideal dirigible air base have testified that Camp Kearny is the best location in the United States for practically perfect flying purposes, and until recently when mysterious influence began to operate, it was conceded throughout the nation that the great Pacific dirigible air base would be built at Camp Kearny.

Camp Kearny's elevation is about 400 feet protected both from high winds and fogs which are the greatest menace to aviation and which are prevalent in the San Francisco area. In a few minutes' flight, whether day or night, the giant dirigibles could contact with the battleship and destroyer fleets which are based in the San Diego-Los Angeles area and not be hampered by the heavy fogs which prevail outside of the harbor of San Francisco. It is obvious that the dirigibles are not being constructed to cruise around Sunnyvale and Santa Clara Valley, but to operate with the fleet in the solution of problems and naval strategy on the high seas.

Records show that there are 356 days of sunshine out of 365 in the San Diego-Los Angeles area. The records show that in the Sunnyvale-San Francisco area about one-half of the year the coast line is fog-bound, rendering joint maneuvers impossible. Therefore, sunshine, temperature, visibility, low wind velocity and all other essential conditions are approximately 50 per cent more favorable, the year around, in the San Diego-Los Angeles area than in the San Francisco area. Storms which originate north of San Francisco and prevail around San Francisco spend their force before reaching the San Diego-Los Angeles area and have never been known to occur in that area. In the light of recent disasters the absence of hurricanes is an exceedingly important thing.

In transcontinental cruises of the Shenandoah, the Los Angeles and the Graf Zeppelin, the world's greatest air navigators have selected the air course which leads through the San Diego-Camp Kearny area. These great air navigators determined that this was the transcontinental air course of greatest safety and demonstrated from experience that the future base on the Pacific should be located in this area of greatest safety for army, navy and commercial flying.

The best interests of the entire nation will be conserved in development of both service and commercial lighter-than-air transportation by locating the base at Camp Kearny which the highest authorities have repeatedly declared to be the ideal Pacific Coast site. The shifting of the base to a new and unknown site might prove a costly and disastrous national experiment.

LETTERS TO The Times

The Bear Flag

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 2.—[To the Editor of The Times:] For sixty-five years, up to 1911, California was generally spoken of as "The Bear Flag State." Yet it is important to note that the words, "California Republic"—and not "California State"—were imprinted on the original Bear Flag. In spite of the fact that there could be no separate California republic in a galaxy of States, the Bear Flag was officially adopted in 1911 as our California State flag.

Why was the word "republic" allowed to remain on our Calif-for Bear flag when it was made State flag? California was never a recognized or accepted republic. The flag can only refer to the small scrap known as the Bear Flag War, which uprising was in violation of U.S.A. government orders. The incident only lasted for twenty-two days.

It is obvious that no republic could have been organized and made to function by the seizure of a band of Mexican cavalry and the occupancy of Sonoma from June 14 to July 7, 1846, on which date the Republic Bear Flag, as the emblem of a political coup, came down. Fortunately for the dignity of history the episode was quickly merged in the larger question of proclaiming California a part of the United States of America.

There is no reason today for adhering to that appellation—California Republic. Actually such a phrase as California Republic can only be misleading to the child mind, the uninformed, to strangers among us and in foreign lands. The elimination of the word "republic" from our State flag would confer dignity and patriotism on that otherwise questionable act of the instigators of the Bear Flag War. The California republic bear flag belongs only in our museums.

On the question of eliminating the word "republic" on our State flag there seems still to be a difference of opinion. The chairman of the Republican Central Committee, William Eric Fowler, in reply to a request for his views, says, in part: "I note with deep interest your letter concerning the California flag and I agree with you that this is a matter of very great importance and should receive the attention of all, and I trust that you will be successful in having the matter presented and discussed by the next Legislature."

The Woman's Democratic League of Los Angeles, through its representative, Mrs. Jessie Calhoun Anderson, replied, in part: "That they indorse your plan in regard to the California State flag and suggest that the lettering on the flag be corrected to correspond with the fact that it is the flag of the State of California, U.S.A., and not of a California republic."

No Commercial Spirit Here

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Reinforcing the recent letter of John H. Martin on the subject of the value of antitoxins, serums, vaccines and the like and the consequent necessity of permitting continued animal experimentation so that other diseases may yield to scientific skill, I should like to call attention to a recent editorial of the Detroit Free Press urging parents to have their children given protection from diphtheria by toxin-antitoxin treatment. The paper adds:

"In order to aid the campaign of the board of health, 800 Detroit physicians are giving treatments for a nominal fee or for nothing where the family exchequer is depleted."

This is a pretty complete answer to the charge of "commercialization" hurled by the lady whom Mr. Martin answered, as well as to her further assertion that medical authorities declare the treatment valueless.

EX-DEROITER.

A punchbowl of snowy eggnog, made in these piping times of peace with hot milk and innocuous cooking sherry, is a standard part of holiday celebration in the South, where Christmas visiting still flourishes, and cheer in the form of a foaming glass and slice of fruit cake is offered all who drop in to exchange greetings.

BIBLE SUNDAY TO BE HEEDED

Los Angeles Churches Tomorrow Will Take Part in Universal Observation of Day

Universal Bible Sunday, sponsored by the American Bible Society, the Federation of Churches of Christ in America and other organizations, and which will be observed tomorrow in every civilized country of the world, will be celebrated in scores of Los Angeles churches with musical programs, pageants, dramas and sermons in which "The Book of Books" will be held aloft as the beacon light of humanity.

All services at St. John's Episcopal Church tomorrow will be in keeping with the spirit of the day. At the morning hour Dr. George Davidson, the rector, will bless and dedicate 2000 Bibles, which are to be distributed among hotels of Los Angeles, and will preach on "The Bible of the Gideons." In his evening discourse Dr. Davidson will discuss the following questions: "Should the Bible be in public schools? In what respect is the Bible an inspired book? Do the divorces of the age indicate the failure of religion?"

BIBLICAL DRAMA

"The Old Bible in the New Prayer Book" will be discussed by Rev. Charles T. Murphy in his sermon tomorrow morning at Amanda Memorial Chapel, Carthay Center. Another address of interest will be given by Dr. Max I. Reich, Bible teacher, who will be heard at Hebron Community Center, Winter and Evergreen streets, tomorrow evening on "The Bible, Signs of the Times and Prophecies Concerning the Jews Being Fulfilled Today." Another program of interest will be given tomorrow evening at Immanuel Presbyterian Church when Rev. William C. Isett and members of the Religious and Historical Drama Guild will present the biblical drama "The Conversion of Sergius Paulus." Seats will be free. At Immanuel Church in the morning Dr. Herbert Booth Smith will preach on "The Angels' Song and the Modern World."

DR. LOUIS CORNISH

"World-Wide Unitarianism" will be discussed at First Unitarian Church tomorrow morning by Dr. Louis C. Cornish, president of the American Unitarian Association. Dr. Cornish is a member of the executive board of the American Committee on the Rights of Religious Minorities, an interdenominational organization, and he is well known throughout the country for his lectures on this theme. Tomorrow evening at First Unitarian Church, M. M. Mangasarian, liberalist, will speak on "Jew and Christian in the Life of New York."

DR. LOUIS C. CORNISH

DR. JOHN SNAPE

"High Romance in High School" will be discussed by Dr. John Snape at Temple Baptist Church tomorrow evening. The topic for morning is "An Old Testament Illustration of a New Testament Requirement." Hugo Kirchhofer will lead congregational singing, with Dr. Ray Hastings at the organ.

DR. HUGH WALKER

"The One Great Christmas Secret" is the topic of a sermon to be preached by Dr. Hugh K. Walker tomorrow morning at First Presbyterian Church. The sermon topic for evening is "The Christmas En-

POOR CHILDREN FOUND HUNGRY

Salvation Army Sends Out Plea for Aid

Little Helen in the only crib she has.

SEVEN tow-headed children with frightened, hungry faces, the oldest a boy 12 years of age, the youngest a girl, 1, a home from which the last trace of joy and happiness long ago had fled; a squalor that one would think impossible in Southern California; the father in the psychopathic ward, and the mother trying to keep soul and body together in a house of no plan, conceived in the disordered mind of the father. Such a theater of action was presented to workers of the Salvation Army yesterday in the very midst of a fine residence section.

There was not a trace of food in the house when the Salvationists arrived, and the little children were hungry. They looked hungry, and their faces did not belie their looks. The father had a habit of buying food and locking it in the garage, so that nobody could get it. For years he has spent his time, according to the mother, in tinkering with a half-dozen old radios and as many automobiles, none of which will run, and alternately whipping the children or the wife.

Food is needed for the family, according to Adjutant Lloyd Docter, divisional secretary of the army. Blankets, mattresses, clothing, shoes, stockings also are needed at once.

For years agencies of the Community Chest have tried to get into the home to help, it was learned. But the father was irascible. He built the strange house in which the family lives, his own "holy of holies," in which nobody ever was permitted to go being in a gable six by fifteen feet, and entered from below by a ladder.

Wednesday the authorities, at the behest of the Salvation workers, arrested the father and removed him to the psychopathic ward for observation.

The children needing all kinds of clothing include four boys, 12, 10, 6 and 2, and three girls, 8, 4 and 1.

TELEPHONE MAN'S DEATH MYSTERIOUS

Company Employee Dies After Drinking Liquor at Subscriber's Home

Mystery surrounds the sudden death yesterday of Edward Van Fleet, 38 years of age, a telephone company employee, who lived at 1221 West Sixty-fifth street, was under investigation by the police homicide squad last night. Van Fleet died in the home of Paul Fenner at 7170 Rosewood avenue, where he had been sent to install a telephone.

Detective Lieutenants Shannon and Hickey reported that Fenner, with two friends, Paul Brune of 3184 West Eighth street and Edward Stein, said he invited Van Fleet to have a drink. According to the story told police Van Fleet immediately became ill after drinking and was put to bed in the Fenner home. Six hours later Dr. F. K. McDonald of 173 North La Brea avenue, was called. He pronounced Van Fleet dead and said he had been so for at least an hour. Efforts by a Fire Department pulmotor squad failed to resuscitate him. The body was sent to the Morgue.

Police Chemist Rex Welch last night tested some of the liquor that Van Fleet is reported to have drunk and pronounced it 178-proof alcohol. Fenner told the investigating officers that Van Fleet refused to dilute the liquor and drank it straight.

Detectives took Fenner and Stein to Central station for interrogation.

LEON TANNER SOUGHT

In a letter from Portland, Or., The Times yesterday was asked to aid in locating Leon Tanner, 20 years of age, and Clinton Drummond, 23, whose mother, it was stated, is seriously ill and worried about their welfare. Their last known address is the Boys' Community Club, 610½ Temple street. Anyone knowing their present whereabouts is requested to notify Charles Arnold, 335 Mill street, Portland.

AIRPLANE NEWS EXCHANGE

(Not all the interesting and out-of-the-ordinary news of the day finds a place on crowded wires or wires. Every evening The Times compiles some choicest by telephone. By Western Air Express, T.A.T. and Standard lines papers of current and yesterdays from pivotal cities of...rmation. Washington, D. C., contributes the...Kan. only two days from the press; Indianapolis and Chicago, thirty-six hours; Kansas City, Salt Lake City and Phoenix are just halfway 'round the clock. Today's gleanings range in subject from an account of how a man was given a $10 fine in a court in Washington, D. C., for stealing a newspaper, to the wisdom displayed by an ant in seeking out a warm boiler room during a snowstorm in Kansas City.)

NEWS IS COSTLY

Washington (D. C.) Star, Dec. 4.

A man, who said he was Sigman McCain, 47 years old, of the 1780 block of Thirteenth street, forfeited $10 in Police Court for taking a paper from an honor system rack without paying for it.

CEASE FIRING

Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican, Dec. 6.

Hunting of mule and black-tail deer and wild turkey in the district south of the Gila River in Arizona is prohibited until further notice in an order issued yesterday by the Arizona State Game and Fish Commission. The order was the only official act taken by the commission during its two-day meeting which closed yesterday afternoon.

A request that the area be closed was presented to the commission early in October following a meeting of the Arizona Game Protective Association in Phoenix.

OR HALT

Chicago Tribune, Dec. 5.

The proper way to stop at a stop street is not to stop at all; just shift gears, Mrs. Frederick W. Penfield told Magistrate Harry Porter. She had been arrested for not stopping.

Mrs. Penfield explained that she was one of the really careful drivers on the North Shore. She learned all about motoring from her husband, she said.

"Personally," she stated, "I rarely stop. I just shift gears. But I suppose Evanston is broke and needs money, so I will pay the minimum fine of $1."

"Make it $4," said the court, "and pardon me for suggesting that 'stop' is a four letter word meaning to come to a halt."

PUBLIC DOMAIN

Albuquerque Journal, Dec. 6.

The public domain question now being considered by President Hoover and other subjects of vital interest to the live-stock industry of New Mexico will be discussed December 13 at the third quarterly meeting of the executive board of the New Mexico Cattle Growers' Association. The meeting, expected to draw about seventy-five cattlemen, will be held in the Temple of Agriculture at Las Cruces.

WHO THOUGHT THIS?

Kansas City Star, Dec. 6.

A journalist is a man who gets to work about 10 o'clock in the morning and thinks a few minutes, and if he can't think goes out to the golf links. A newspaper man is a man who gets to work about 8 o'clock and on discovering he can't think, goes out on the street and interviews folks who can think.

WISE OWL

Kansas City Times, Dec. 6.

Thomas Pierce, watchman at the foundry building on the Kansas City, Kan., public levee, heard a noise at a window yesterday morning.

He raised the window and in from the snowstorm floundered a large owl. Pierce covered it with his coat and put it in a box.

FILM SHOWS DIVING FROM ICE FLOES

Winter Scenes, Opening of Congress and Football Game Also Depicted

Swimmers diving from ice floes into frigid waters are shown to comfortable Southern Californians by The Times-Universal Newsreel in its semiweekly issue to be released soon at an important group of theaters. This newsreel subject was filmed at Chicago, where members of a hardy club called the Polar Bears did their icy dives for the camera, all described by the talking reporter.

Another subject showing winter's terrors in less-favored communities was filmed for The Times-Universal Newsreel at Berthoud Pass, Colo., where dynamite was resorted to after giant tractors had bucked the snowdrifts which blocked the railroads.

Sports subjects shown in the news film include the Notre Dame-Army football game, the six-day bicycle race and an eleven-mile walking match, all in New York. Congress is shown at the opening of its present session, and The Times-Universal Newsreel also shows scenes of recent picture news interest in China and Australia.

Concrete Paving Curing Process Comes up Again

An echo of the rumpus recently kicked up over the use of processes for the curing of concrete paving, in place of the method of covering it with dirt and water, was heard in Council yesterday when a communication was received from the Board of Public Works on the subject of approving a license agreement with McEverlast, Inc., owners of the Hunt Process.

The board stated its opinion that the Hunt Process does not come under the City Charter qualification of a patented pavement and, therefore, cannot make a license agreement, but adds that if McEverlast, Inc., will adhere to its proposed price of 6½ cents per square yard for the life of the agreement, the board will approve it.

Religion Breaks Up Reily Home

Religion broke up the home of Edwin J. Reily, it was disclosed in Superior Judge Archbald's court yesterday, when Mrs. Ada Reily obtained a divorce and freedom to bob her hair and defy the latest fashions by wearing her skirts comfortably short.

Witnesses testified that Reily objected to his wife wearing jewelry or going to shows, and Mrs. Reily testified that he wouldn't provide for her when she was ill, and kept her awake late at night with religious discussions.

DESERTION CAN BE PASSIVE

Hubby Remaining East While Wife Lives Here Judged Divorce Ground

How Harold Raymond sent his wife from Massachusetts to Los Angeles, telling her he had some business to clean up and would follow later, and how he never came, was the story told by Mrs. Evelyn Raymond to Superior Judge Bishop yesterday when asking for a divorce on the grounds of desertion.

Mrs. Raymond declared that when she arrived she found a letter from Raymond informing her that he was not coming to Los Angeles. A decree was granted.

WIFE REFUSES TO STAY AWAY

He Gave Her Ticket and Put Her on Train, But She Came Right Back

Muriel M. Grimm, sometimes a boxer and sometimes a salesman, bought his wife a railway ticket, placed her on a train and sent her away to get rid of her, Mrs. Mary E. Grimm testified yesterday before Superior Judge Yankwich when asking the court to give her a divorce on the grounds of nonsupport.

"But I came back here where I can get work," she said.

Mrs. Grimm told the court her husband did not support her during the last year and one-half of their married life, which ended on April 14, 1928.

She was given a decree and $20 a week alimony.

WIFE TO EARN ALIMONY WORKING FOR HUSBAND

To make alimony payments easier and pave the way for a possible reconciliation, Superior Judge Schauer yesterday ordered Mrs. Isabelle S. Parry to take the place of an assistant in the dental office of her husband, Dr. Oswald D. Parry, and work for the $30 a month she will get as alimony.

Otherwise, Dr. Parry would have to pay his wife $80 a month and his assistant $50 more, it was pointed out.

"You must take orders from your husband just like any other employee," admonished Judge Schauer, after suggesting the job for Mrs. Parry. "You must forget all about your divorce and work for the best interests of his business."

Mrs. Parry agreed. She had sued her husband for nonsupport after eight years of married life. They have one child 6 years of age.

"He phoned He'd be Home at Six."

The children ask, "Where is Daddy?" He phoned he would arrive at six. How often a waiting wife suffers anxious moments, when intuition tells her something dreadful must have happened to her husband. Too often an accident. And at a time when he was just beginning to make real headway in his work and saving money. It is then that the provision of proper protection is indeed a friend.

FITTS EN ROUTE TO GET VERNON

Prosecutor Goes to Argue Extradition

Will be Opposed at Hearing by Wyoming

Both States Want Accused for Train Wrecks

Dist.-Atty. Fitts today is scheduled to oppose the District Attorney of Laramie county, Wyoming, in a legal skirmish before Gov. Holloway of Oklahoma, for custody of Tom Vernon, assertedly confessed wrecker and robber of the Southern Pacific West Coast Limited train near Saugus. The hearing will be conducted at Oklahoma City.

Midway to his destination, after taking off in an airplane at 5 a.m. Fitts telephoned to Mrs. Berthel Earls, his sister and private secretary, at 4 p.m. yesterday, and announced he had arrived at Amarillo, Tex., and expected to leave there by rail at 8 o'clock last night. The train, he said, is due at Oklahoma City at 7 a.m. today. Fitts added that he expects the hearing will be concluded tonight, in which event he will return to Los Angeles some time Monday.

FITTS'S ARGUMENT

In the fight Fitts will wage to obtain custody of Vernon and bring him back here for trial, it is understood the argument will be advanced that the prisoner was arrested on information supplied by Los Angeles authorities as a result of their investigation and that, therefore, Los Angeles county should be given first opportunity to try him. Another point Fitts is expected to make an issue of is that Vernon is asserted to have confessed only to the wrecking and robbing of the West Coast Limited here, and not to the derailing of the Union Pacific train near Cheyenne, Wyo., November 24, last. It is on a charge that he perpetrated the latter wreck that the Laramie District Attorney seeks custody of the prisoner.

The necessary extradition papers, signed by Gov. Young, were expected to be delivered to Gov. Holloway at Oklahoma City yesterday. They were dispatched from Sacramento by air mail this week by Frank Dewar, chief deputy sheriff in charge of criminal operations, after he had flown with them to the capital to obtain the Governor's signature.

INQUIRY CONTINUED

Anticipating a victory for Fitts in today's verbal battle, Capt. Brooks, head of the Sheriff's robbery detail, yesterday continued his investigation of the local aspects of Vernon's asserted confession. The investigation, Brooks said, is being carried on with a view of fortifying the District Attorney at the trial with every possible bit of evidence.

Wyoming's efforts to be awarded custody of Vernon are being made in spite of assurances given by Fitts that the suspect will be surrendered to Laramie county authorities, should his trial here result in acquittal. Fitts gave his word to that effect in a telephone conversation with the Governor of Wyoming shortly after receiving word of Vernon's arrest in Pawnee, Okla.

REQUISITION PAPERS RECEIVED IN OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 6. (AP)—Requisition papers asking for the return of Tom Vernon, confessed train robber, to California to face charges of derailing and robbing a Southern Pacific passenger train were received here today by Gov. Holloway.

Requisition papers from Gov. Emerson of Wyoming, asking custody of Vernon to face charges in that State of derailing and robbing a Union Pacific passenger train were received here several days ago.

Frank McGlynn Fills Old Role at El Capitan

"Abraham Lincoln," John Drinkwater's stirring drama, will be given by the Henry Duffy Players at El Capitan starting today. Frank McGlynn, noted American actor, who created the role of Lincoln in the original Broadway production of the play, has been brought to the coast to play his original role.

Written by John Drinkwater, the noted poet-playwright, "Abraham Lincoln" has been praised as one of the enduring dramas. Its production here will be the most ambitious offering ever attempted by the Henry Duffy Players and fulfills the ambition of the actor-producer to present the play.

"Abraham Lincoln" is divided into six episodes, starting with a scene in the farmhouse at Springfield, Ill., when Lincoln is notified of his nomination for the Presidency up to the moment of his assassination while attending Ford's Theater in Washington. Two others of the original New York cast who will appear here are Albert Phillips and James Durkin.

Drama Director Lauds Current Majestic Play

Gordon Davis has a very modest opinion of "Among the Married." Davis, who directed the play now current at the Majestic Theater, thinks the comedy the most brilliant he has ever witnessed.

This opinion might be labeled as just ephemeral enthusiasm were it not for the fact that Davis, who was formerly director of dramatics at Stanford University, has directed everything from Greek tragedies and Shakespeare to one-act amateur plays.

"The casual manner in which it creates suspense and the brilliancy of its dialogue make this comedy one of the most noteworthy ever produced on the American stage," Davis said.

SWEET TITLE

Harry Gribbon now has the world's sweetest title, his latest starring comedy for Mack Sennett having been christened "Papa's Sugar Plum," with Gribbon as the sugar plum.

FRANCIS ON SCREEN

Alec B. Francis, who is seen this week on the Warner Theater screen in "Evidence," has appeared in two hundred motion pictures since he entered the profession. His first vehicle was made twenty years ago.

GRIFFITH OUTLINES PROGRAM

"Lincoln" First, Then Plans Remaking "Intolerance;" Priscilla Dean, Art Goebel, Star in New Film; Luther Reed to Direct "Dixiana" for R.-K.-O.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Those who know D. W. Griffith feel that he is on the eve of proving that he is still, as he was in the old days, the master of them all. He is dedicating all his brilliant talents to the production of his Life of Lincoln as a talking picture, and has indeed spent almost the entire past year in research work and thought on the subject.

Griffith has just arrived from New York, where he took many tests of actors for various roles in his picture, but so far he has settled on no one.

He feels, according to his talk of yesterday with me, that the great thing is the play itself, and he has brought west with him no less erudite and proven a writer than Stephen Benet, author of the currently popular book, "John Brown's Body," which critics and public alike are hailing as the work of genius and of luminous insight.

"I can fiend actors to play the roles," said Griffith yesterday, "but the great thing is to have them speak the right words,—words that shall truly express the time of Lincoln and the huge problems of the period. I finally prevailed on Stephen Benet to undertake the job of writing the dialogue and the story."

Another truly important announcement was made by Griffith, to the effect that he means to remake "Intolerance" as a talker, with a completely new modern sequence. But of course this will not be until later. Many critics have said that "Intolerance" is the finest picture ever made, and it will be with tremendous interest that the new version will be awaited.

FOX ASSIGNS LEADS TO "TEMPLE TOWER"

It is all settled just who will play the leading roles in "Temple Tower," which is a sequel, as you remember, to "Building Drummond," and which was written, as was also the latter story, by H. C. McNeile.

MARGUERITE CHURCHILL

Kenneth McKenna and Marguerite Churchill are the players in question, while Henry Walthall is to have an important featured role, and Peter Gawthorn will have another fine part.

John Ford is to direct the picture, which is to be a special, and which will of course be a talker.

Luther Reed's Next R.-K.-O.

Having covered himself with glory in the production of "Rio Rita," Luther Reed naturally feels that he must keep up the good work.

His next for R.-K.-O. will be "Dixiana," a story of the South, with all sorts of beautiful musical numbers.

Ann Caldwell and Harry Tierney are writing "Dixiana," which alone assures excellence as to book and music.

The picture is to be a special production, with the likelihood of a trip to the sunny South to secure background.

Two With Miss Del Rio

Two players of importance were added yesterday to the cast of Dolores Del Rio's next United Artists starring vehicle, "A Gallant's Sweetheart."

YOLA D'AVRIL

Yola D'Avril, a young player of character parts, will have a role, while Ulrich Haupt, noted portrayer of heavy roles, and who gave his first screen performance in Norma Talmadge's "The Woman Disputed," will play a part. Haupt gained distinction by his performances in "Madame X" and "Frozen Justice."

Helen Ware's New Role

That brilliant actress, Helen Ware, late of the dramatic stage, is being kept busy in pictures these days. She has just been cast in a featured part in Evelyn Brent's current starring picture for Paramount, not yet named.

Miss Ware's series of Paramount roles started with her portrayal of a pioneer mother in "The Virginian."

Dancers With Whiteman

If there isn't enough dancing in Paul Whiteman's first starring vehicle, "King of Jazz," it isn't going to be the fault of Universal.

Two more have been added to the stepping contingent. They are Jacques Cartier, dancer of Voodoo and East Indian numbers, and Al Norman, known as the "leg mania dancer."

Priscilla Dean and Aviator

If everything goes as now expected by those interested, Priscilla Dean and Art Goebel, noted aviator, will star together in a picture devoted to aviation.

PRISCILLA DEAN

The picture, we hear, is to be filmed in Texas, with the aid of airplane fields and factories down there, and will be a special production having to do with war.

Miss Dean, as everybody remembers, is one of yesteryear's bright screen stars. Perhaps some people don't know that she is also an accomplished aviatrix, having many hours in the air to her credit. So that we may expect some interesting work from her, not only as an actress, but also as an aviator.

COCOANUT GROVE TO HONOR COMPOSERS

Song Composers' Night will be celebrated in the Cocoanut Grove at the Hotel Ambassador Tuesday evening, on which occasion noted Broadway song writers will attend as guests of honor, presenting a special program of their own compositions.

Bobby Gross, a California composer, will act as master of ceremonies, and Mal Hallett's orchestra will present a new group of dance selections and request numbers.

"ZAZA" IS GIVEN AT BILTMORE

Genaro Barra Convinces in Role of Dufresne; New Singer Pleases

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Leoncavello's "Zaza," at the Biltmore Theater last night, proved to be an endurance run for Conductor Alberto Conti. He was the hero of the production as he managed to give a presentable musical performance of a vulgar opera with few opportunities for the singers and but a few moments of back-stage chorus singing to relieve the monotony. The presentation was creditable, but not up to the standard set by the previous operas of the Columbia company's repertoire.

Genaro Barra, the personable Italian who has appeared here many times recently in opera, sang the part of Dufresne well. He was in good voice and his acting was convincing. Parigi, the baritone, had the one fine aria of the opera, "Zaza, Little Gypsy" at the end, and earned an enthusiastic response. Although he had a comparatively small part, his singing was memorable for quality and beauty of phrasing.

The name part, upon which the whole fabric of the opera rests, was taken by a new singer, Patricia Robasna. Mlle. Robasna is a native daughter whose musical education has been obtained in Italy. She has ability as an actress and her role had been well studied, but even the startling display of her personal charms in the dressing-room scene did not serve to make "Zaza" interesting. Her tones are emitted from a tight throat, which creates a marked tremolo, and nothing less than a complete course of esthetic dancing will make her less than ungainly on the stage.

Lenore Ivey as the maid was perfectly made up from her pathetic gray cotton gloves to her arch-preserver shoes. Edith Mackey of San Francisco made an interesting tipsy old stage hanger-on in the part of Mme. Anaide and caused many a laugh. The little daughter Toto was played by a charming and well-trained child, Betty Green, whose delicate, rhythmical hands marked the precision of her Italian with grace.

Tonight "Il Trovatore" is the bill and for the matinee "The Barber of Seville" is scheduled.

Rising Winds Foretell Fate of Grey House

A tale is told, when the wind is high across the moors, of a grey house which once stood above a pile of ruin.

"Chronicles of the Grey House" is narrated by U.P.A. and stands on record at the Filmarte.

The legend runs that back in the feudal days of Saxony there lived at the Grey House, a lord with his youngest son, the pride of his spent years. His eldest son was a bitter disappointment; an idler around court circles. The Grey House shall go to the younger, but under stress of anger at his love for a peasant girl and the elder's greed for property, the old lord dies. The Grey House is closed and the boy lives with his bride in the old tower on top of the hill.

The day comes when the bad son returns to snatch away his brother's inheritance and that day he is killed by his brother out on the lonely moor while the wind is highest. Thinking he leaves his wife dead too, the victor rides on over the hill.

The villagers, it is said, do not believe him dead and guard his young son and the Grey House for his return. The dead son's widow has not forgotten, and one night when the wind rides high she kidnaps the baby squire. Then it is that the wind brings back the father to the moors and to the rescue of his son, though he himself is stabbed to a death which stays its hand until the rightful lord shall sit once more within the Grey House.

Although this is unusually long, the direction of Arthur Von Gerlach casts over the simple story an unflagging enchantment. It is one costume picture which seems to live in its time and not appear enacted by modern players. Without a doubt, the exquisiteness of the picture owes itself to the unequaled photography of Fritz Wagner. Nothing so perfect has ever been seen on the screen.

An actor of decided merit, a person of vital attraction is Paul Hartmann, who plays the younger of the sons. A faithful interpretation of his proud, peasant-born bride is given by Lil Dagover.

One of Charles Chaplin's earliest comedies, made during his Mack Sennett days, adds a fresh note of comedy to the Filmarte bill.

Gus Van Wants His Scrap Book

Now that several of the Pantages theaters have been acquired by the R.-K.-O. interests, Gus Van, baritone member of the team of Van and Schenck, would like to broadcast a request to the new owners and managers, with whom he has had such pleasant business relations for nearly two decades.

If, in cleaning up around the theaters, anyon should come across a large scrap-book, and, brushing off the dust of four years, find Vaa's name on it, he would like it sent to him, charges collect, at Los Angeles, with the name and address of the finder.

Chinese Plans Co-ed Program

Co-ed hi-jinks night will be celebrated at tonight's Hollywood midnight frolic at Grauman's Chinese Theater, preceding the showing of Ronald Colman in "Condemned," with Ann Harding.

Included in this program are Georgie Stoll as master of ceremonies, who will introduce from the stage the well-known favorite, Red Corcoran; Pall Mall, Ruth Hamilton and Ed Cheney, eccentric dancer.

"Ferguson Family" Introduced

Helen Ferguson

Will fill the role of the daughter in the comedy of the American household which the Henry Duffy Players will present at the President starting tomorrow. The play has not been given here before.

NEW FILMS TO START RUNS

Two new pictures enter the Warner Brothers' theater Monday. To replace "The Great Divide," starring Dorothy Mackaill at Warners Hollywood, will be the inimitable Charlotte Greenwood in the screen version of her comedy success, "So Long Letty." Miss Greenwood is well remembered for her stage portrayals and this new role is said to be even better than those preceding.

Miss Greenwood has a versatile supporting cast, including Grant Withers, Hallam Cooley, Patsy Ruth Miller, Marion Byron and Helen Foster. Claude Gillingwater is also in the cast. Lloyd Bacon directed.

Pauline Frederick's starring vehicle, "Evidence," at the Downtown, will terminate its run Sunday, and "Tiger Rose" will take its place. Lupe Velez has a leading role in this picture, which has been adapted from Willard Mack's stage play. In the supporting cast are H. B. Warner, Gaston Glass and others.

"GHOSTS" TO APPEAR ON STAGE

United Artists Will Show New Comedy on Screen Starting Wednesday

The "Three Live Ghosts" in person and on the talking screen will be presented at the United Artists Theater Wednesday night. "Three Live Ghosts" is the name of the new all-talking comedy, and the stars who portray the "ghosts," Claud Allister, Robert Montgomery and Charles McNaughton, have consented to appear in person on the stage on the first night of its run.

One of the ghosts, Claud Allister, will be remembered for his portrayal of "Algy," Ronald Colman's pal, in "Bulldog Drummond." The other two ghosts are newcomers to the screen, both of them having achieved note on the stage.

The story of "Three Live Ghosts" deals with the complications which arise when three British soldiers, after escaping from a German prison camp, return to London and learn to their amazement that they have been listed by the government as having been "killed in action." The cast includes also Joan Bennett, Beryl Mercer, Shayle Gardner and Hilda Vaughn.

NEW AILMENT OF STUDIO DIAGNOSED

Franklin Pangborn

"Microphone throat" is now the modern successor to "klieg eyes." Audible films have so changed the speaking technique of stage players that when they return to the footlights they find it necessary to take vocal gymnastic exercises, according to Franklin Pangborn, actor-producer, who is now presenting "In His Arms" at the Vine-street Theater.

On stages where sound is recorded, the players learn to speak softly with a certain crisp clipping of words so as to register without a blur. In a theater the player must gauge the proper pitch, speed and tone necessary to register properly. He has no sound expert to do this for him.

WRITERS PRESENT PLEASING PROGRAM

Four Playlets Provide Ample Entertainment; Casts Well Chosen

BY KATHERINE T. VON BLON

Four playlets, which, despite the fact that they each and every one dealt with the fragile perfidy of the female of the species, managed sharp contrasts in texture and form at the Writers' Club, eliciting the spontaneous approval of the fashionable and professional audience.

"The Claw," from the pen of Jean Sartene, took precedence through the tensity of its dramatic content and the splendid manner of presentation. It is a recreant's violence, this superhuman gesture of the old paralyzed father who vindicated his son by sheer force of will. As the old paralyzed father, Georges Renavent gave a really remarkable characterization. Pierre, the son, was realized with splendid effect by Robert Graves, and Hilda Vaughn as Rose, the erring wife, was a tempestuous vixen. Edgar Barrier and Geoffrey Wardwell gave good support in minor parts.

Again frail woman was the target for the irrepressible humor of George Ade, and in "Nettie" he is in one of his best moods. However delightful as is the thinly veiled sarcasm, it would have been vastly improved by some blue pencilling. Crauford Kent with his mellow voice, gave a finished performance as the mining engineer. To the part of Freddie Nichols, a "diner out," Kenneth Thomson brought nice feeling and a shaded performance. Sydney Brady as one of the "old guard" was amusing. Speck O'Donnell and Jimmie Guilfoyle added their quota to the hilarity.

Smartly accoutered and sparkling with gayly sophisticated repartee, "The Hell of It," written by George Waggner and Jack Jevne, was delightful entertainment. The idea was novel, the scene representing an apartment in Hades, presided over by a friendly devil. As the unctuous devil, Lloyd Corrigan was irresistible. Natalie Moorhead looked extremely dashing in her sea-foam green trappings, and was a reckless murderess. Henry Smart realized well the part of the accomplice.

"Naughtily contrived on the lines of the latest in triangular models, "The Crack of the Whip," by Madeleine Ruthven, brought an almost medieval tone to the manner of its unfoldment. Julianne Johnston was deliciously provocative. Oscar Apfel managed the part of the wronged husband with finesse, and Ben Hewlett contributed good characterization.

CANNON RETURNS

Raymond Cannon, former Fox director, whose productions, "Imagine My Embarrassment" and "Red Wine," broke house records throughout the country, has returned from a short vacation and will commence work on a new picture before the holidays.

ALLAN FINISHES

Hugh Allan, screen juvenile who had accomplished several outstanding roles before the vogue of sound invaded the studios, will leave Honolulu next week, having completed his featured role in "Aloha," Jefferson-Hawaiian Films' island-made talkie.

LANG DIRECTING

Walter Lang has finished his location work at Flintridge, where among other shots he staged a church bazaar on the estate of James Cruze for "See You in Church," which he is directing as a James Cruze production.

Whispers in the Wings

BY MURIEL BABCOCK

KOLB AND DILL, who used to hold forth on the local playboards with more frequency than they have of late, have been signed by Henry Duffy for a show. They are going to do "Now and Then," first in San Francisco and later in one of Duffy's three theaters here.

If anyone has forgotten just who Kolb and Dill are, they happen to be a pair of comics who have alternated between Orpheum bills, musicals and comedy of the uproarious, hearty variety. They have always had a strong local following.

Madge Kennedy Coming

Madge Kennedy is coming to the Coast to act in one or more of her earlier vehicles. There has been considerable talk in the East that Miss Kennedy would appear in a mystery play called "Hide in the Dark," a dramatization of the Frances Noyes Hart novel of the same name. Now it seems that this project is off.

Mr. Wagner, her producer, will leave New York for the Coast within a few weeks and has confided that he will start production in San Francisco in January.

Miss Kennedy last played on the stage in the West in the summer of 1927. In Christmas week of that same year, Philip Barry's "Paris Bound" was launched in New York with Miss Kennedy in the leading feminine role. The play was one of the season's fine successes.

Coburns Go Ahead

Mr. and Mrs. Coburn, who tried out "The Plutocrat," Arthur Goodrich's dramatization of the Booth Tarkington story, in Pasadena last summer, sent word that the New York production is well under way. Lyle D. Andrews, who produced "How's Your Health?" by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, is sponsoring the Coburn effort.

Shakespeare Ends Today

Shakespeare Week, under the auspices of the Shakespeare Foundation at the Westwood Theater, Los Angeles, closes with two performances of "The Merry Wives of Windsor" today. R. D. Maclean will be seen as Falstaff, Florence Oakley as Mistress Ford, Maude Fealey as Mistress Page and Francis X. Bushman as Ford.

Orpheum Silenced Temporarily

Speaking of closings, the Orpheum Theater will be dark today for the first time in many years, perhaps in the forty seasons that Orpheum has been a byword on the local rialto. The final performance under the two-a-day vaudeville policy was given last night. The theater will now be closed until Christmas night when it reopens with "Hit the Deck."

Bowers in Revue

John Bowers and Marguerite De La Motte, his wife, are in something called "Temptations of 1930," which opens in Brooklyn next week. Bowers, long a motion-picture actor, appeared in a play or two at the Music Box last spring when that theater was open under the O. D. Woodward management.

Pangborn Says, "No"

Franklin Pangborn has decided that the production of "Fata Morgana," which Arthur Collins, the London producer-manager, is sponsoring locally, will not go into the Vine-street Theater. He gives as his reason the fact that "Fata Morgana," although judged an excellent play, is perhaps a trifle more sexy than anything to which his patrons at the Vine-street are accustomed. Meantime, Collins, who produced th play in London, is continuing with his plans and, according to all reports, should assemble a fine production.

Lester Lonergan Busy

Lester Lonergan, well known in these Hollywood parts, is going to direct Edwin Justus Mayer's "Children of the Darkness," in which Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis will soon be seen in New York.

Carlotta King Heads Cast of New Musical

Personalities of the stage and screen are now being signed for prominent roles in "Oh, Susanna!" booked to make its bow before the public of Los Angeles on Christmas Day at th Mayan Theater.

With Carlotta King cast in the leading feminine role and loaned through the courtesy of M.-G.-M., there have been several such players as Agnes Detro, who recently appeared in a local theater in "Merely Mary Ann." Roger Gray, who has appeared in Ned Wayburn's "Gambols" and other stage attractions; George Harris, a former vaudeville headliner and protegee of Gus Edwards; Redmond Wells, who was featured in Honey Boy Evans's Minstrels for seven years, and Eva Rosita, premiere danseuse at the Mission Play during the season of 1927 and 1928.

The Haines Twins, who for two years appeared on the Orpheum-Eastern circuit and over the Midwest Publix theater circuit as singers and dancers, are also to appear.

Carthay Offers Theater Seats as Novel Gifts

Ten thousand Christmas gifts for Angelenos! The Carthay Circle Theater is making up 10,000 little Christmas boxes in each of which will be a pair of seats, for distribution to amusement lovers who like theater tickets in their stockings.

Last year in New York and London more than $1,800,000 worth of theater tickets are reported to have been sold in this manner. The Carthay Circle plans to place its tickets in attractive containers decorated in holiday style.

"Rio Rita" is now in its second week at the Carthay Circle, presented in conjunction with Carli Elinor's concert orchestra.

LOWER WATER LEVELS FOUND

Metropolitan Board Given Data by Conkling

State Official Tells About Depletion Trend

Whitsett Sent to Capital for Dam Power Parley

Natural underground water-storage basins under the Los Angeles coastal plain are being drawn upon at a rate greater than that of restoration by natural processes.

That was the outstanding fact brought to the attention of directors of the Metropolitan Water District yesterday by Harold Conkling, chief of the State Division of Water Rights, who recently completed a State-wide survey of the water situation.

"The situation is already serious," stated Conkling, to the directors at a meeting in the Hill-street annex of the Department of Water and Power.

Asked if such a condition would pertain under normal rainfall, Conkling declared that his figures were based on normal precipitation estimates.

ESTIMATES MADE

"Figuring for increased population, we estimate a shortage of 720,000 acre feet by 1950," said Conkling. He previously had estimated the thirty known basins under the plain, which includes the territory drained by the Los Angeles, San Gabriel and Santa Ana rivers, have a storage capacity of 2,600,000,000 acre feet.

In some places water in these basins is being drawn from below sea level and a danger exists that the flow may be reversed and sea water admitted, he said.

Conkling avoided controversial questions pertaining to water districts and stuck to a plain recitation of geological facts, although his interrogators drew from him the assertion that water finding its way into upper basins will find its way to lower basins as the water level recedes, thus making it apparent that the water situation is a problem in which every community on the coastal plain should be equally interested.

At the invitation of the directors representatives of Glendale, Santa Monica, Redondo Beach, Alhambra, Pasadena, South Pasadena, El Monte, San Bernardino, Compton, Inglewood and other communities were present.

WHITSETT TO LEAVE

After Conkling had finished his talk, the business session of the directors took place, the outstanding action taken being the adoption of a resolution authorizing Chairman W. P. Whitsett to proceed to Washington tonight in representing the Metropolitan Water District in the coming conferences with the Secretary of the Interior regarding the disposition of the water and power from the colorado River. He was instructed to oppose the proposition to raise the acre-foot price of water above 25 cents.

The directors voted in favor of employing J. M. Luney, chief accountant for government departments and formerly with the Reclamation Service, as assistant comptroller for the water district at a salary of $7500 per year. Luney will have to obtain a leave of absence from his government position in order to accept. The first steps also were taken to obtain a permanent executive secretary for the organization.

Lawyer Elconin Loses Fee Fight Against Yalens

Efforts of Benjamine Elconin, Los Angeles attorney, to collect $1546.50 as attorney fees from William and Anna Yalen, one time clients, which were defeated in Superior Court, again met with defeat when the State Supreme Court, in an opinion filed here yesterday, upheld the judgement of the lower tribunal.

Elconin, in his appeal, asserted that he had had an oral agreement with his clients whereby he was to receive one-third of any money obtained by them in a lawsuit for personal injuries to William Yalen. Soon after the suit begun by Elconin her was discharged as attorney. Settlement later was had for $4500, of which Elconin claimed one third, plus certain costs.

It was the contention of the Yalens, however, that Elconin was to get 10 per cent of their judgment, or $246. This is the amount allowed by the courts.

Bad Checks Laid to Worries Over Starving Family

Harry L. White wrote five worthless checks to provide food for his family rather than see them starve, he told Municipal Judge Stutsman yesterday.

"I was broke and out of work," he declared. "The money from the checks went to buy food and clothing for my family."

White waived his preliminary hearing and said he will plead guilty in Superior Court to the felony charge of issuing and passing five worthless checks for a total of $49.50. Judge Stutsman ordered him confined in the County Hospital to await trial, after Police Officer Ellis Bowers declared White attempted to kill himself in the Venice jail by slashing his wrists.

Thirteen Years Hunt Comes to End

Sheriff Bigham and A. B. Crouch (John Grey)

PAST RISES UP TO SMITE HIM

Honest John Grey, Soul of Integrity and Business Leader in New Zealand Town, Passes Through City on Way to Face Old Embezzling Charge in Temple, Tex.

In New Zealand John Grey was the soul of uprightness and integrity, with a family, wealth and exalted position. He was known as Honest John. In Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables" Jean Valjean also rose to be mayor of his adopted town. But in both cases their pasts rose up to smite them.

Valjean's charge was stealing bread; John Grey's that of embezzling $160,000 as a grain dealer back in Temple, Tex., thirteen years ago and his name was A. B. Crouch.

Yesterday he passed through Los Angeles bound home. It isn't to be a joyous home - coming either. Sheriff Bingham of Bell county, Texas, is traveling with him, and it is a big event for the Sheriff, the end of a thirteen-year quest. They came in via Honolulu on the Lasco liner City of Honolulu and left by train for Texas last night. Crouch's wife and attorney, John J. Terry, accompany him.

Sheriff Bingham exhibited a deportation order signed by President Hoover, which was honored promptly by a New Zealand court as soon as he proved the identity of the prisoner.

But the civilians of Helenaville were not so yielding. They filed petitions and refused to lose faith in Honest John. He was on their school board, was president of their golf and their tennis clubs and above all, was agent of the public trust offices, which handle rich estates of deceased persons.

Terry, the prisoner's attorney, said he believes the charge grew out of a technicality when Crouch's grain company went bankrupt back in Texas.

"In his thirteen years with us," continued Terry, "Honest John has been truly honest; had led a most exemplary life; was highly beloved by the community. It is the most extraordinary case ever reaching a New Zealand court and I hope we will have him back with us again."

Four children almost grown are carrying on his activities at home while Honest John is gone.

MEDICINE VENDER'S TRIAL SET

Dan Chandler Arrested on Charge of Not Having Peddler's License

Arrested yesterday by J. A. Bentley, inspector for the State Pharmacy Board, Dan Chandler, medicine vender who recently was fined $1000 and sentenced to jail for six months by Municipal Judge Rogue after being convicted of outraging public decency and disturbing the peace, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Lahey yesterday accused of violating the State medical laws by peddling medicine without a license. He pleaded not guilty and asked jury trial, which Judge Lahey set for the 9th inst.

Chandler is out of jail on a bond posted following his appeal from Judge Rogue's sentence.

T. J. Cummings and Floyd L. Kelley, arrested by Bentley several days ago on charges similar to those now facing Chandler, yesterday admitted their guilt before Judge Lahey. Fines of $100 each were suspended by the court on condition that they obey the law in the future.

DISMISSAL AVAILS DEFENDANTS LITTLE

Dismissal of charges of violating the Wright Act against five men in Superior Court did not avail the five very much, it developed yesterday when Federal dry agents took them before United States Commissioner Head on a charge of conspiracy to violate the National Prohibition Act. The new charges are based on the same grounds as those on which they were tried before Superior Judge Doran, where the jury disagreed. The five, who gave their names as Hugh C. Dean, Carl Greasch, Charles Blanda, alias Joe Moneta; Thomas Clave Van Horn and Corinne Testa, were arraigned and held in bail of $2000 each, which they are making arrangements to give, it is stated. Hearing was set for the 16th inst.

FLYERS WILL BANQUET

Marjorie Crawford, aviatrix, horsewoman and motion-picture actress, will act as hostess at the second annual banquet and dance to be given by the Grand Squadron, National Aeronautical League, at the Palomar Tennis Club, Cheviot Hills Saturday evening, January 25, 1930, it was announced yesterday by W. C. McClurg, secretary. Col. Harry H. Culver, a member of the league, will be master of ceremonies.

Bessie Love to Wed 27th Inst.

Miss Jusnita Horton, known more widely as Bessie Love, motion-picture actress, appeared at the courthouse yesterday and signified her intention to wed. The intended bridegroom is William B. Hawks, who gave his occupation as stock-broker.

Both contracting parties said they are 26 years of age. Miss Love lives at 4735 Brown avenue and Mr. Hawks at 610 North Bedford avenue, Beverly Hills.

The marriage wil take place at 8 p.m. on the 27th inst., at St. James Episcopal Church. Neither has been married before.

NEW GIANT AIRLINER TO LAND HERE TODAY

Piloting a new plane valued at $100,000, Jack Frye, president of the Aero Corporation of California, will arrive at 4:30 p.m. today at Aero Corporation field. The plane is a fourteen-passenger cabin Fokker, recently completed at the Fokker factory, Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., from which Frye is flying it alone. He was reported at El Paso, Tex., yesterday. Three425-horse-power Wasp engines power the plane, which has luxurious fittings, including day beds, ice box and buffet.

YOUR BABY and MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. Stamped self-addressed envelopes, forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

This department offers helpful hints on weaning and feeding the child from 6 weeks to 2 years; prenatal care and diet for the nursing mother; convalescent menus; articles for the new baby; complete maternity outfits; the proper clothing; recommended cribs; bed coverings, blankets for the new baby; methods of bathing; the proper kinds of orange juice, fruits, cereals, vegetables, etc.; regulation of bowels; drinking water; nursery, play, and bath; and cradle cap. Above all, a personal question about any of these topics, it is better to send self-addressed stamped envelope for the leaflet you need. If your particular problem is not covered on that above list, Mrs. Eldred will be glad to give you a personal reply.

A GRAIN OF PRE-CHRISTMAS ADVICE

One of the minor tragedies in any household is to see the new toys, selected with such high hopes of the child's pleasure kicked about the floor or pulled to pieces, or the child returning with renewed devotion to the old toys which the new ones were expected to replace.

The chances for just such results increase in direct proportion to the number of toys received. One toy will be embraced with elation, five with divided interest, and ten with complete indifference. The biggest and most expensive toy usually gets the least attention and some insignificant trifle, selected at the last moment to fill a vacancy on the tree, receives the child's uninterrupted interest the whole day.

INTOXICATED BY EXCITEMENT

Adults forget or refuse to recognise that a child can appreciate just so many new things at a time, can feel only just so much excitement, and beyond that is confusion and blankness. The constant emotion into which a child is thrown from the early morning when he creeps down the stairs to find the tree lights flickering in a dim room and mountains of toys and boxes at its base, is an intoxicant to him, and in this emotional intoxication he does strange things—refuses to look at some new toys, offers to give them away, and clings to his old ones which by their very familiarity offer a relief from his wrought-up state.

Let the child alone. Put the new toys away on a shelf. To leave them strewn about the room, to be looked at and thrust away in favor of some other new thrill, is to leave them all stale and uninteresting and subject to heartless mistreatment from the hands of their satiated new owner.

DESTRUCTION FOLLOWS SATIETY

If Uncle John wants to know what happened to the handsome boat-building set which he gave Junior, whisper gently that it has been put away for some day when Junior will pine for just such concentrated indoor entertainment. To let it lie around, being looked at and mentally discarded for something less intricate, soon detracts all value from the toy. The boy never wants to make it. He's sick of looking at it. Put away until the moment when, tired of all old things, he longs for a fresh inspiration, it comes like a new toy.

Too many toys are confusing to a child and the smaller the child, the more distracting they are. Keep out the old familiars and add a few new ones when the child's interest wanes. Never too many, just enough toys to offer a healthy variety and allow the child changes of entertainment.

When the toy is mistreated it is time to put it away. By mistreatment I mean when the child wants to destroy it instead of use it. Exhorting him to be careful of it, to remember how much it cost, and how valuable it should be on that account, are considerations wasted on a child. He only knows that where there are so many to choose from, one toy more or less means nothing.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Varied Hints

Ventilate the rooms in which you sleep and work.

Plenty of orange and lemon juice will help when bilious.

Stockings will wear better if the darn is on the cross and not the up and down.

Refrigerators should never be kept in a cellar if it is damp. Dampness is ruinous to them.

The broiler from the oven makes an excellent rack on which to cool pies, cakes, etc., when they come piping hot from the oven.

Tell the Laundress

If the home laundress will fold her tablecloths three times lengthwise before any cross-folding is done the ugly hump in the center of the cloth will be avoided and the linen will set smoother and better.

CHEF WYMAN'S RECIPES

Every Tuesday and Friday at 2 o'clock Mrs. A. L. Wyman will conduct a free class and demonstration of good cookery in the lecture room of the Southwest Building, 130 South Broadway.

COCOANUT CREAM PIE

Take two cupfuls of milk, place in a double boiler, three-quarters of a cupful of sugar, one-third of a cupful of flour, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of salt, mix the flour, sugar and salt together, and mix with three tablespoonfuls of cold milk. Pour into the hot milk and stir and cook until the mixture is thick, beat two whole eggs, and two egg yolks together, and slowly add them to the thickened mixture, stirring constantly, remove from the fire, add one cupful of shredded cocoanut, and one-half a teaspoonful of lemon extract, place the mixture in a baked pastry shell, cover with a meringue made with two egg whites, sprinkle with cocoanut, place in a slow oven and brown.

MACKEREL TYROL

Clean and wash dry two fresh mackerel, place them in a baking dish, cover them with half a cupful of finely chopped onion, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of cider, a seasoning of salt, paprika and one-third of a teaspoonful of nutmeg, cover the fish, and bake slowly for thirty minutes. While the fish is cooking, blend one tablespoonful of butter, with one tablespoonful of flour, place in a double boiler, and when melted slowly add one cupful of milk. Add the slightly beaten yolk of one egg, cook slowly for one minute longer, add one tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar and strain the sauce over the cooked fish. Sprinkle with a cupful of fine bread crumbs, return to the oven and allow to brown.

MACARONI WITH MUSHROOMS

Three cupfuls of cooked macaroni or spaghetti, one-half a pound of fresh mushrooms, or one large can of mushrooms, four slices of bacon, one-half a cupful of grated cheese, one cupful of thin white sauce, one teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one tablespoonful of finely chopped onion, a seasoning of salt and paprika, cook the macaroni or spaghetti and place it in a well-buttered baking dish. Take the white sauce, add to it the grated cheese, and stir until the cheese is melted, add the Worcestershire sauce, salt, a few grains of cayenne pepper, and paprika. Then add the mushrooms, and chopped onion, that have been sauted for five minutes in three tablespoonfuls of butter, pour this sauce over the macaroni, cover with strips of bacon, and bake in a moderate oven for ten or fifteen minutes.

Mrs. Wyman does not reply to letters, but requests for recipes are answered in the department, PRACTICAL RECIPES, published every Friday.—(All rights to reproduce reserved by A. L. Wyman.)

KHJ SCHEDULES FAMOUS DRAMA

Tarkington's "Beaucaire" to be on Air Tonight

Herbert Heyes to Play One of Principal Roles

New Federal Order Issued on Record Broadcast

The Times Forum over KHJ at 10:30 a.m. will present Peggy Hamilton, fashion authority of The Times, and Salvador Bagues, baritone, accompanied by Mona Content.

BY JOHN S. DAGGETT

"Monsieur Beaucaire," Booth Tarkington's famous romantic comedy, using the version so successfully presented by Richard Mansfield and James K. Hackett, will be presented from KHJ tonight at 8 o'clock, continuing for one hour.

SALVADOR BAGUEZ

Herbert Heyes, who played "Beaucaire" with both Mansfield and Hackett, has cut the play to radio dimensions and rehearsed the cast. He will interpret one of the principal roles. Others in the cast will include Mildred Von Hollen, Frank Glendon and Sheldon Lewis.

This attempt will be particularly interesting for the reason that many students of radio interpretations from the legitimate stge and grand opera feel that broadcasting is developing a new art through the elimination of much that in original scores or manuscripts is superfluous, at times mediocre or even used for padding the production to a given length to meet box-office requirements.

IN NATURE OF EXPERIMENT

While in the nature of an experiment, Manager Dolberg of the Don Lee station feels that the undertaking should be worthy of the attention of veteran dramatic critics and students of the stage. The offering is of proven popular appeal and seemingly contains ideal material for radio treatment.

Producing the play under the direction of an actor of long experience in both stage and radio drama, giving him a strong cast and plenty of time for adequate rehearsals and finally supplementing the play with carefully selected orchestral background, KHJ tonight will ask for an answer to this question: "Is the radio audience ready for one-hour-long dramatic presentations?"

NEW FEDERAL ORDER

All broadcasting stations were ordered by the Federal Radio Commission yesterday, according to reports from Washington to announce clearly and distinctly the character of all mechanical reproductions broadcast by them, the announcement to immediately precede the broadcast of each record.

The commission says some stations have failed to heed a recent order to make the required announcement when phonograph records are broadcast.

The regulation sets forth that each talking machine, phonograph or graphophone record used should be described as "This is a talking-machine record," and that player piano selections should be described as played by "a mechanical piano player."

Records, transcriptions or piano player rolls requiring more than fifteen minutes cannot be used unless provision is made for announcement of the station call letters.

CONFLICTING INTERESTS

Conflicting interests and other influences are allied with this apparent determination to protect the public against any misrepresentation in the presentation of musical selections.

Originally phonograph records were not entirely satisfactory over radio because of the scratching of the needle and failure of easily types of microphones to fit the tone frequencies. Improvements have been made and listeners say they are now faithfully made transcriptions of organizations to be broadcast in front of the microphone. Also companies are now making records of entire programs of certain organizations, thus leasing them to broadcasting interests are believed to be the enhancement of the value of subscriptions. There are, however, other things on the horizon to involve far more serious dangers than the mere announce that a new song is to be sung or what happens to be long or short.

Health and Diet

ADVICE

by DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

DESERT DATES

The date tree is unusual in that the male and female flowers grow on separate trees. For this reason the lady date tree isn't very much good without a male tree somewhere in the vicinity. Dates were originally a Mohammedan or Arabian product, and growers still follow "harem" custom. They usually plant one male date tree for each acre of female date trees.

The history of date growing is older than the history of civilization, and we find it outlined both as to culture and methods of serving in the clay tablets of ancient Assyria. It is almost the national industry of the Arabs, and we are always closely associating the name of dates with the Arabian sheiks riding across the immense desert regions on camels. The Arabs have long since held the date in great esteem, since it is a very satisfying food, due to the large amount of carbohydrates which it contains, and its concentrated food value is important to those who cross dreary wastes where every ounce counts.

Dates are one of the few foods which can be grown in the desert regions of the world where there are long sunny days with a high temperature and dry air. One date tree may give as much as 100 pounds of fruit per year. Even one bunch of dates sometimes weighs as much as thirty pounds.

The Persian Gulf is the center which supplies the world, although the date crop from Coachella Valley in California is now becoming famous for a very splendid type of dates. Nine-tenths of the imported dates are brought in from Smyrna, Turkey and Arabia, where they are gathered in bunches by a whole line of boys swarming right up the tree trunks, clear from the ground to the fruit. The top boy cuts the bunch and hands it down to the others. The fruit is usually picked by women, loaded on camels, and carried across the desert.

The Deglet Noor is held to be one of the choicest of the many hundreds of known varieties. It is a beautifully colored, transparent amber. It grows in the hottest regions of the Sahara Desert. Fard dates are smaller and usually of a dark brown color. Other dates vary in size and consistency. Some are hard bread and taste like dried cake. Others are so soft and mushy that they cannot be shipped to market.

Dates vary greatly in composition. They usually contain from 50 per cent to 70 per cent sugar, 10 per cent to 11 per cent pectin and gums, 2 per cent to 7 per cent protein, and 1.8 per cent mineral matter.

A diet of milk with a few dates will sustain life for many months. The two together form a very nutritious luncheon. A delicious date salad can be made by placing the cottage cheese on leaves of lettuce or spinach, and covering the cottage cheese with pitted, cleaned dates.

Dates should be given to children by thoughtful mothers, since the date supplies them with a natural and harmless sweet. Because of their large sugar content, it is better not to combine dates with starches, because of the danger of fermentation.

Tough Meat

If the steak seems pretty tough and you feel it should be pounded before cooking, pound flour into it to catch and retain the juice that would ordinarily be lost.

WHEN THE SANDMAN COMES

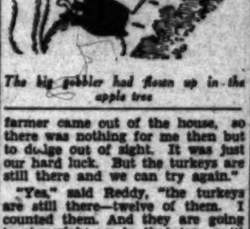
by THORNTON W. BURGESS

THE GREAT DISAPPOINTMENT

Scheme as you will, as like as not,
The unforseen will spoil the plot.
—Reddy Fox.

The best of plans will sometimes fail. Probably you have found that out. I know I have. So have Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy. Reddy hadn't had a doubt in his mind that within a very short time he would have one of those turkeys. From his hiding-place he could see them slowly working up toward the tree where they were in the habit of roosting. It was getting toward shadow-time. Reddy stole along behind an old wall until he was as near as he could get to those turkeys. All he was waiting for now was the sound of that dog barking on the trail of Mrs. Reddy as she led him away. He waited and waited. There was no sound. He couldn't see the barnyard from where he was, so he didn't dare move toward those turkeys. What could have happened? Still he waited, growing more and more impatient.



The big gobbler had flown up in the apple tree

Suddenly there was a sound of big wings. The big gobbler had flown up in the apple tree. One by one all the other turkeys flew up. There was to be no turkey dinner that night. If ever there was a disgusted fox in all this Great World, it was Reddy Fox. And, of course, he blamed Mrs. Reddy. Somehow, Mrs. Reddy had failed. She must have. He wished then that he had given to go lead the dog away.

Reddy glared hungrily up at the turkeys. There was a lot of low talk among them. There was a lot of shifting positions to make themselves comfortable; and there wasn't a thing that Reddy could do. Finally he stole back the way he had come. Mrs. Reddy was waiting for him. She wore as disappointed a look on her face as he did on his.

"What are you doing here?" snapped Reddy.

"Waiting for you," replied Mrs. Reddy meekly.

"What happened?" asked Reddy.

"I waited and waited for the sound of that dog and I waited in vain."

"I know it," replied Mrs. Reddy.

"You see, although I hurried as fast as I could, by the time I got around the corner of that barn, that dog had gone in the barn and he didn't come out. There wasn't a thing I could do. And then the farmer came out of the house, so there was nothing for me then but to dodge out of sight. It was just our hard luck. But the turkeys are still there and we can try again."

"Yes," said Reddy, "the turkeys are still there—twelve of them. I counted them. And they are going to stay right up in that tree until morning. Now what are we going to do?"

"Go hunt meadow mice," replied practical Mrs. Reddy, "and then try again tomorrow. There is nothing else to do that I can see."

"I suppose you're right," grumbled Reddy. "Well, let's go hunt for those mice. My stomach is so empty that I've got to have something in it pretty soon."

Now, there is one thing about the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows that we humans might profit by. They don't waste time thinking about disappointments. They have so many of them that perhaps they are used to them. Reddy and Mrs. Reddy went to hunt mice and said no more about their disappointment in not having a turkey dinner. And they planned to try the same scheme again. It had proved a failure this time, but the next time they might have better luck.
